A CHURCH AND GRAVEYARD SURVEY IN COUNTY CLARE

SURVEYED BY SIMON LARGE IN 2010

Version 1.0 as at 1st June 2011

Fóram Oidhreachta an Chláir Clare Heritage Forum

An Chomhairle Oidhreachta The Heritage Council

Monument No.	CL002-008002	Church Name:	Gleninagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Gleninagh North
Co-ordinates:	210089N 119319E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	Constanting of the second s
Landscape:	Karst Limestone	The second second
Other_Description:	Within easy access of the coast	國家加強
Access:	Beside Laneway		and the state of the Condition:	Poor		the second second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	gable. In fair / poor condition. Iv	y growth and other vege unded by graveyard and b	2 windows. Large single window to east tative growth established. Elder boundary wall. The church measures
West Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing feat	ures.
South Wall General Description:	west of the door. The door is 1.2	1m wide with a rounded a	ndow to the east and a window to the arch opening. A door pivot survives ctangular stone with a circular hole, use
North Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing feat 1.7metres.	ures on the North wall. T	he wall survived to a height of
East Wall General Description:	Single large window 1.1 m wide	, survives.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Ivy growth and the presence of crudely repaired. Keep ivy cut b		use of concern. The door arch has been h, stabilize the door.

Graveyard Monument	CL002-008001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is at graveyard and chur		• • •	interr	nittent basis, wh	ien gras	ss is mowed. The
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	The RMP records se	everal fe	atures in the gra	/e yar	d, however the	ength o	of grass obscured	them
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard surr condition. Areas of				•	oundar	y wall in good
GRAVEYARD								✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	Not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of the	structu	re
History:

GLENINAGH, Sheet 2.—Parish church, 38 feet by 13 feet 4 inches. A plain rude building, with appointed south door, and lintelled south window. Round-headed east window. "Glaniednagh," 1302. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

The old Church of Gleninagh stands in a townland from which it has received its name. It is thirty eight feet in length, and thirteen feet four inches in breadth. The south wall contains a pointed doorway of cut stone five feet four inches in height to the vertex of the arch, and three feet one inch in breadth. The same wall contains two windows, one quadrangular and the other round-topped, but too modern to merit minute description.

The east gable contains a window measuring on the inside about eight feet in height and three feet eight inches in breadth. Its height on the outside could not be easily ascertained, it is so mantled with ivy. Its breadth on the outside is five and a half inches. The thickness of the walls is two feet six inches and height about eight feet.

About three hundred yards to the north of this Church there is a Holy Well dedicated to the Holy Cross, and called from it Tobar na Croiche Naoimh, i.e., Fons crucis sanctae, at which Stations were performed in honour of the Holy Cross. This Well has over it a little turry on the summit of which is the symbol of the Redemption of Man. Over it grows a very old elder tree which exhibits a good crop of votive rags, left on it principally by people who performed Stations there for the good of the eyes. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL002-014002	Church Name:	Drumcreehy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Bishop's Quarter
Co-ordinates:	208618N 124744E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	k 6
Landscape:	Undulating	- and a second and a second	the first
Other_Description:	Near to the coast	and the state of
Access:	Beside Public Road	E State
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Pad Stones		2
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	from the church. The church is d chancel. There is considerable iv intense on the south wall and is	livided internally having a y growth on the south, w a cause for concern. Muc own with ivy and other v	vest and east walls. It is particular ch of the chancel on the western end is regetation. The nave 6.6m wide x 17m
West Wall General Description:	the chancel is breached. The cha	incel is generally in a poo	d largely ruined. The western end of r condition. The west wall of the 2m and has been breached at some
South Wall General Description:	Contains a second door leading to the east of the ruined door.	from the chancel, largely	destroyed. A recessed window survives
North Wall General Description:	Unusually the main door to the o squared head internally.	church is on the north wa	all. The door is arched externally with a
East Wall General Description:	Large single window. It is noted position. This may be due to the		ged, jamb stones have moved out of
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The ivy growth is extensive hidir which will increase unless it is co	-	oric. There is evidence of ivy damage

Graveyard Monument	CL002-014-001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is ext	tensive.	The graveyard is	well	maintained
Related Structures:	Large mausoleum
Architectural Fragments:	An arched Jamb Sto 208,612: 124,733	ne
Graveyard General \Description	Large graveyard sur South. To the west iron railings surrour	of the c					•
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	✓ ✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	in rain t	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of the	structu	re

DROMCREEHY, Sheet 2.—Parish church, 52 feet by 21 feet 6 inches. An early church, with large masonry, and finely built windows, probably of the eleventh century. The eastern is thickly ivied, the south has a well-made splay, and a semicircular moulded head. The north door is round-headed, and similar to the west doors of Quin and Abbeydorney, it is of the earlier fifteenth century. The west end has fallen, also the chancel arch. Founder doubtful. "Dromcruth," 1302. The well is named Tobercore, and Colman is traditionally the patron. Description, R.S.A.I., 1900, p. 301. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

This Parish is called in the original language Druim Críche, which means the Ridge of Crioch, so called from the situation of the original Parish Church on a drum or green long hill in the Territory of Crioch Maille.

The old Church of this Parish is about five centuries old and in a state of dilapidation. It consisted of nave and choir, but all the nave is now destroyed except its south wall of which only twelve feet are destroyed on the west end. This wall contains a round headed doorway constructed of well cut limestone, and measuring six feet two inches in height and three feet four inches in width.

In the same wall at the distance of fourteen feet six inches from this doorway to the east is a quadrangular window formed of cut limestone. It is three feet from the present level of the ground and is four feet one inch in height and ten inches in width.

The east division or choir of this Church is much larger than the northern division or nave; it measuring fifty two feet by twenty one feet six, whereas the nave is only thirty six feet by eighteen feet. It is in tolerable preservation and does not present any of the features of the primitive or middle ages. In its north wall at the distance of thirteen feet from the middle gable there is a pointed doorway seven feet high and three feet nine inches wide. The east gable contains a high window, round inside and pointed outside, constructed of cut limestone and in good preservation. It is eight feet six inches high on the inside and five feet four inches wide and on the outside seven feet high and eight inches wide. The south wall contains another window of equal dimensions, which rarely occurs in other Churches. The side walls of the eastern part of the Church or choir (if I may so call it) are fourteen feet high and two feet six inches thick. They are obviously more modern than the side walls of the nave or western part which are three feet nine inches thick and present a more ancient aspect. This Church stands in an extensive graveyard. Ordnance Survey Letters by John

CL002-063002	Church Name:	Formoyle East
Rural
Formoyle East
207660N,116899E
Scrub
Across Fields
No evidence survives
none
	Rural Formoyle East 207660N,116899E Scrub Across Fields No evidence survives	Rural Formoyle East 207660N,116899E Scrub Across Fields No evidence survives

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Bullaun stone
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

In the Townland of Formoyle east there is a small burial place for children called the Killeen of Formoyle. It is probably the site of a Church, but I have no historical reference to it, at least to the name which it now bears. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL003-01001	Church Name:	Aughinish
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Aughinish
Co-ordinates:	212727N 127801E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	a little an
Landscape:	Coastal	He wester and	TO DE VERSE
Other_Description:		1 Participation
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	church is built at the edge of the 0.72m. Only a small section of t	bay. The church measur he north wall, the corner re are large stones in the	ed by the New Quay Bay waters- as the es 12.7m x 4.7m. Wall thickness of the west wall survive because of wall construction similar to cyclopean.
West Wall General Description:	Only the southwest corner surviv	ves.
South Wall General Description:	The south wall is upstanding, he window, but it so ruined that thi	-	n in the wall that may have been a
North Wall General Description:	Little of the North wall survives growth.	and what survives is alm	ost completely covered by vegetative
East Wall General Description:	Largely ruined and forms part of	a field boundary wall
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Largely ruined. A full detailed su record of the surviving remains b	-	the immediate area. A full detailed y.

Graveyard Monument	CL003-010002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	No comment poss	sible
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	Not recorded as t	ne grave	yard is not directl	y asso	ociated with the o	church
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	High tides will fur this church	rther plu	ck the church awa	y an	d increased rainf	all will a	accelerate the rui	n of
History:
AUGHINISH, Sheet 3.– of County Clare by T. J		ould proc	ure no informatic	n as t	to the existence of	of this c	hurch. The Churc	hes

Monument No.	CL003-032002	Church Name:	Oughtnama
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Oughtmama
Co-ordinates:	207842N 130487E		marks 1
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian	and the second se	A
Landscape:	Undulating	and a state of the
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Excellent		A State State
Foundation:	Pad Stones	Read .	- al and a second second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	the National Monuments Service	e and are maintained by t	nple, which are under the protection of them because of their significance. The ve is 13.5m by 6.3m; the chancel 6.3m x
West Wall General Description:	There is a square headed incline	d door.
South Wall General Description:	There are three windows two in	the nave.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features associated	with this wall save the c	arved font.
East Wall General Description:	This wall is largely ruined, with o connects the nave to chancel.	nly the sill of a large cen	tral window in situ. A transept arch
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None the church is fully maintair	ned by National Monume	ent Services

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Two other small c	hurches	and the base of a	high	cross
Architectural Fragments:	Door Pivot, 20784 Window sill stone Window head 207	207842	N 130487E
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ent Servi	ce
Climate Effects:	While maintained	, minima	al

OUGHTMAMA, Sheet 3.—Parish church. Nave and chancel, 45 by 21 feet, and 21 by 18 feet. The west door has inclined jambs and a massive lintel; the two south windows and the chancel arch have semicircular heads. In the south-west corner is set a font carved with two struggling animals. The semicircular head of the fallen east window is used by the peasantry to cure headaches. Founder uncertain; "the three Colmans" of this place are named without date. [108] The church dates before A.D. 1000. Descriptions, R. R. Brash, p. 16; M. Keane, p. 375; Lord Dunraven, I., p. 102; J. Frost, p. 25; T.J. Westropp, R.S.A.I. 1895. Monuments, several slabs, with defaced Irish inscriptions, lie in the chancel. The ruins are vested as National Monuments. The old Church of this Parish situated in the Valley of Oughtmama about one mile to the south of the Abbey of Corcomroe, is one of the most beautiful specimens of the primitive Irish Churches I have yet seen, though it is described in the Field Name Book of this Parish, p. 42 as in the Gothic style! It consists of nave and choir, like the generality of the old Irish Daimhliags. The nave measures on the inside or in the clear in the length, forty five feet and in breadth twenty one.

The west gable contains a beautiful doorway in the Semi-Cyclopean style, measuring in height six feet six inches, and in breadth two feet six inches at top and three feet at bottom; the thickness of the wall is two feet eleven. The lintel is six feet long, one foot two inches high and extends the entire thickness of the wall. The south wall of the nave contains two round-headed windows exactly like those in the Cathedral at Glendalough. The north wall is featureless and built of enormous stones not laid in regular horizontal courses.

The Choir arch is a beautiful semicircular one and measures ten feet in breadth and eight feet four inches from the present level of the floor to the head of the Capital or stone from which the arch springs.

The choir measures in length twenty one feet, which is equal to the breadth of the nave, and in breadth eighteen feet. The north wall of the choir is nearly perfect and featureless (i.e., contains neither door nor window nor orifice nor ornament of any kind) but the south wall and east gable are nearly destroyed. The side walls of this Church are about sixteen feet high.

Near the doorway in the west gable, in the southwest corner, there is a holy water font of great antiquity in which two strange figures of animals are sculptured.

Within a few paces to the W. of this doorway is a stone in which the top of an arch is formed. It is, in all probability, the top stone of the window which was in the E. gable now destroyed, though now considered a blessed stone and used for superstitious purposes. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL003-032003	Church Name:	Oughtnama
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Oughtnama
Co-ordinates:	207877N 130567E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian		and the second s
Landscape:	Undulating	And Party and
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Pad Stones	works and the first first
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This is the second of three churc ownership and maintained by th thickness 0.74m.		the National Monuments Service h measures 8.7m x 6.6m. Wall
West Wall General Description:	The door is located in the west w Height of door is 1.9m, with a sq		reshold survives in the door opening. ightly narrow at 0.8m.
South Wall General Description:	Contains a single rounded heade	ed window at the eastern	end of the church.
North Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing featu	ures to the North wall.
East Wall General Description:	There are two niches situated in headed window.	the east wall. They are lo	ocated to the south of a central round
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None the church is fully maintain	ned by National Monume	ent Services

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Two other churc	hes and t	the base of a high	cross
Architectural Fragments:	Rounded windov	v head 20	07,843: 130,495
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monum	ient Serv	ices
Climate Effects:	While maintaine	d, minim	al
1 lists w

A second oratory, [CL003-032003], lies 27 feet east from the last, 24 by 15 feet. The west door and east window have semicircular heads. It probably dates from the eleventh century. At the distance of twenty seven feet to the east of this Church, [CL003-032002], there is another of smaller dimensions, and not a Daimhliag but an oratory. It measures twenty four feet in length and fifteen in breadth. The west gable contains a beautiful round-headed doorway measuring in height from the present level of the ground six feet four inches and in breadth two feet six inches at top and two feet eight inches at bottom. The south wall contains a round-headed window which is broad inside and narrow outside and placed at the height of six feet from the ground on the outside, and nearly the same distance from the east gable. The east gable contains a beautiful round-headed window measuring on the outside five feet in height and in breadth five inches at top and six at bottom. The side walls of this Church are about twelve feet in height and two feet six inches at top and six at bottom. The side walls of this Church are about twelve feet in height and two feet six inches in thickness. About one hundred and forty yards to the north of this Church is the pedestal of a Cross.

Monument No.	CL003-032004	Church Name:	Oughtnama
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Oughtnama
Co-ordinates:	207841N 130514E
Orientation:	E/W	The second s
Category:	Early Christian	Main .	STR.
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		naining walls much reduc	mallest. The east gable survives to a red in height. The walls are 0.7 m thick.
West Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing feat	ures on this wall.
South Wall General Description:	The door is in the south wall, sur opening.	rvives at a width of 1.3m.	A threshold was noted in the door
North Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing feat	ures on the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	East wall contains a single windo window opening is 0.76m with a		low is "stepped" so that the actual a niche below the window.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None the church is fully maintain	ned by National Monume	ent Services

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Two other church	ies and t	he base of a high	cross
Architectural Fragments:	Jamb stone 20784	1N 1305	514E
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ents Serv	vice
Climate Effects:	While maintained	, minima	al
History:

A third oratory, [CL003-032004], lies to the north-west of the other churches. Only the east gable remains, with a slit window, with plain splay and semicircular head A short distance to the northeast of this little Church are the ruins of another which was evidently of equal age, characteristics and dimensions, but it is nearly destroyed. The west gable and side walls are nearly level with the ground but the east gable is so far perfect as to retain uninjured its little window, which measures on the outside two feet four inches in height and in breadth five and a half inches at the top and seven inches at the bottom. It looks very primitive.

Monument No.	CL004-015001	Church Name:	Killonaghan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Crarragh
Co-ordinates:	206161N 113113E	100 million (100 million)
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	- this with the	And the second second
Other_Description:	near coast
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		split and leaning. Much c	t gable split over the window. A section of the south and west walls are reduced ness is 0.7m.
West Wall General Description:	There are no features surviving i repair, and much reduced in heig		oted the west wall is in a poor state of
South Wall General Description:	The eastern edge of a window subelow the window. Most of the r		d of the south wall. There is a niche I in height.
North Wall General Description:	As noted in the general descripti	on, the north wall is in po	oor condition and no features survive.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single large window,	width 2m. The internal ke	eystones are missing
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:		ould be costly to preserv	Without maintenance the church will ve what remains. A full detailed record prity.

Graveyard Monument	CL004-015002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The early graveyard The early graveyard are surrounded by	d measu	res 16m x 18m. T	he ex	tension is 27m x	16m ap	oprox. Both grave	yards
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	d rainfal	l will accelerate t	he co	llapse of this wea	akened	church fabric
History:

The original Church of this Parish is said to have been erected by St. Columbkille after his expulsion from Aran by St. Éinné. It is situated in the Townland of Craggagh. Its two gables are in tolerable preservation, but the side walls are much injured. It is forty eight feet long and twenty one broad. The walls built of large stones not laid in regular courses, and two feet three inches in thickness. The doorway was in the north wall but nearly destroyed. The only perfect feature remaining is the window in the east gable which is constructed of cut stone and measures on the inside ten feet in height and six feet six inches in width, and on the outside eight feet in height and eight and a half inches in width. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL004-02801	Church Name:	Crumlin
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Crumlin
Co-ordinates:	204140N 110087E		and the second second
Orientation:	E/W	and the second	and the second
Category:	Mediaeval		ener ALISA
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:	overlooking the coast		THEFT
Access:	Beside Laneway		President constant of States
Condition:	Poor	a company and the	and the second second second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	on high ground looking over the portion of the north wall, the eas Remaining walls are reduced to	sea. Much of the church st gable and a small porti foundation level. The ups
West Wall General Description:			ly ruined to foundation level. A pile of tainly comes from the ruined walls;
South Wall General Description:	Much of the wall is ruined, howe south wall. The window survives		ow survives at the eastern end of the
North Wall General Description:	No features survive, much of the	e wall is ruined.
East Wall General Description:	There is a single window on the output of the second secon	-	n to the south wall window but larger.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	-	s it in little regard. The la	church is deeply worrying suggesting nd owner should be educated and

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	Door jamb stones	204140	I 110087E
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	l will accelerate t	he co	llapse of this wea	kened	church fabric.

In the Townland of Crimlin (Cruimghlin) are the ruins of another old Church of greater antiquity, but much injured by the tooth of time. The east gable however, twenty feet of the south wall and eleven feet of the north wall are standing, but the rest level with the ground. The doorway has disappeared, but it was probably placed in the west gable as could be inferred from the characteristics of the other features which remain. The south wall contains a round-headed window placed at the distance of five feet six inches from the east gable, and five and a third feet from the present level of the ground on the outside, and measuring on the inside six feet in height, and three feet eight inches in width, and on the outside two feet ten inches in height and in breadth (width) four inches at top and six inches at bottom. It is constructed of hammered stones. The east gable contains a window, round-headed like the one last described, but constructed of chiselled stones. It measures on the inside seven feet in height, four feet ten inches in width and is placed at the height of five feet six inches from the present level of the ground. On the outside it measures five feet in height, and in width four inches at top and six inches at bottom. The walls are two feet six inches in thickness and the side walls twelve feet in height. It can be ascertained from the foundations of the west gable still remaining that the Church was thirty three feet ten inches in length and eighteen feet six inches in breadth. It is probable that this was the Church built by St. Columbkille after his expulsion from Aran, and not Killonahan. It appears from the features just described and from the character of the masonry (for the walls are built of large stones, not laid in regular courses, but well grouted with strong mortar) that this Church is one of the primitive ages of Christianity in Ireland. The east window may have been inserted in the 10th century, but all the rest looks very ancient. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL004-057001	Church Name:	Oughtdarra
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Oughtdarra
Co-ordinates:	201713N 110256E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor		States and States
Foundation:	Not Visible	Stronge Land
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This church is extensively overgro & bramble. Access is difficult. Th determined. Wall thickness 0.73	e church is 6.5m wide ar	ns. Overgrowth consists of shrub trees nd length could not be accurately
West Wall General Description:	2m of the west wall survives, cre	ating a corner with the so	outh wall.
South Wall General Description:	Only a 2m length survives into th	e western corner.
North Wall General Description:	Approx 5m of the north wall surv	vives to a height of 2.3m.
East Wall General Description:	Nothing of the East wall survives
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Little survives. A full detailed rec	ord of the surviving rema	ains be carried out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument	CL004-057002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Bullaun Stone, (no	ot located	(1)
Architectural Fragments:	Possible altar stor	າe, 20171	3N 110256E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard wa	s not acc	essible but it beli	eved	to be to the sout	h of the	church.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Minimal as the st	ructure is	nearly totally rui	ned
History:	L

OUGHTDARRA, Sheet 4.—Killilagh Parish. Only a few feet of the walls remain in a graveyard. Founder and age unknown. Possibly the "Wafferig," of 1302, and the Owghtory, of 1584. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Corcomroe

Monument No.	CL005-005001	Church Name:	Fermoyle Chapel
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Fermoyle West		4
Co-ordinates:	206762N 117266E	See.	a ser a
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Penal
Landscape:	Karst Limestone	Contraction of the
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor		Contraction of the second
Foundation:	Not Visible	a state with the
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		is somewhat conjectural 2.3m x 6.3m. The probab	-
West Wall General Description:	A window survives on the west v	vall, width 1.3m.
South Wall General Description:		ici-form layout. The remain	ing south approx 5.5m. This is the ainder of the south wall is tumbled or stones were noted.
North Wall General Description:	2 blocked gothic style windows s	urvive. Height 1.9m, wid	th 1.05m.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall no features survive be proven.	e, although it is possible t	hat a window did exist, but this cannot
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in poor repair. An a be useful. A full detailed record o		ion to determine the foot print would be carried out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Bullaun stone, no	t located	l believed missing
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	No associated gra	veyard.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increas	ed rainfa	III will accelerate t	he co	llapse of this we	akened	church fabric.
History:
						. .

Formoyle Chapel fell into disuse when St. Patrick's Church was built at the western end of the valley in 1870. The walls are now only seven feet high and the Gothic windows have been filled in. Frost explains how Formoyle might be a reference to a rocky meeting place or possibly an assembly. Either could be correct. It was here in 1317 that O'Brien assembled his forces before marching on Corcomroe Abbey. Within the ruined church is a bullaun stone. The wells of Tobar Bhrain and Tobar Lonain are nearby

Monument No.	CL005-027002	Church Name:	Rathborney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Rathborney
Co-ordinates:	204728N 120740E		100
Orientation:	E/W		đi.
Category:	Mediaeval		1
Landscape:	Farmland	The second se
Other_Description:		and see the
Access:	Beside Laneway	4
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	some evidence of cyclopean cor	nstruction. Ivy growth is o built within a rath. The wa	led mullioned east window. There is n the east and west gables, spreading alls and gables are full height. The
West Wall General Description:	There is a possible bell-cote, the	e upper gable is obscured	by ivy growth.
South Wall General Description:	There is an easterly ogee heade lower jambs are missing. A door		ll made in moulded limestone. The irvive.
North Wall General Description:	There are no associated feature	s to the north wall
East Wall General Description:	The east window is carved and s	set out in four panels.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good repair, bu	t would benefit from ivy c	ontrol. On going maintenance.

Graveyard Monument	CL005-027002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well cared for
Related Structures:	Souterrain within w	western	church yard. 204	732: 1	20699
Architectural Fragments:	Two door jambs, 2 A door jamb stone Bullaun stone 204	204320	: 120741
Graveyard General \Description	A large grave yard the west is more o		-	id we	st. The area to th	ie south	n is well maintain	ed. To
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>□</li> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	l will weaken the	fabri	c of this structur	9

RATHBORNEY, Sheet 5. — Parish church, 56 feet 6 inches by 21 feet. A late Gothic building, c. A.D. 1500, except the lower part of the east and north walls for about 5 feet high, which seem early Irish work. The east window richly moulded, divided by a shaft and transom into four lights, with trefoil heads and a flat hood. [109] South window has a single trefoil-headed light. Pointed south door richly moulded, with a broken double-oped stoup in the right jamb. Founder unknown. "Rayth," in 1302. Some trace remains of the rath from which it is named, "the Rath of Burren," it is included in the graveyard. There are some modern crosses of a very archaic type, with square head and arms, and expanding base. The old Church of Rath Bóirné is not many centuries old. It is fifty six feet six inches long and twenty one feet broad. The west contains no feature but a small belfry at the top. The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet six inches from the west gable and measuring on the inside eight feet in height and five feet in breadth, and on the outside seven feet one inch from the present level of the ground to the vertex of the arch, and in breadth where the arch springs three feet eight inches. At the distance of five feet three inches from the east gable there is on this wall a pointed window at the height of four feet two inches from the present level of the ground and measuring on the inside six feet eight inches in height and four feet five inches in breadth, and on the outside four feet seven inches in height and seven and a half inches in breadth, which does not vary. The east gable contains a Gothic window placed at the height of six feet from the present level of the ground on the outside and measuring on the inside eight feet in height and four feet in width, and on the outside seven feet in height and two feet six inches in width. It is divided into four equal divisions by stone mullions. The north wall is featureless. The walls of this Church are three feet ten inches in thickness and the side walls are about twelve feet high. This Church was used at a comparatively recent period. It has a large burial place attached to it. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL005-030002	Church Name:	Rathborney Chapel
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Doontorpa
Co-ordinates:	204955N 121226E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Late-Mediaeval	Section.	-
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible		and the second se
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	the church is orientated EW with There has been extensive re-use	the base "T" extending of the church by a local f , a possible house -now s Il chapel added to the we	22M, width 6.1M. The main body of north / south, at the eastern end. armer. Furthermore, a small structure some what ruined therefore its use estern end of the E/W church.
West Wall General Description:	The west gable has been opened partially blocked and overgrown.		r built small chapel. The opening is on the west wall of the "T".
South Wall General Description:	The south wall contains 3 blocked window in the south gable of the		nes in the EW section. There is a single e north.
North Wall General Description:	The north wall contains a ruined west of the door. There is a large	•	ne "T". There is a ruined window to the north wall of the "T".
East Wall General Description:	The east wall has two windows a	nd an opening into the "I	nouse".
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church has been used in con the east wall. The landowner sho Monument	-	ivity with a cattle-crush built against esponsibilities to a Recorded

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	A rath immediately east
Architectural Fragments:	A large window head,possibly from the church: removed to access the chaple? 204955N 121226E
Graveyard General \Description	There is no associated graveyard
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed:
	High Crosses: Flat: Upright: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increased rainfall will weaken the fabric of this structure.
History:
None Recorded as Rat	hbourney Chapel

CL005-108003	Church Name:	Killeany
Rural
Killeany
200730N 116464E	a second
E/W
Mediaeval
Karst Limestone	Cont of	新山北 省县中
Across Fields	a stall
Fair		CONTROL OF A CONTR
church measures 6.5m wide, 20.6 location and is associated with a immediate environs of the church	5m length. The church is number of other archae h. The choir is 7m in leng	situated in an accessible but remote ological structures within the gth and the main body of the church is
The west wall contains an upper western end of the church.	and lower window. Ther	e are a number of corbels at the
The south wall contains 3 window niche in the south corner.	vs and the door. One wi	indow is in the choir. There is also a
The north wall contains a single s	quare headed window a	it the eastern end.
_	-	r beneath. There is a hood like
by a vertical displacement on the	northern side. The tran
	RuralRuralKilleany200730N 116464EE/WMediaevalKarst LimestoneAcross FieldsFairImmediate environs of the church location and is associated with a immediate environs of the church 12.5m in length. The walls are 1.1The west wall contains an upper western end of the church.The south wall contains 3 window niche in the south corner.The north wall contains a single single mbellishment beneath the windThe door opening is weakened arrow a vertical displacement on the	Rural         Killeany         200730N 116464E         E/W         Mediaeval         Karst Limestone         Across Fields         Fair         This is a two cell church with an internal transept arch, the church measures 6.5m wide, 20.6m length. The church is location and is associated with a number of other archae immediate environs of the church. The choir is 7m in length 2.5m in length. The walls are 1.1m in thickness. The transection and of the church.         The west wall contains an upper and lower window. Ther western end of the church.         The south wall contains 3 windows and the door. One window.

Graveyard Monument	CL005-108004
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Over grown largely	y undistu	ırbed.
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	Door pivot, 20073	ON 1164	64E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard sur somewhat overgro		he church and is o	enclos	ed by a stone bo	oundary	wall. The gravey	ard is
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	$\checkmark$
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	l will weaken the	fabri	c of this structur	е.

KILLEANY, Sheet 5.—Parish church. Nave, 34 feet 6 inches; chancel, 19 feet 2 inches long; and both 19 feet 2 inches wide. The east gable dates c. 1080, with a neatly moulded and splayed semicircular-headed window; the outer head has a draconic ornament. There is a projecting moulding under the window, like that at Manister Kieran, in Aranmore. The altar is extant. The other features of the church date from the fifteenth century, being a large pointed chancel arch, and several windows in the south and west gable; the south door is defaced, but was pointed. There are corbels for a gallery at the west end. In the graveyard, to the south-east, is a remarkable altar, 10 feet 6 inches by 9 feet 6 inches, of large and well-cut blocks, with many rounded "cursing stones." The church is not far from the large stone fort of Cahercloggaun. Founder, St. Enda, of Aran, c. A.D. 500. "Killeny," 1302.Description, O'Hanlon, III., page 915 (illustration), R.S.A.I., 1900. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

The old Church of Killeany is not the original Church erected in St. Eany's time, but one raised on its site about five centuries since. It is in good preservation and divided into nave and choir. The nave measures in length thirty five feet and in breadth twenty one feet. The west gable, which is in good preservation, does not contain a doorway, but a pointed window placed at the height of fourteen feet from the ground and measuring as well as one could guess by looking at it from the ground about two feet six inches in height and ten inches in width. The doorway was placed in the south wall at a distance of ten feet from the west gable, but it is now destroyed. At the distance of three feet east from this doorway there is a pointed window constructed with cut stone placed at the height of eight feet from the present level of the ground on the outside, and measuring on the inside five feet in height and four feet in width, and on the outside two feet eight inches in height and five inches in width. At the distance of five seven to the east of this, there is another window of similar dimensions and characteristics.

The north wall of the nave is featureless. At the distance of eight feet of the west gable there is, within the nave, a modern wall about ten feet high and extending across. It has a doorway on it near the south side. It was probably erected to enclose a family burial place, but no tomb is now observable in the space it shuts in.

The choir arch is a fine one, in good preservation and constructed of cut limestone in the pointed style. It measures twelve feet in breadth and about sixteen feet in height, and three feet eight inches in thickness.

The choir measures in length nineteen feet and in breadth nineteen feet six inches; that is, one foot six inches narrower than the nave. Its south wall contains a pointed window placed at the distance of four feet from the east gable, and six from the present level of the ground on the outside. It measures on the inside four feet six inches in height and three feet in width, and on the outside two feet six inches in height and six inches in width. The east gable, which is in good preservation, contains a round-headed window placed at the height of six feet from the present level of the ground on the outside, and measuring on the inside seven feet in height and three feet eight inches in width, and on the outside five feet in height and five and a half inches in width.

The north wall of the choir contains a quadrangular window placed at the distance of four feet from the east gable, and measuring on the outside two feet in height and six inches in width.

The walls of this Church are four feet three inches thick, and the side walls are about fourteen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL006-023001	Church Name:	Macduagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killhila	1	and the second second
Co-ordinates:	204243N 132883E	Sec.	55 A 6.23
Orientation:	E/W	the second
Category:	Early Christian		and the same
Landscape:	Wooded
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields		Contraction of the second
Condition:	Poor		Mar Sol
Foundation:	Bedrock		11-12-5
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		largely obscured by hazel	l been visited by Dr C Jones, NUI tree scrub. A gable is upstanding, with
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None, maintained by the Nation	al Monument Service

Graveyard Monument	None.
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	Minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	/lonui	ment Service
History:

The tracks of the feet of men, horses and dogs, said to have been impressed in the rock by the miracle of Mac Duagh, are holes of various sizes and shapes naturally worked by water in the surface of the lime-stone flag. These natural impressions, however, are sufficiently remarkable to have suggested the ground-work of the legend about Boher na Mias, which, though a very wild one, is nevertheless not without interest to the antiquary and lover of legendary lore. But if the tracks in the level lime-stone rock be natural and uninteresting to the antiquary, the Hermitage of Mac Duagh and the grave of his servant are not. The little oratory of Mac Duagh in this wild valley, though much dilapidated, is still easily recognised to be a Church of his time. It was very small, and only one gable and one side wall remain. The gable faces the cliff and is featureless, and the side wall contains a small, rude, quadrangular window, measuring on the outside ten inches by five, which looks to the east. This is certainly the original oratory of St. Mac Duagh, ("They built there an oratory surrounded with trees." - Scholiast of Aengus.) and the very one in which Guairé Aidhné, King of Connaught, discovered him when induced him to remove to Kilmacduagh where he built a sumptuous Monastery for him. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL007-003004	Church Name:	Cushacorra
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilkeedy
Co-ordinates:	202365N,136110E
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The site was not visited but it is 1900s.	believed little remains. It	is described as nearly gone in the
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL007-003003
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of any	survivi	ng structure.
History:	L
CUSHACORRA, Sheet	7.—Kilkeedy Parisł	n. Some r	remains of an alle	ged c	onvent. The Chu	rches o	f County Clare by	T.J.

Westropp 1900
Monument No.	CL008-049001	Church Name:	Kilmoon
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmoon West	20
Co-ordinates:	200069N 115021E
Orientation:	E/W	and the second sec
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	+
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible		The second second second second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This church only survives to four wall	ndation level. A priest's ho	use is attached to the former south
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	No comment, however the pries repairs.	t's house is an important s	structure that needs some remedial

Graveyard Monument	CL008-049002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well cared with cu	t grass a	nd paths
Related Structures:	There is a priests house attached to the west of the church.
Architectural Fragments:	Arched Jamb stones 200069N 115021E
Graveyard General \Description	Well attended grav	Well attended graveyard, is mainly to the west and south of the church.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	To the church non	e, the pr	est house will d	eterio	rate at an increa	sed rate	e with greater rai	nfall.
History:

The old Church of St. Mudanus stands in the Townland of Kilmoon west. It measures fifty two feet in length and eighteen in breadth, but all its features are destroyed, so that nothing remains to guide the antiquarian in his conclusions as to its age but the character of the masonry, which looks ancient. There is a stone near it exhibiting a mitred head from which it might perhaps be concluded with some safety that the Patron of this Church was Muadanus, Bishop of Errigal Muadhain, whose day fell on the 30th of August. But this cannot be directly tested, for though there is a Holy Well near the Church, to the west, dedicated to St. Moon at which Stations are still performed, still, no particular day of the year is remembered as that of the Saint's festival.

A short distance to the east of the Church is a standing stone called The Cross, measuring eleven feet six inches in height, thirteen inches in breadth and eight inches in thickness. It was perhaps originally a rude Cross, though it has little appearance at present of its having ever been one. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL008-063001	Church Name:	Killilagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killilagh
Co-ordinates:	197770N 107794E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	1 Antesta	I I
Other_Description:			A CARLENS AND IN
Access:	Beside Laneway	Contraction of the second
Condition:	Good		The states of the
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	the church there is an extension extension appears to have been be taken from a now ruined nea	to the south, which is en a later inclusion, some w rby tower house. The ma	rientated EW. At the western end of itered through a transept arch. This v indow elements are believed to have in church measures 17.3m x 6m. The L- e main church is completely ruined.
West Wall General Description:	West wall contains a small squa survives at the apex of the gable		e gable. The remains of a bell-cote e west wall of the extension.
South Wall General Description:	opening 2m, that leads into the	later extension. The sout ood over. This window w	dow as well as a large transept arch, h wall of the extension contains a as believed to have been removed from ndow robbed out.
North Wall General Description:	There is evidence of a blocked d	oor at the eastern end of	the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	East wall is largely destroyed, th in the extension east wall.	ough the corner survives	to the north. There is a single window
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The south widow of the extension church in need of attention, that		rs. The door also requires repairs. A r repair

Graveyard Monument	CL008-063002
Boundary Wall Type:	Metal
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	n reasonable condition, would benefit from mowing the grass.
Related Structures:	Early grave slab.	Early grave slab.
Architectural Fragments:	Base of water stoc	Base of water stoop, arched door jamb stones, base of font 197770N 107794E
Graveyard General \Description		The graveyard surrounds the church and is contained within a stone boundary wall. Large later mausoleum is built to the south of the church yard boundary wall.
GRAVEYARD	L
MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not know
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	ll will weaken the	fabri	c of this structur	е.

KILLILAGH, Sheet 8.—Parish church, 57 feet 6 inches by 19 feet. A late plain building, probably. 1500. It has a southern side chapel, 17 by 22 feet. The east window is round-headed, and the west gable has a square bell chamber; the west and south walls have several plain, flat-headed and chamfered window slits; the south door is pointed. A beautifully chiselled round arch, with patterns punched on its blocks, leads into the side chapel, which has an ogee-headed light to the east and west, and a double window, with similar heads, to the south; its shaft is gone. Founder, probably St. Lonan, to whom the well is dedicated, c. A.D. 550. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 The old Church of Killilagh stands in good preservation in the Townland to which it has given its name. It measures fifty seven and a half feet long and nineteen in breadth. The west gable contains a small square belfry at the top and a small square window about one foot six inches by eight inches placed at the height of about twelve feet from the ground. The south wall contains a broken doorway placed at the distance of fourteen feet two inches from the west gable. It was constructed of cut stones and pointed, but now so broken that its dimensions could not be given. The same wall contains a quadrangular window placed at the distance of twelve feet ten inches to the east of the doorway and at the height of three feet from the present level of the ground on the outside. It measures on the inside three feet eight inches by two feet five inches and on the outside two feet ten inches by nine inches. In the same wall, very near the east gable, there is a pointed archway measuring - - in height and seven feet six inches in width and constructed of chiselled stones. This archway leads to a small aisle or Chapel, which is seventeen feet in length from north to south and twelve feet two inches in breadth from east to west. It contains two quadrangular windows and a pointed one. The quadrangular ones are places in the side wall facing each other at the distance of five feet from the south wall of the Church and at the height of three feet from the level of the ground outside. They measure on the inside four feet seven inches by two feet ten inches and on the outside three feet five inches by seven inches. The pointed window is placed in the south end at the height of four feet from the ground and measuring on the inside five feet eight inches by four feet six inches, and on the outside four feet six inches in height and one foot two inches in width. This window was divided into two parts by a stone mullion, which is now broken. The east gable of the Church contains a high round-headed window, the bottom of which is five feet from the present level of the ground outside. It measures on the inside about twelve feet in height and five feet six inches in breadth, and on the outside ten feet in height and eight inches in width. The north wall is featureless.

The walls of this Church are three feet six inches in thickness and the side walls are about twelve feet high. They are built of large and small stones.

This Church is situated in a large graveyard. It is decidedly not many centuries old. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL008-072001	Church Name:	Toomullin
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Toomullin
Co-ordinates:	197048N 108379E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval		AA
Landscape:	Farmland	Ser Proverse	A CONTRACTOR OF A CONTRACTOR
Other_Description:			ALA'S
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Dangerous
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	and is extremely dangerous. Th church appears to have two we because a priest apartment was dimensions are 16m x 6.1m. Th	e majority of the north wa st gables, one in body of t attached at a later stage e wall thickness is 0.75m.	on. The doorway has been robbed out all is ruined to foundation level. The he church and one at the end. This is to the smaller church. The overall The original church was circa 11m in n and cannot be accessed with any
West Wall General Description:	original wall of the church and a has an upper and lower door ar provided access to a small choir access at ground level to the ch	As noted before, there are two west gables. The internal west gable comprises of two walls, the original wall of the church and a second wall which was built against it for the priests. This wall has an upper and lower door and an upper window - over door. The upper door appears to have provided access to a small choir stall in the church, while the lower door allowed the priests access at ground level to the church. There are corbels on both sides of this gable. The West gable of the priests house contains a single window. While no evidence survives, a belfry existed
South Wall General Description:	Contains a ruined door and a w	indow in the priest's hous	e section.
North Wall General Description:	Largely ruined, it is only upstand north door survives. There is a r	-	ternal" west gable. No evidence of a h wall of the priest's house.
East Wall General Description:	Contains one large single windo repair.	ow, hooded to the externa	I. The window is in a poor state of

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in p attention. Clearin	-			-		oor requires urge	nt
Graveyard Monument	CL008-072002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard no	o longer ex	xists, it was remo	ved ir	n the 1980's.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increas	sed rainfa	ll will increase the	e risk	of serious deteri	oratior	, including the d	oor
History:

In the Townland of Tuamullin [1] in this Parish there is another Church of greater antiquity, measuring in length as it stands at present forty three feet and in breadth seventeen feet six inches. Originally however, it was only thirty three feet four inches in length for there was a small addition nine feet eight inches built out of the west gable. The original west gable contained no feature but a small belfry placed on its top, but after the erection of the small addition or apartment just mentioned a pointed doorway was broken into it close to the south wall.

The original part of this Church had two doorways placed opposite each other, one in the north and the other in the south wall at the distance of two feet from the original west gable, but they are now reduced to formless features (breaches). At the distance of five feet from the east gable there is a round headed window at the height of four feet from the ground outside and measuring on the inside six feet by three feet nine inches and on the outside four feet by five and a half inches. The east gable contains a neat window, wide and round on the inside and narrow and pointed on the outside. It measures on the inside seven feet in height and three feet eight inches in width, and on the outside (where it is seven feet from the present level of the ground) four feet in height and seven inches in width. The north wall is featureless.

The modern apartment added to the west gable contains three windows, but they are too modern to merit particular description. There is another small Church in the Townland of Oghtdara.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. TOOMULLIN, Sheet 8.—Killilagh Parish. A late church, probably c. 1480, 33 feet by 17 feet 6 inches. The east window has a single light, with a trefoil head, and triquetras in the spandrels of the outer face. There is a bell chamber on the west gable, and outside it a priest's room, with a pointed door. Founder, possibly Brecan, to whom the well is dedicated, The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Corcomroe

Monument No.	CL009-024	Church Name:	Kilcolmanbarra
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Poulnaskagh
Co-ordinates:	199599N,122166E
Orientation:
Category:		A Statistics	The state of the second second
Landscape:	Scrub		A CALL AND A
Other_Description:			A THE REAL
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		95 - L / O
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	Nothing to record.	-
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Monument       Boundary Wall Type:       Boundary Wall       Description:       Extension Location:       Graveyard Gen.       Discussion/Appraisal:
Boundary Wall Description: Extension Location: Graveyard Gen.
Description: Extension Location: Graveyard Gen.
Graveyard Gen.
Related Structures: none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects: none
History:

It is said that this is not the original Church of Kilcorney, for the site of a more ancient one is shewn a short distance to (adjoining it on) the west of it. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL009-028002	Church Name:	Kilcorney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcorney Glebe
Co-ordinates:	199544N 122456E
Orientation:	E/W	Sec. 1	3.3.8
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second
Landscape:	Karst Limestone		and the second second
Other_Description:		J.S.
Access:	Beside Public Road	4	Contraction of the second
Condition:	Good	and the	A CONTRACTOR
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	reduced. The north wall at the w	estern end is also reduce There is considerable ivy vall-build and the wall is inth survived along the n
West Wall General Description:	Little of the west wall survives. T	here were no features to	record.
South Wall General Description:	The remains of a door and a wind	dow survive in the south	wall. Both are largely ruined.
North Wall General Description:	Is largely ruined.
East Wall General Description:	Survives to a height of 1m, there	were no features to reco	ord.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is much ruined, howe cut back.	ever basic maintenance v	vill keep it reasonable order. The ivy to

Graveyard Monument	CL009-028003
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard surrounds the church but is located mainly to the south.
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	Base of piscina, 199544N 122456E finial, 199544N 122456E Door jamb stones 199544N 122456E Door jamb stone 199548N 122475E corbel, 199544N 122456E Arch stone, 199549N 122460E Memorial head stone 199546N 122476E
Graveyard General \Description	Churchyard is well	maintai	ned and kept in a	tidy r	nanner.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>□</li> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	d rainfal	ll will increase the	e rate	of deterioration	of this	structure
History:	L

The old Church of Kilcorney (which is now in a state of great dilapidation) consisted of nave and choir, the former measuring thirty nine feet in length and twenty in breadth, and the latter sixteen feet ten inches square. All its features are destroyed and the only part remaining is the north wall which is perfect but featureless, and the south wall excepting fifteen of the west side.

It is said that this is not the original Church of Kilcorney, for the site of a more ancient one is shewn a short distance to (adjoining it on) the west of it. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. KILCORNEY, Sheet 9.—Parish church. Nave, 39 by 20 feet; and chancel, 16 feet 10 inches square. It is much defaced, and has fine old masonry, probably of the tenth century, and fragments of a decorated south door, and an east window of c. 1080; the head of the window has a human face and rich foliage, and is curiously recessed. There is a plain late font. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Burren

Monument No.	CL009-059007	Church Name:	Kilrameen
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Caherminnaun West
Co-ordinates:	194707N 119765E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second se
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:			Carl Contract of Contract
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives. However, an	n elevated circular enclosu	re encloses the site of the church.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL009-059008
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	enclosure, within a	a known	area of archaeolo	ogical	importance.
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	There appears to b graveyard.	be a circu	ılar enclosed area	i, rou	ghly 30m in diam	eter, w	hich was used as	а
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

The site of an old Church and burying ground lie in the Townland of Caherminane and within the Caher. They call this place Cill-Cháinin, at the same time they don't believe it to have been a Church at all. There is a holy well near this place called after Saint Cainin, at which Stations were formerly performed, but now almost given up. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL009-059023	Church Name:	Noughaval
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Noughaval
Co-ordinates:	196721N 120851E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second se
Condition:	Ivy Covered
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	is also extensive ivy growth on th	ne north & east walls and is considerable vegetativ nave is 16m x 6.3m while	ith ivy, the west gable is ruined, there part of the transept arch. Within the growth. The church is divided into the choir is 8.4 x 6m. They are
West Wall General Description:	West gable is missing and now e	xists as a grass covered t	umble.
South Wall General Description:			ellishments over and a mullion type There is evidence of an additional
North Wall General Description:	No distinguishing features.
East Wall General Description:	East wall contains a single windo memorial plaque.	w, this window has been	altered to accommodate an external
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Most of the church is upstanding evaluated for condition	g. The ivy growth is heavy	v. Ivy to be cut back,then the structure

Graveyard Monument	CL009-059024
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	well maintained with a	well cared for	appearance
Related Structures:	High cross 196728N 12 2 window jamb stones window jamb stone, 1 cut dressed stone, 196	, 196767N 120 96726N 12083	7E
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard surrour	ds the church	with the maj	ority to the soul	h and e:	ast.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest To Flat:	mbs: 🖌	Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increased ra	in fall will acce	lerate deter	ioration of wea	kened a	spects of this chu	ırch

The old Church of Noughaval, called in Irish Teampull na h- Uachomhbhala, consists of nave and choir, the former measuring in length fifty three feet and twenty one feet six inches in breadth, and the latter twenty eight feet in length and twenty feet nine inches in breadth. The west gable is down except a few feet. The south wall contains a pointed doorway (placed near the west gable) which is curiously ornamented at top, and a square window divided into five parts by stone mullions. The choir arch is perfectly semi-circular and measures ten feet ten inches in breadth and of proportionate height. It is built of well cut limestone. The south wall of the choir contains a semi-circular window measuring on the outside about six feet in height and eight inches in breadth, and between this and the east there is a small window or aperture about three inches in breadth and three feet in height. The east gable there contains a round-headed window, measuring on the outside about eight feet in height and eight inches in breadth. Under this window on the inside there is a broken stone altar. Thickness of walls, three feet three inches. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL009-059027	Church Name:	Noughaval (Oratory)
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Noughaval
Co-ordinates:	196736N 120837E	-
Orientation:	E/W		Contraction of the second s
Category:	Late-Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good	A CONTRACTOR OF
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:			ee history] within the same churchyard. Jurch is 6m long x 3.6m wide. Wall
West Wall General Description:	Contains no features.
South Wall General Description:	Contains a blocked window and a this may be the remains of a port		ting foundations either side of the door,
North Wall General Description:	There are no distinguishing featu	ires.
East Wall General Description:	East gable contains a small wind	ow.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The walls are upstanding and ver	rtical. Continued mainter	nance will conserve this structure.

Graveyard Monument	CL009-059024
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	well maintained wi	ith a wel	ll cared for appea	rance
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	2 window jamb sto window jamb ston	High cross 196728N 120836E 2 window jamb stones, 196767N 120635E window jamb stone, 196726N 120837E cut dressed stone, 196739N 120821E
Graveyard General \Description	Stone wall in good	conditio	on with no extens	ion.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	<ul><li>□</li><li>✓</li></ul>	Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	d rainfal	ll will accelerate	deteri	oration of weak	en aspe	ects of this church
History:

A few yards from the northeast angle of this Church there is a small stone-roofed Chapel measuring twenty feet in length and twelve in breadth and containing a pointed doorway and two windows, but not worth particular description. The following inscription appears on a stone placed over the doorway:- "This Chapel was built by James Davoren of Lisdoonvarna, who died the 31st of July 1725, aged 59 years." Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL009-075001	Church Name:	Carran
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Carran
Co-ordinates:	197380N 123988E
Orientation:	E/W	-	A
Category:	Mediaeval		A The second sec
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:		a stand	AND THE ALL SHE ALL
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Pad Stones	学校教育 计面积的
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	the east gable. The central windo	ow of the south wall is da	vever there was some ivy growth on amaged. Inside of the church contains a Il thickness is substantial at 1.05m.
West Wall General Description:	The west wall has a number of co idea of a second floor at this end		nere was an upper floor supporting the
South Wall General Description:		sons mark appears on a d dow survives above the r	-
North Wall General Description:		t suggests that at one tim corner also has the rema
East Wall General Description:		suggest that the lower pa	al stone set in, approx 2/3 above the art of this window was divided by a
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The general condition of this chu The ivy should be tightly cut bac		pairs to the matriculation are required. windows.

Graveyard Monument	CL009-075002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained w	vith grass	s mown
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	Window sill stone	e, 197768	3N 1207791E
Graveyard General \Description	Graveyard is well i	maintain	ed and surrounds	the c	church mainly to	the sou	ith.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:	$\checkmark$
Owner:	Clare County Cour	ncil, Cont	act: John Connol	e c/o	Carron Post Offic	ce 091 6	37487
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase church structure	ed rainfa	ll will accelerate d	leterio	oration of any w	eakeneo	d areas within the	)

The old Church of Carn is situated in a Townland of the same name about six miles to the northwest of Corofin. It measures in the clear fifty six feet ten inches in length and twenty feet eight inches in breadth. The west gable contains no feature but a broken belfry on its top. The south contains a pointed doorway six feet ten inches in height and three feet eight inches in width, and two windows, one of which is pointed, but the other is so broken at the top that its characteristics cannot be ascertained, but nothing is surer than that it also was pointed. The east gable contains a pointed window broad inside and narrow outside. It measures on the inside fourteen feet in height and six feet four inches in width, and on the outside ten feet in height and six inches wide, and at two-thirds of its height a small stone extends across but for what purpose cannot be easily determined.

A broken stone altar remains under this window and on its left corner a Holy Water Font of curious formation.

In the north wall not far from the east gable are inserted in the wall (from which they project a little) three heads, two of males and one of a female.

The walls of this Church are three feet six inches thick and about fourteen feet high. This Church is of the fifteenth century. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. CARRAN, Sheet 9.—Parish church, 56 by 20 feet. A late building of c. 1500. There remain an east window, a single pointed slit, two south windows (one defaced, one with ogee head), a richly moulded, pointed south door, with a stoup in the right jamb; also three corbels at the east end of the north wall, which are carved with the faces of a king, a woman, and a warrior. The altar remains. The west gable had a bell chamber, and there is a machicolation at the north-west corner. South of the church is a small cairn, round which coffins are carried, and which probably gives the place its name. Founder unknown. "Carne, The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL010-011	Church Name:	Teampull a Chairn
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Carran
Co-ordinates:	198833N,127434E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

This Parish is now called in Irish Paráiste an Chairn and the old Church Teampull a Chairn, i.e., the Parish and Church of Carn, or the Sepulchral Heap, and yet there is no cairn near the old Church at least in the same Townland with it. The nearest cairn to the old Church of this Parish is about one mile to the west of it, and in the Townland of Ballydoory; but whether the Parish was originally called after this or from some other now destroyed, which stood nearer the old Church, is a question that cannot be easily answered. Nothing, however, is more certain than that Teampull a Chairn, the present name of the old Church means the Church of the Cairn. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL010-021002	Church Name:	Templecronan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Temon		10/2023
Co-ordinates:	199993N,128884E	CAR WEAT	and the second second
Orientation:	E/W	and the second
Category:	Early Christian	and the second
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:			A DE DOMEST
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Good
Foundation:		1	The State of the second se
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		ables survive to their ori	square headed west door is blocked. It ginal height. There are numerous
West Wall General Description:	Square headed door, now blocke	ed.
South Wall General Description:	no features
North Wall General Description:	Has a later semi-pointed door wi	th a carved head over.
East Wall General Description:	Inclined lintelled window with ro	ound internal head.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	In excellent condition, and main	tained by the National M	onument Service.

Graveyard Monument	010-021003
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Cared for.
Related Structures:	Base and part of searly graves, mad		-			ds and	animals. There a	re two
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There are two inc	lined slat	) burials, [miniatu	ire ora	atory-like appear	ance].
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monum	ents Serv	ice
Climate Effects:	minimal while m	aintained	by the National N	/Ionui	ment Service

On the lands of Termon in this Parish stands a small Church in beautiful preservation which is nearly as old as Christianity in Ireland. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839.

TERMON CRONAN, Carran Parish, 21 feet 10 inches by 12 feet 10 inches. A most venerable oratory in excellent preservation. The east window has inclined jambs and lintels; lines of roundels are cut in each jamb. The west door is also lintelled, and has inclined jambs; several corbels carved with heads project from the gable. The north door is late and pointed. In the graveyard are two curious tombs of two slabs pitched together, with end pieces similar to those at Slane, Co. Meath. The base and shaft of a plain cross stand on the ridge to the north-west. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

It is called the Church of Termon and dedicated to St. Cronan, (who is probably Cronan of Roscrea) after whom it is generally called in Irish Teampull Chrónáin. It is a small Ernuidhe or Oratory, measuring in length on the inside twenty one feet and in breadth twelve feet nine and a half inches. The south wall, which is built of large stones, is featureless, but the north contains a pointed doorway which was inserted about four centuries since.

The west gable contains a semi-cyclopean doorway measuring in height from the present level of the ground five feet six inches, and in breadth one foot eleven inches at top and two feet five inches at bottom. The lintel which traverses this doorway at the top is five feet long and seven inches high. The modern doorway (which was broken on the north wall when the doorway in the west gable was built up) is five feet five inches in height from the present level of the ground, and three feet four inches in width at the spring of the arch. The east gable contains a window which presents all the features of primeval times. It is quadrangular on the inside and perfectly round-headed on the outside. It measures on the inside four feet seven inches in height and in breadth at top one foot eight and a half inches and at bottom two feet five inches. On the outside it is one foot nine inches in height and in breadth five inches at top and six inches at the bottom. The side walls are eight feet high.

There are curious human heads done in stone projecting from the west gable on the outside, which Mr. Wakeman should sketch.

In the Church Yard there are two Cumdachs for bones, said to have been formed by St. Cronan. They are formed of large flagstones so placed as to meet at top like the roof of a Church.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. TERMON CRONAN, Sheet 10.—Carran Parish, 21 feet 10 inches by 12 feet 10 inches. A most venerable oratory in excellent preservation. The east window has inclined jambs and lintels; lines of roundels are cut in each jamb. The west door is also lintelled, and has inclined jambs; several corbels carved with heads project from the gable. The north door is late and pointed. In the graveyard are two curious tombs of two slabs pitched together, with end pieces similar to those at Slane, Co. Meath. The base and shaft of a plain cross stand on the ridge to the north-west. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL010-038002	Church Name:	St Columbkill's
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Glencolumbkille South
Co-ordinates:	199230N,131890E
Orientation:	E/W	Manual and a second	All Bar and a state of the
Category:	Mediaeval	14	Alle and
Landscape:	Karst Limestone	1.1	AAR A AND A AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND
Other_Description:		A DECEMBER OF
Access:	Beside Laneway		and the second sec
Condition:	Fair	and the second	and the second s
Foundation:	Not Visible	Contraction Contraction	AND
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This church is largely ruined, wit	h the part of the south a	nd east gable surviving.
West Wall General Description:	nothing survives
South Wall General Description:	A small section at the eastern er	nd survives
North Wall General Description:	nothing survives
East Wall General Description:	Most of the east gable survives,	with the window evident	t, there is no head.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This church is in a fair / poor state evaluation. A full detailed record	-	_

Graveyard Monument	CL010-038003
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	the graveyard is n	naintaine	ed.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	door jamb stone,	1992301	N,131890E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is a	round th	ne church.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:	✓	Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rair	fall will accelerat	e det	terioration of th	e struct	ure.
History:
In this Parish is situate	ed the beautiful Val	llev of G	encolumbkille in	whic	h there is an Old	Church	dedicated to St

Columbkille, about five centuries old. It is all destroyed except the east gable and south wall; the former having a broken Gothic window and the latter a pointed doorway from which the antiquarian may easily draw his inference respecting the age of the present walls. It is probable, however, that this Church occupies the site of a primitive one erected by the great Thaumaturgus himself.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL010-087002	Church Name:	Templeline
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballyline(Carran)
Co-ordinates:	195987N,125964E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian	An aller	CT - Alexandre
Landscape:	Karst Limestone		and the second second
Other_Description:			PRE-
Access:	Across Fields	00
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock	A Antest World
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The church is largely ruined with walls are covered with grass gro		rts of the remaining walls surviving. The by 4.7m.
West Wall General Description:	Survives at foundation level, wit	h collapse over
South Wall General Description:	Some stone work survives either stone.	side of the door, which	has a square head from a massive lintel
North Wall General Description:	Survives at foundation level, wit	h collapse over
East Wall General Description:	Survives at foundation level, wit	h collapse over
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This church is ruined and little su remains be carried out as a prior		full detailed record of the surviving

Graveyard Monument	CL010-087003
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	over grown grass a	and wall t	tumble.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none that could be	e seen
Graveyard General \Description	A circular enclosed	l area c.3	0m diameter.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ □
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

TEMPLELINE, Sheet 10.—Carran Parish. A rudely built late church, all the features destroyed. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL010-108002	Church Name:	Templepatrick
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Poulnalour
Co-ordinates:	195776N130781E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	Totally ruined to foundation lev	el.
West Wall
General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL010-108003
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

TEMPLEPATRICK (CORREEN), Sheet 10.—Kilnaboy Parish. The foundations of a small oratory, and detached priest's house in the "battle-field" at the foot of the hill at the entrance to Glenquin (Glencaoine), and below the stone fort of Cahermore, (Lackareagh). To the west is the "well" of St. Patrick, a basin in a low ledge of rock. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL011-003001	Church Name:	Kiltacky
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kiltacky More	EXAMIN
Co-ordinates:	199466N,136178E
Orientation:	E/W		a deline and
Category:	Mediaeval	and the state	- Contraction of
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	Little of this church survives. The measures 9M by 5.3M	e ruined east gable and th	he lines of foundations. The church
West Wall General Description:	nothing survives to record
South Wall General Description:	nothing survives to record
North Wall General Description:	nothing survives to record
East Wall General Description:	Enough of the east gable survive	es to preserve a window v	with a square head.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is largely ruined. A fupriority	ull detailed record of the	surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	CL011-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The surviving grave	eyard is l	argely recent bur	ials.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of the	e structi	ure.
History:	L

In this Parish is situated the old Church of Kill-Taice, which appears to be of the primitive ages, but all its features are destroyed so that nothing remains to the antiquarian to determine its age but the character of the masonry, which certainly looks very old. It would appear from a holy well near this Church that it was built by or dedicated to St. Inneeboy, a celebrated Dalcassian Virgin, the Patron of Killineeboy, whose memory was celebrated there on the 29th December and to whom many wells throughout this County are sacred. Does her name occur in the Calendar of the O'Clery's? Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL011-011	Church Name:	Kylecreen
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kylecreen
Co-ordinates:	197217N,136756E
Orientation:
Category:	Penal
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	Not visited, access too difficult a	and the landowner was un	derstood not to be well.
West Wall
General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	not known
Graveyard General \Description	not visited
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	not known
History:
None

	Church Name:	Kilkeedy
Rural
Cross (Kilkeedy)	and the second
194612N,137198E
E/W	S. States
Mediaeval	AL INT	STRANG BERNE
Farmland	(Charles and Charles and Charl	N. A. Martin
	A CONTRACT OF A CONTRACT
Beside Laneway		1.00
Fair
	10 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1	Party and Sta
Dressed Rubble
6.1M, while the chapel/priest's h	ouse is 5.7M by 4.8M. Th	ne walls are 0.76m thickness. The east
-
An easterly window survives
The priests house is attached, wi	th a connecting small tra	nsept arch / doo opening.
Double ogee window centrally lo priests house, with corbels	ocated in old part of churc	ch. A single window to the east wall of so the condition of the church ca	in be examined. The east
	Cross (Kilkeedy) 94612N,137198E //W Aediaeval armland esside Laneway air Dressed Rubble the church is "L" shaped with a p 5.1M, while the chapel/priest's h vindow has a double ogee window he old church has no west gable igh window. This confirms there are asterly window survives the priests house is attached, wi bouble ogee window centrally loopriests house, with corbels There is considerable evidence of o the condition of the church cat	iross (Kilkeedy) 94612N,137198E /W Aediaeval armland beside Laneway air Dressed Rubble the church is "L" shaped with a priest house attached to the AIM, while the chapel/priest's house is 5.7M by 4.8M. The vindow has a double ogee window. West gable is gone. The the old church has no west gable surviving; however, the he old church has no west gable surviving; however, the high window. This confirms there was an upper floor, indi- an easterly window survives the priests house is attached, with a connecting small trans- Double ogee window centrally located in old part of church
Graveyard Monument	CL011-022004
---	--------------------	------------	---------------------	-------	-------------------	---------	--------------	---
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard	is aroun	d the church. An	exten	sion to the south
GRAVEYARD								✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of the	structi	ure.

The name of this Parish is written Cill Chaeide by the Four Masters, and Colgan understands it to mean Cill Chaoidhe, i.e., the Church of St. Keedy or Kedda or Ketta, of whom however, he has not been able to collect anything satisfactory. Nothing is remembered about him in his own Parish but that he lived at a very early age and that his festival was annually celebrated at his Church on the 3rd day of March, which is called Lá Fheil' Caoidhe. Is there any Saint of his name or like his name mentioned in the Irish Calendars or by Colgan under this day? Perhaps Colgan gives a life of him? I have at present only a mere reference to his Church at Cill Chaoide.

The present Church of Kilkeedy is by no means to be considered the primitive one, but one erected on its site about five centuries since. It consists of two parts, a Church of considerable size, and a small Chapel erected against it on the north side. The larger part of this Church extends east and west and measures about sixty feet in length and twenty in breadth. The west gable is level with the ground, but the east gable and side walls are in tolerable preservation. The east gable contains a gothic window of considerable size and neatness and the south wall a round-headed but decidedly modern one about three feet five inches in height on the outside and about four inches wide. There is a Holy Water Font placed on the middle of the floor of this Church, but this is not its original position.

The small Chapel attached to this Church is perhaps two centuries more modern than the larger part. It is nineteen feet by sixteen, and contains several windows which are not sufficiently interesting to be minutely described. It had obviously a loft as appears from the position of the windows and stones jutting from the walls for the support of joists. A stone inserted in the north wall of it exhibits this inscription, from which we learn that it was built by the family of O'Maolai : "17. I. H. S. - 06. This tumbe is made by Fa. Con Mullan, for him and his family in his ancestors' Chapel, to whom, God be merciful." On a more modern tomb near it the name is spelled Mylan. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILKEEDY, Sheet 11.—Parish church, 60 feet by 20 feet. The east window is well executed; two broad ogee-headed lights (the shaft intact), with a well-cut semicircular head to the splay; its north jamb is ancient, probably of the late twelfth century; the rest of the building probably after 1500. Small "priest's dwelling," 19 feet by 16 feet, lies to the north. The font has a spiral fluting. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Inchiquin.

CL015-059002	Church Name:	Killaspughlonan
Rural
Killaspughlonan		8 9790e
190344N 109680E		Mr. Man
		Carlos of the second
Farmland	15 4 4 4 4 A	attless on Little & Lasta Last of Sugar Sugar
	- In-	H Le
Beside Public Road	as the second	Contraction of the second
No church exists.
none
	Rural   Killaspughlonan   190344N 109680E   Farmland   Beside Public Road   Image: State of the exists of the exist of the ex	Rural   Killaspughlonan   190344N 109680E   Farmland   Beside Public Road   No church exists.

Graveyard Monument	CL015-059002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard slop cared for.	es steep	oly so strimming i	s best	. Grass is cut bac	k at int	ervals, while grav	es are
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	In good condition.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

KILLASPUGLONAN, Sheet 15.—Parish church. Totally levelled before 1839. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL015-083001	Church Name:	Kilmacreehy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Laghcloon	_
Co-ordinates:	188945N 107584E
Orientation:	EW
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway	The second second	No. of the second second
Condition:	Good		and and the second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	the earliest portion of the church it is later medieval, circa 15th ce construction is very large stones transept arch, creating a nave ar within this church. Overall lengt	n. A small porch addition ntury. Further confirmation in the western end of the od choir. Considerable add n of the church is 23.2m, idth. Choir is 5.4m in widt	e church. The church is divided with a ditions and alternations have occurred the naves measures 12.1m and is 6.8m th. Length of the choir is circa 11m.
West Wall General Description:	No features on the west wall. W	hich is much reduced in h	eight.
South Wall General Description:	completely collapsed. There is a	double niche in the south e transept wall. Projectin	contains a smaller ambry which is now n east corner. A projecting stone shelf g from the south wall is a small porch
North Wall General Description:		, ,	wall, in the choir section. Internally imestone over in the Ogee style.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large double mullion east wall of the porch contains a		yle, with an external hood over. The window.

A church of considerable interest, worthy of proper maintenance. A survey of damaged features and an architectural survey.
CL015-083002
Stone
Good
West
The old graveyard is extensively used and it is expected the extension will be used mainly in the future.
none
none
Graveyard surrounds the church and is mainly to the south and east. An extension graveyard has been built to the west of the church, separated by the access lane.
Vault: Chast Tambe: Mausoloum: Uninceribad:
High Crosses: 🗌 Flat: 🗹 Upright: 🗹 Pedestal: 🗹
Contact: Bride Leyden, Cree, Kilrush 065 9059025
Predicted increased rainfall will accelerate deterioration of weaken building fabric. Rising sea levels could impact in the future.

The ruined Church of Mac Crithe stands on the north edge of the Bay of Liscannor, in the Townland of Leathchluain, and consists of nave and choir; the former, thirty nine feet seven inches long and twenty two feet five inches broad, the latter thirty five feet long and sixteen feet eleven inches broad; the walls in good preservation and two feet ten inches in thickness. The west gable has a broken belfry on its top. There is a pointed doorway in the south side at the distance of seven and a half feet from west gable, and measuring five feet eleven inches in height and three and a half feet in breadth. There is a square headed window a little to the east of the door, measuring four feet two inches in height and four inches in breadth on the inside and two feet nine inches in breadth and four inches in breadth on the outside. The choir arch is a pointed one measuring thirteen feet nine inches in breadth and about eighteen feet in height, built of plain stones intermixed with a few cut ones apparently of an older date than the building. There is a window in the south wall of the choir, at the distance of seventeen feet from the middle gable, six feet high and two feet nine inches wide on the inside, the arch formed of three cut stones hexagonally fashioned; three feet six inches in height and six inches in breadth on the outside, the arch semicircular, and the sides partly broken.

There is another smaller window or rather loophole between this and the east gable, but so much broken that its architectural features cannot be ascertained. Between these two windows is a pointed niche in the wall, built of very well cut stones, measuring seven feet seven inches in height, and five feet one inch in breadth. This is surmounted by a head in stone dressed in a flat cap. There is a window in the east gable measuring eight feet nine inches in height, and four feet six inches in breadth on the inside, where it is semicircular at top, five feet eleven inches in height and one foot five inches wide on the outside, where it is divided into two curvilineally pointed compartments by a mullion. There is a niche in the north wall near this gable and opposite the niche on the south side, all in the pointed style but differing from the other somewhat in the design, measuring eight feet six inches in height and six feet six inches in breadth, surmounted by a mitred head. At the bottom of this niche is a stone extending from side to side of it, having an inscription in characters very new to me, and from this circumstance and the uncertainty of several of the letters occasioned by the action of the weather and other causes, beyond my power to copy with certainty. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILMACREEHY, Sheet 15.—Parish church, nave and chancel, 40 feet by 22 feet 6 inches, and 35 by 17 feet. It is built of flagstones, but part of the north wall is of large, early masonry, the rest being of the late fifteenth century. The east window has two ogee headed lights, the shaft entire; the splay has a neatly built semicircular head. Traces of the altar remain. In the north wall is a tomb of very late decorated Gothic, with a mitred head, at the apex of the arch, two trefoil-headed arches, and a quatrefoil. There was a somewhat similar monument, with twisted columns, on the south side, but it has fallen. The chancel arch is rude and pointed, 13 feet 9 inches wide. The south porch has two plain pointed doors; there was a bell chamber on the west gable. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Corcomroe.

Monument No.	CL015-094001	Church Name:	Kilmanheen
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Lissatunna
Co-ordinates:	188,846N111532E	and the second se	and the second sec
Orientation:		and the second	A REAL PROPERTY AND ADDRESS OF
Category:		States	And the second sec
Landscape:	Farmland		all all and a second se
Other_Description:
Access:	Difficult Access		A CONTRACTOR AND A CONTRACTOR
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:		States of the second states of the	and the second sec
Masonry:
General Description:	Only an enclosure survives
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	None
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	an enclosure
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	None
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	Not known
Climate Effects:	None as nothing s	survives
History:	L

Of the Church of Saint Mainchin (which stood in the Townland of Kilmanaheen about a mile and a half to the west of the Town of Inisdimon) not a stone now remains above another, but its graveyard is still in use. There is no Holy Well nor other monument of this Saint now in existence in the Parish, nor anything from which it could be inferred that he was the Patron except the name of the Parish. There are some small burial places for children interspersed throughout this Parish as, Kylduff, a Townland of same name; Lis-Callooragh in the Townland of Callooragh; Kilcornaun in the Townland of that name. It would appear from the name of this burial place, Cill-Chornain, the Church of St. Cornan, that there was a primitive Irish Church at it, but nothing remains on the ground to throw any light on this supposition. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL015-103001	Church Name:	Kilmanaheen
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Ennistymon
Co-ordinates:	188313N 113216E
Orientation:	EW	J.	and the second sec
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Undulating		A LAND THE REAL PROPERTY OF
Other_Description:			The second secon
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	that it is of modern construction the layout of the church is at var	. This is confirmed in the iance with most medieva	full height, style and conditions suggest history as being built in 1778. Hence al churches. Church measures 14.2 x le height is 7.5m. Some ivy growth to
West Wall General Description:	Contains a door with a small win	dow over, high in the ga	ble.
South Wall General Description:	Contains no features unusually.
North Wall General Description:	Contains 3 large windows, space	d roughly equi-distant to	each other along the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large 2.45m wide, hei	ght 4m.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good condition, structure maintained	however ivy growth has	begun. The ivy to controlled and the

Graveyard Monument	CL015-103002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Large and extensiv	e well m	aintained gravey	ard
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There is large and ground. There are in good condition.				•			and
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	d rainfal	l will accelerate t	he we	eakening of the s	tructure	2.
History:

Of the Church of Saint Mainchin (which stood in the Townland of Kilmanaheen about a mile and a half to the west of the Town of Inisdimon) not a stone now remains above another, but its graveyard is still in use. There is no Holy Well nor other monument of this Saint now in existence in the Parish, nor anything from which it could be inferred that he was the Patron except the name of the Parish. There are some small burial places for children interspersed throughout this Parish as, Kylduff, a Townland of same name; Lis-Callooragh in the Townland of Callooragh; Kilcornaun in the Townland of that name. It would appear from the name of this burial place, Cill-Chornain, the Church of St. Cornan, that there was a primitive Irish Church at it, but nothing remains on the ground to throw any light on this supposition. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL016-012001	Church Name:	Kilcarragh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcarragh	and the second state of the second
Co-ordinates:	193910N 117840E
Orientation:	EW	1994 - 1997 - 1997
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:			- Janetter
Access:	Across Fields	and and	A STATISTICS
Condition:	Poor	a Bernard	the second second
Foundation:	Not Visible		and the second sec
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	little of the original structure sur east wall are virtually non existe	viving. Approx 5m of the nt and survive as tumble	rch is almost totally ruined, with very south wall survives. The west wall and or part of a boundary wall respectively. If a grave marker inside the church.
West Wall General Description:	Exists as a grass covered linear fo	eature.
South Wall General Description:	Circa 5m of this wall survives to	a height of 2m.
North Wall General Description:	Little survives of the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	Appears to have become part of therefore difficult to define.	a field boundary wall and	d has been extensively altered and is
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is almost totally ruin as a priority	ed. A full detailed record	of the surviving remains be carried out

Graveyard Monument	CL016-012002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	No evidence of th detected.	e gravey	ard survives. No c	lefine	d boundary wall	s for a g	graveyard could b	е
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfa	ll will accelerate t	he fin	al ruination of tl	nis struc	cture.
History:
About a quarter of a m of the south side rema traced by the foundati	ain, nine feet high a	and two	feet three inches	thick.	The extent of th	e origin	al building may st	till be

There was a burying ground here formerly, of which all appearance has vanished except one uninscribed tombstone, which lies within the Church. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL016-015004	Church Name:	Kilfenora
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Kilfenora
Co-ordinates:	193985N 118316E
Orientation:	EW	-
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other	MI-LLL .
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Excellent	1- 3
Foundation:	Not Visible	Contraction of the second seco
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	attached to it. Furthermore, a se been added to the north. The mo measures 12m x 7m and has a nu north may include a later doorwa extension measures 11m x 10m,	cond later , but clearly ea odern church is not includ umber of window and do ay to allow access to the has its own separate ent	y the gable end of the modern church arly addition to the original church has ded in the survey. The early church oor openings. Door openings to the medieval extension. The medieval trance and a number of windows. A which now houses a number of early
West Wall General Description:	As noted above, the west wall of the early church is now replaced by the wall of the modern church. The west wall of the extension contains a door and window.
South Wall General Description:	Contains a door and two window door, are two separate niches.	vs, both windows are to t	he west of the door. To the east of the
North Wall General Description:	which allow communication betw	ween the two structures.	ddition. There are two floor ways There is a large niche or ambry in the ne extension contains a niche near the
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large and fine triple m contains 3 windows and there is		the east wall of the later structure wo of these windows.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in a good state of repair and partly roofed.
Graveyard Monument	CL016-015005
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is well maintained with gravel paths and grass area.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	A number of Jamb stones and a triple widow mullion sill. 193985N 118316E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is to the south and the west of the existing churches.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monument Service
Climate Effects:	Minimal while the structure is maintained
History:

Of the old Cathedral Church of Kilfinora thirty six feet of the east end is now roofless and given up to the desolation of the winds and weather. (It was after I had left the place that I discovered that the present Protestant Church is part of the old one newly windowed and finished off). The breadth of the Church was twenty feet ten inches, the walls three feet thick. There are two double-headed pointed windows in the south side, divided by mullions, and one of them, the farthest from the gable, divided into four parts by a stone running across it in the middle.

The window in the east gable is semicircular, fourteen feet seven inches wide and about twenty feet high, divided into three compartments by two triangular based pillars, each compartment circular-headed, and the whole lined with very finely chiselled stones on the inside, about fourteen feet high outside, the middle division one foot four inches wide; each of the other two eleven inches wide.

In the northeast corner of the Church is a niche in the side wall formed of two pointed small arches sustained in the middle by a slender column of stone. In front of this niche is a tombstone, level with the ground, having the figure of an ecclesiastic with folded arms (across the chest) and clasping a book. There is another niche in the north wall, nearly opposite, in the same style, surmounted by a head and mitre, in front of which, level with the ground, is a tombstone having the figure of a bishop in costume.

In front of this stone is another tomb with this inscription in plain large letters:- "Here lieth the body of Hygate Lone who lived 21 years Deane of this Church and died in September 1638." On another stone near the latter is this inscription:- "Here lies the body of John Neylan who dyed the 27th of July 1718, aged 24 years."

There is a monumental stone in the north wall inscribed to the Revd. Neptune Blood (as well as I could understand the Latin) having the dates 1638-1694-1699 on it. There is a raised tomb in the now south west angle with this inscription: "William Mac-an-Bharig and his wife Eliza Ni Dea made this tomb, Anno Dom. 1650."

A Chapel projects from the north east angle of the Church to the north, measuring twenty eight feet three inches in length and eighteen feet ten inches in breadth and communicating with it by a low pointed doorway and a pointed archway now closed up. It has a pointed low doorway in the west side near the Church and a semicircular headed window near the north gable closed up with masonry and measuring four feet five inches in height and six three quarter inches in breadth in front. There is a pointed window in the east side near the Church measuring nine feet in height inside and four feet one inch in breadth and seven feet in height and six and a quarter inches in breadth in front. There is a pointed window near it on the north, measuring seven feet in height and three feet eleven inches in breadth in the inside, five feet three inches high and six and a quarter inches wide in front. Between those two windows, within, lying on the ground and feet to the wall is a stone cross, measuring three feet eight inches in length and two feet six inches across the shoulders, having the figure of a Bishop in canonicals engraved on it, holding a Crozier or Bachall of this form:

One side another window remains in the east wall also, near the north gable. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL016-024002	Church Name:	Kiltonaghty
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Clogher
Co-ordinates:	192064N,120549E	the state	A CARLON AND A
Orientation:	E/W	Service and
Category:		and the second	400
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:			A CARA
Access:	Beside Laneway		A STATE OF THE STATE OF
Condition:	Poor	Contraction of the second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Other
General Description:	grass covered ridges. All other for	undation lines are now u church could not be dete	wall and 3m of east wall survive as under grass. The surviving length of ermined. The location of the church is
West Wall General Description:	Nothing survives.
South Wall General Description:	Approx 12m of South Wall surviv edge.	ves, under grass. Some st	one work is visible along southern
North Wall General Description:	Nothing survives of the North W	all.
East Wall General Description:	East Wall is in similar condition t	o South Wall, with only 3	3m surviving.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Totally ruined, none

Graveyard Monument	CL016-024002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	small and tidy grav	eyard
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Sill stone, 192064N,120549E A number of carved edge stones formed as a rectangle 192046N,120544E door pivot, 192057N,120588E Window jamb & corbel, 192058N,1205558E jamb stone, 192064N,120549E
Graveyard General \Description	Graveyard is rectar recently cut.	ngular in	shape, surround	s chui	rch on all sides. It	is well	maintained, gras	S
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

The site of an old Church and burying ground called Cill-Tonachta, lie in the Townland of Ballynacarra. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILTONAGHTA, Sheet 16.—Kilfenora Parish. Levelled since 1839. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL016-086001	Church Name:	Kiltoraght
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Knockroe
Co-ordinates:	191185N;122714E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	This church is ruined, nothing su	urvives to record.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL016-086002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	Not known
Climate Effects:	none as no structu	re surviv	/es
History:

No information touching the life or actions of the saint to whose memory this parish is dedicated can be found in the Irish Martyrologies. The church, situated in the Townland of Knockroe, is utterly ruined. Two castles existed in the parish, namely at Inchovea and Kilmore, both belonging to Teige MacMurrogh O'Brien. The History and Topography of the County of Clare by James Frost

Monument No.	CL016-105001	Church Name:	Clooney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Clooney South
Co-ordinates:	188003N,119267E	Concession of the local division of the loca
Orientation:	E/W	-
Category:	Late-Mediaeval	Charles and
Landscape:	Undulating	21 200
Other_Description:	elevated site	A CARAGE
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This church is ruined and survive Ivy growth over the walls	es to a height of c.1.3M, v	vhere the west gable is gone.
West Wall General Description:	gone
South Wall General Description:	no features, 5 meters survive
North Wall General Description:	no features, 5 meters survive
East Wall General Description:	The position of the east window	survives, the wall is 7 me	eters long.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Only 1.3M height of the walls su remains be carried out as a prior	-	A full detailed record of the surviving

Graveyard Monument	CL016-105002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	a maintained grav	maintained graveyard
Related Structures:	holy well
Architectural Fragments:	Barge stone, arch	Barge stone, arched door jambs, 188003N,119267E
Graveyard General \Description	The grave yard is v	The grave yard is well used, and is maintained.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓ ✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	ll will accelerate t	he fin	al ruination of th	nis struc	ture.

Of the old Church of Cloony twenty five feet of the side walls remain, attached to the east gable, which also remains in full preservation. It was nineteen feet nine inches wide, the walls three feet two inches thick. There is a semicircular-headed window in the south side near the east gable, measuring four feet ten inches in height and three feet wide inside, three feet one inch high and five and a half inches wide on the outside. This window does not appear to me to be of any great antiquity and the side in which it is inserted does not appear to be as old as the other side and the gable. There is a semicircular-headed window in the east gable, measuring seven feet six inches in height, by three feet ten inches in breadth on the inside, three feet eleven inches in height, five inches in breadth at the top, and six inches in breadth at bottom on the outside, built up of finely cut stone, through and through.

The whole of this gable and that part of the north wall which remains are of considerable antiquity, probably of the ninth or tenth Century, exhibiting at the angles the style of architecture called the long and the short, Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. CLOONEY, Sheet 16.—Parish church. The east gable and side walls remain; it was 19 feet 9 inches wide. The east and south windows have semicircular heads. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Corcomroe.

Monument No.	CL017-018001	Church Name:	Leana
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Leana
Co-ordinates:	193525N,127071E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of this church surv	ives.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
None

Monument No.	CL017-020001	Church Name:	Kilinaboy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilinaboy
Co-ordinates:	191576N:127124E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian	-
Landscape:	Undulating	A A	1 1
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road	Contract Contract
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Undressed Quarried Blocks
General Description:	-	wall is dominated by the	overlooking the road. Steps from the e Cross of Lorraine. The walls are d north walls.
West Wall General Description:	The Cross of Lorraine is preserved on the exterior wall. The north and south walls project beyond the west wall.
South Wall General Description:		ller window has a square	are missing from the larger windows, e head, width 0.5m, height 0.8m The
North Wall General Description:	headed window opt 1.15m wide,	c.2m high. A second low	ch c.0.5m wider. There is a square v opening, width 0.95m, height 1m, A masons mark is preserved on a north
East Wall General Description:	This wall has a large window and elaborate window, with three lower mullions surmounted by two mullions supporting an elaborate arch with three circular opts, now in filled. To the west is a large niche, width 0.85m, height 1.9. A corbel survives in the north east corner. The east wall is battered
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The ivy is a cause of concern. It s detailed examination.	hould be kept cut back. F	Removal could be considered after

Graveyard Monument	CL017-020002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The grave yard and boundary walls are maintained.
Related Structures:	Round tower
Architectural Fragments:	There is an external Síle-na-gig over the door. A second carved fragment is inside west of the door.
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is well used with evidence of burials over the last 200 years or more. It is c. 38 x 35 m
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: 🗹 Mausoleum: 🗌 Uninscribed: 🗹
	High Crosses: Flat: Upright: Pedestal:
Owner:	Contact: Mary Maloney, Kilinaboy, Community Dev. Assoc. 086 3157824
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases of rain fall will have an adverse effect on the exposed lime mortar.

Kilnaboy Church is an oblong building, 63 feet x 20 feet 3 inches internally; it has no chancel, and has been so extensively repaired, that probably only the western gable, and parts of the adjoining side walls, are earlier than the sixteenth century. This gable has small buttresses, 1 foot 7 inches and 1 foot 5 inches wide, and projecting 10 inches. The north wall has a low round-headed door, 2 feet wide and about 3 feet high; 7 feet 9 inches from its eastern end is a late square-headed window; 3 feet 6 inches west from the last is a contraction of the wall, as if the eastern section has been rebuilt, as the lower part of the western section appears to be old work. The south wall has an ancient window-slit, 1 foot from its internal west end; a round-headed door, 13 feet farther east, over which, on the outer face, is a misshapen little figure, probably a defaced 'sheela na gig.' Two rude late pointed windows, without tracery, complete the external features of this side.

Figure over Door

The low door to the north was said to be the entrance to the O'Quin vault, but it opens directly into the church, and as the ancient clan of O'Quin was so completely broken up (before the fourteenth century) that no one seems able to prove an unbroken descent from it,[4] it more likely was a north porch or vestry door. An ancient canopied tomb, with angular hood and plainly moulded pointed recess,[5] stands inside this wall, between the low door and window; it has been recently plastered, and occupied by a modern family.

The east gable has a north buttress, a window with a deep splay, and three clumsy shafts with a cross-bar. The head is now too much over-grown with knotted ivy to see the design, but when O'Curry visited it in 1839, the plain interlaced tracery was visible.[6] North of it is a closed round-headed recess like Kilshanny, which, with a corbel in the N.E. corner, a neat chamfered cornice, and a slab with four trefoil-headed panels (in the spaces above which are trefoils, a triquetra, and a leaf), completes the existing features.

There are only four monuments worthy of notice-

 At S.E. corner a large mural tablet; overhead a shield and mantling, much defaced by lime incrustations; underneath, in raised capitals, 'THE ATCHIVEMENT OF ONEILANES';[7] while on the tablet appears, 'DERMOD O'NEILAN AND TEIGE O'NEILAN HIS BROTH | ER, FOR THEM AND THEIR H | EIRES, MADE THIS SEPULC | HER, 1645.'
 Between the south windows a rudely elaborate round-headed tablet displays the Crucifixion, with I.H.S. and the Sacred Heart to the left, and 1644 to the right; beneath, in raised capitals, 'UNDER THESE CARVED MARBEL STONES | LIETH CONNOR O'FLANAGA'S BODY AND | BONES. WHICH MON | MENT WAS MADE BY ANABEL HIS WIFE | ORATE PRO EIS. LAUS DEO.'[8]

3. A slab in the S.W. corner, 'LOUGHLIN REAGH O'HEHIR'S TOMB, FINISHED BY HIS SON ANDREW O'HEHIR 1711. 4. A table tomb, with two arched recesses, near the north window, 'MELAGHLIN OGE O'HEHIR AND MORE HOGAN HIS WIFE.'

Round Tower

The round tower stands 52 feet north of the church; it is a mere featureless stump, 13 feet high (the west side 11 feet 4 inches high) and 52 feet 5 inches circumference, its centre is opposite a spot 34 feet 6 inches from the west gable. It is very well built of crag blocks, in irregular courses, with close joints. I could find no trace of a plinth. The S.W. face is shattered, tradition says, by Cromwellian cannon

Churches with Round Towers in Northern Clare by T. J. Westropp

The walls of the Church of Killinaboy remains in full preservation still. It measures sixty two feet eight inches in length and twenty feet three inches in breadth. There is a circular doorway in the south side thirteen and a half feet from west gable, measuring seven feet nine inches by four feet and having the representation of a dwarf or stunted man on a stone over it in front. There are two windows in the same side about eight feet high and four wide. There is a window in the east gable, of a flat circular form at top inside, where it is about eleven feet high and seven feet three inches wide, pointed outside and divided into compartments by mullions of cut stone.

"Aongus Ceannaitin, son of Cormac Cos, from whom are the Clan Hefernan and Neachtan, and the daughter of Baoith, and the daughter of Gunna, son of Ailioll." - Duald Mc Firbis, page 637.

No part of this Church appears to be older than the 14th century except the west gable, which appears to be as old as the 11th century, and there is a tradition here that the whole of this Church except the west gable was battered down by Cromwell's forces and subsequently rebuilt by the O'Briens of Inchiquin. His wife. Orate provis laus Deo." There is a circular low archway of cut stone in the north wall (at the ground) near east gable, which tradition says was the entrance to the family sepulchral vault of O'Quin, which was inside, but of which no vestige remains now.

There is a pointed niche in the side wall near the above little arch, the oldest monument in the Church, but the flag underneath appears to be a new one inscribed to Joseph Leonard 1773. Near the latter to the west is a monumental stone in the wall inscribed to Melaghlin Ogle O'Hair and More Hogan his wife, but no date. There is a tomb under this inscribed to the Rev. Patrick Hare (Protestant) who died at Cashed in 1816. There is a monumental stone in the south wall near the east gable inscribed thus: "Dermot O'Neil an, and Teige O'Neil an, his brother, for them and their heirs, made this sepulchre, 1645" and over this another stone with armorial bearing, covered with an incrustation of water and lime, with this inscription "The achievement of O'Neil an." There is another monumental stone in the same side, having a representation of the Crucifixion and two Marys, and the date 1644 at top, and the following inscription lower down: "Under these carved marble stones lieth Connor O'Flanagan's body and bones, which monument was made by Anabel,

There is another plain monumental stone in the same wall, between the door and west gable, with this inscription "Loghlen Reagh O'Hehirs Thomlee finished by his son Andrew O'Hehir, I.N.V.V. (E.R.) 1711."

The butt of a round tower thirteen feet high and fifty two feet five inches in circumference at bottom, stands fifty two feet north of the middle of the north wall of the Church. It is built very roughly of square logs of stone laid in irregular courses. It has no appearance of door or window, and the south side looks as if it had been battered with cannon, as I have no doubt is was, by Ireton.

There is a Holy Well a little to the east of the Church, called after the Patron Saint, at which a Patron and Stations were formerly held on the Patron day, 29th December, and which is still resorted to for the cure of sore eyes, and for delicate children. There is a modern little stone cross over it. (There is another Holy Well nearly opposite the Church, to the east of the little stream, called Tobar Baighdean, which is also visited for the same purposes as the other). Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL017-054	Church Name:	Moravian Church
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Crossard
Co-ordinates:	191226N,126300E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Modern	A The Aller	A CONTRACTOR OF
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		and the second
Condition:	Poor	1. 1.
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Cut Blocks
General Description:		d East Walls also survive	h survives. North Wall is upstanding. as grass covered ridges. The Church is
West Wall General Description:	Nothing survives
South Wall General Description:	Nothing survives
North Wall General Description:	North Wall appeared to have the blocked.	ree large windows with go	othic type arches. They are now all
East Wall General Description:	Nothing survives
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	A modern church of which little remains be carried out as a prior		. A full detailed record of the surviving

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	No graveyard.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfa	ll will accelerate t	he co	llapse of the rem	ains of	this structure.
History:	L

Dysert Moravian Church, 1793... The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900. ..and a Moravian church was built at Crossard, in 1793, but the society was soon dissolved and the building fell into dilapidation ; it was afterwards used as a R. C. chapel, and is now unoccupied. County Clare A History and Topography 1837 by Samuel Lewis.

Monument No.	CL017-066001	Church Name:	Coad
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Coad
Co-ordinates:	190903N,127611E		~~
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	All area	A CARLEN AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AND AN
Other_Description:		Alle on
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	There is a large window to the early a state of the early a state of the early a state of the st	ast gable, a double ogee. lows are hooded externa	outh door and a single ogee window. A bell-cot survives on the west gable. ally. The church measures 17.2m x old holes survives in the walls.
West Wall General Description:	West gable has a bell-cot. No oth	ner features.
South Wall General Description:	stoop seems to have been remo	ved at some time and sur jamb as does a bolt and	ow head is in ogee style. The water rvives only as a niche in the wall. The bar hole. The door jambs around the s missing.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features on the No	rth Wall.
East Wall General Description:	East Wall contains a large double the wall.	e ogee window, mullion ຢູ	gone. There are 4 corbels surviving in
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good overall cor present structure would be of be		. Continued maintenance of the

Graveyard Monument	CL017-066002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A well maintained and tidy graveyard
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	2 barge stones, 190894N,127583E Carved stone edge, door Jamb, 197385N,123968E Corbel 190891N,127595E Door jamb stone, 190893N,127594E Door jamb stone, 1909885N,127609E Door jamb stone 190884N,127624E Barge stone, 190885N,127631E
Graveyard General \Description	Graveyard surrounds the church.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact: Mary Malone Ballycashen, Kilinaboy 086 3157824
Climate Effects:	Predicted increased rainfall will accelerate the deterioration of this church.
History:	L

The walls of an old Church in perfect preservation, stand in the Townland of Comhad, about half a mile to the east of Kilnaboy, measuring fifty four feet three inches by twenty two feet. There is a handsome belfry on the west gable, a pointed door and window in south side, a pointed double headed window in east gable, mullion taken away. There is a tombstone under this window, inside, over the two daughters of Conor O'Brien and Mary Mahon of Leim an Eich, who died in the year 1651. Another tomb near it inscribed to Laurence White, A.D. 1711. There is a stone with armorial bearings fixed in the wall of a dilapidated Sacristy, at the east end of the Church inscribed to Thomas Mac Gorman of Caher More, who died 1735. There is another smaller stone within the Sacristy, thrown about, having the same inscription and arms, but without a date and which appears to have been removed to make room for the other. The inscriptions are in Latin. This Church is said to have been built by Katherine Keightly, wife of O'Brien of Inchiquin, and grandmother to the present Sir Lucius O'Brien of Dromoland, as a Chapel of Ease and to vex the rector of Kilnaboy with whom she had some quarrel. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL017-091001	Church Name:	Kilkeedy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kells
Co-ordinates:	190040N131779E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No trace survives
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None

Graveyard Monument	CL017-091002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	None
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	Not known
Climate Effects:	None as there is n	o survivii	ng structure

ST. CATHERINE'S (KELLS), Sheet 17.—Kilkeedy Parish. Entirely levelled, and the graveyard is an orchard. Aenghus O'Daly, in 1617, [119] probably alludes to it when reproaching the people of Cealla (Kells) for "digging in the churchyard in the snow." The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 In this Parish is situated the Townland of Kells, in Irish Cealla, in which there was formerly a Church, but its site is now scarcely traceable. It is probably the Ceandinis which Colgan places in Dalcassia, but I could find nothing to prove whether it is or not. It is mentioned in the pedigree of the O'Briens as a seat of a branch of that family. For the names of other places in this Parish, which are not mentioned in history, see Field Name Books of the Parish of Kilkeedy imble and as the interior are he 20690N,132525E /W arly Christian armland cross Fields oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he /W arly Christian armland cross Fields oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he arly Christian armland cross Fields cor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he armland cross Fields oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he cross Fields oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he oor ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he ot Visible ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives umble and as the interior are he ubble ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives imble and as the interior are he ne church is overgrown and in a sible and the west wall survives Imble and as the interior are he sible and the west wall survives Imble and as the interior are he ne walls are 0.75m in thickness.	avily overgrown. The ch	tion of south wall survives with window ening. The remaining walls survive as urch measures 22.5m x 9m externally.

/est wall survives with plain doo	or opening, an indicatior	n of the early nature of this church.
portion of south wall survives p	preserving a window.
o longer survives.
othing survives, completely ruir	ned.
	-	res of note.A full detailed record of the o	longer survives. thing survives, completely rui s church is largely ruined, but	ortion of south wall survives preserving a window. longer survives. thing survives, completely ruined. s church is largely ruined, but preserves several featur viving remains be completed as a matter of priority.

Graveyard Monument	CL017-094001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is uncared for
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Possible upper door pivot. Located in boundary wall to left of entrance gate, [no signal]
Graveyard General \Description	Graveyard is heavily overgrown with grass and some shrubs obscuring most of the gravey markers.	ard
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Image: Chest Tombs:Image: Chest Tombs:Image: Chest Tombs:High Crosses:Flat:Image: Chest Tombs:Image: Chest Tombs:Image: Chest Tombs:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increased rainfall will accelerate the deterioration of this church.
History:
TENADIENAODE or "NA	OOP" (KELLS) Shoot 17 Kilkoody Darich E1 faat by 20 faat 7 inchas A yary aarby shurch t	ha

TEMPLEMORE, or "MOOR" (KELLS), Sheet 17.—Kilkeedy Parish, 51 feet by 20 feet 7 inches. A very early church; the east and north sides have fallen. The west door has a lintel and inclined jambs; the south window is rudely built, with a semicircular head of one block. A souterrain remains near the east end. Description, R.S.A.I., 1894, p. 289. TEMPLEMORE, or "MOOR" (KELLS), Sheet 17.—Kilkeedy Parish, 51 feet by 20 feet 7 inches. A very early church; the east and north sides have fallen. The west door has a lintel and inclined jambs; the south window is rudely built, with a semicircular head of one block. A souterrain remains near the east end. Description, R.S.A.I., 1894, p. 289. TempLEMORE, or "MOOR" (KELLS), Sheet 17.—Kilkeedy Parish, 51 feet by 20 feet 7 inches. A very early church; the east and north sides have fallen. The west door has a lintel and inclined jambs; the south window is rudely built, with a semicircular head of one block. A souterrain remains near the east end. Description, R.S.A.I., 1894, p. 289. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL017-116001	Church Name:	St. Catherine's
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Lightaghoona
Co-ordinates:	188801N,128631E
Orientation:	E/W	4
Category:	Modern	THE A
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	In Corrofin
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second second
Condition:	Excellent		1/20/
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Other
General Description:	_	hurch is now used as a he n to the east. The church	eritage centre. There is a bell tower to measures 17.3m inch bell tower and is
West Wall General Description:	The west wall is comprised of th	e bell tower and appears	to be constructed of ashlar stone
South Wall General Description:	The south wall contains 3 windo is a window over the door to the		tower is situated on a south wall. There
North Wall General Description:	There are no features
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a extension	on with a single large poir	nted window.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is well maintained in	n its present use
Graveyard Monument	CL017-116002
---	-------------------------	-----------	-----------------------	--------------------	------------------------	---------------------	---------------------------	--
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is si	mall and	confined by bou	ndary	walls
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Two door jamb sto	ones, 188	3801N,128631E
Graveyard General \Description	It is well maintaine	ed.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	<ul><li></li></ul>	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	None while mainta	ained.
History:
None for the modern	church

Monument No.	CL017-119002	Church Name:	Kilvoydan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilvoydan
Co-ordinates:	188927N,129459E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:	No evidence of the church survives.	A BAR
Access:	Beside Laneway		Nº configer
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of church site surviv	es.
West Wall
General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL017-119001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is bu	uilt on slo	oping ground tha	t ovei	rlooks the lough.
Related Structures:	cross base
Architectural Fragments:	Door jamb stone, 1	88927N	,129459E
Graveyard General \Description	Graveyard is in goo	d condit	ion and is mainta	ained
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

KILVOYDAN, Sheet 17.—Kilnaboy Parish. Entirely levelled, a few fragments of cut stone remain in the graveyard, and a curious door jamb, with a rude carving of St. Sebastian and rich fifteenth century foliage was removed to Corofin Chapel. In the field south of the graveyard are the socketted base and head of an early cross; the water in the socket "cures warts." The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Inchiquin

Monument No.	CL018-003001	Church Name:	Templenadeirka
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Shanballysallagh	-	and the second second
Co-ordinates:	191920N,138840E	and the second	the second second
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Late-Mediaeval	Talah 68	and the second second
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second second
Other_Description:		The second
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor	a strate the
Foundation:	Bedrock		A CARLENDER -
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:			ining walls arec.1.5m. The church has ing this church. The church measures
West Wall General Description:	nothing to record
South Wall General Description:	nothing to record, however the	now breach may be in th	e location of the door.
North Wall General Description:	nothing to record
East Wall General Description:	The position of the window surv	vives, but the window is g	jone.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church structure has been c architectural survey of the build		eful to male a full archaeological &

Graveyard Monument	CL018-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	Levelled nothing s	urvives
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	l will accelerate t	he de	eterioration of th	e chur	ch fabric.
History:

TEMPLENADEIRKA, Sheet 18.—Kilkeedy Parish. The east gable and fragments of the side wall remain. The east window has two plain ogee heads; the shaft is gone. The building seems later than 1500, and evidently had a well-cut pointed south door, now lying in fragments among the graves. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Inchiquin.

Monument No.	CL018-035001	Church Name:	Kiltolagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Carrowkeel More		530.
Co-ordinates:	187664N,136100E
Orientation:	E/W	100
Category:	Mediaeval	and the
Landscape:	Farmland	W TASK I
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	-	eatures there fore limiting ast window but its conditi is ruined although evider ut vine and branching sur walls are 0.75m in thickn	g recording of features. There is ion could not be determined due to ivy nee of south window at east end. Ivy rvive. ness.
West Wall General Description:	No features. Most of the ivy has	been killed off.
South Wall General Description:		nd of south wall. A substa	ot at eastern end. A possible door ntial ash tree is growing in the vicinity uld not be recorded.
North Wall General Description:	Heavily covered in ivy, no featur	res observed.
East Wall General Description:	Large tall triple window, with m height. There are 2 niches , one		survived. The window is approx 4m in outh of the window.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The surviving walls appear to be extensive. The ivy to be cut harc	-

Graveyard Monument	CL0185-035002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Ivy Covered
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Would benefit fro	om slightl	y more maintena	nce, t	out is generally ca	ared for
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	Grass slightly long some collapse and			weve	r. Stone wall suri	roundin	g in fair condition	۱,
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increas to the ivy wieght			he de	eterioration of t	his chur	ch. N particular a	dding
History:
In the Townland of Ca merit particular descri					• •	-	it is too modern	to

Monument No.	CL019-002001	Church Name:	Fahy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Fahy		. *
Co-ordinates:	193610N,150383E		A STATE OF
Orientation:	E/W		and the second second
Category:	Late-Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		4
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	Little of this church survives, ar inserted window in the east gal		re recent consolidation work, with an
West Wall General Description:	nothing survives
South Wall General Description:	2 meters of the south wall upst	anding from east gable
North Wall General Description:	nothing survives
East Wall General Description:	There is an ambry in the interna The position of the gable widow		serted to the external wall
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church has been repointed ruined. A full detailed record of		ed to the gable wall. The church is carried out as a priority

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is n	naintaine	ed
Related Structures:	holy well
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	Does not appear t	o be in re	egular use. It is m	aintai	ned.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfa	ll will accelerate t	he de	terioration of th	is churc	h.
History:
Thoro is nothing also a	of any interact to th	o ontiqu	arian in this Daris	h hut	a small Church a	and gray	ward in the

There is nothing else of any interest to the antiquarian in this Parish but a small Church and graveyard in the Townland of Fahy north, but this I have not visited, having been informed that it is modern and in a rude pointed style.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. FAHY, Sheet 19.—Feakle Parish. Only fragments of the wall remain, and a rock basin called a well; not far away are the curious cromlechs and rock markings of Dromandoora. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL021A-010	Church Name:	Lakyle
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Lakyle(Whitegate)	_
Co-ordinates:	188931N,174964E
Orientation:	E/W		1
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Other	N.
Other_Description:	In Whitegate village
Access:	Beside Public Road	Constant Section
Condition:	Good
Foundation:
Masonry:	Other
General Description:	Modern church roofed and render a furniture shop. The church is 24		church has been used until recently as
West Wall General Description:	Large window with a full width le Bell-cote over	an-to extension beneath
South Wall General Description:	Not visible another structure bui	lt tight to it.
North Wall General Description:	4 tall narrow,0.7m wide widows,	which are boarded up.
East Wall General Description:	Large window, with a large meta	sliding door beneath. A	simple cross fixed to the roof apex.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Modern and in reasonable repair

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal while mai	ntained.
History:
None

Monument No.	CL023-033001	Church Name:	Moymore
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Moymore
Co-ordinates:	184583N,110755E		1. A.
Orientation:	E/W	19-41
Category:	Mediaeval	E. Contraction
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway		and the second second
Condition:	Fair		C. A. A. C. Martin
Foundation:	Not Visible	and the second second
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	remaining walls are upstanding a thickness. The east gable survive	and in good-fair condition s to 4.3m and north and	nd is in a dangerous condition. The n. Measure 13m x 6m.Walls are .85m in I south survive to 3.2m. As noted it is een used on the corners and window
West Wall General Description:	there are no surviving features, h battered.	nowever some barge-sto	nes. It was noted the walls were
South Wall General Description:		-	firmed by surviving upper door pivot. all. This window is hooded externally.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features to record o	on north wall.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a double originally had mullion. There is a	-	w is hooded externally. The window corner.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:			stress on the east window and the and widow opts to be made secure.

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	No graveyard surv	vives.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	ed rainfal	l will accelerate t	he de	eterioration of th	is churc	h.

There is another ruined Church in the Townland of Moymore in this Parish, called Teampall-Inis-Dia, i.e., the Church of the Island of God, but why it is so called nobody knows. This ruin stands on a point of land formed by the meeting of two small streams, whence probably the origin of the island part of the name. The Church measures forty feet in length and nineteen and a half feet in breadth, the walls remaining to their original height excepting the east gable, of which half the top is down. The doorway was placed in the south side but none of its features now remain. There is a window in the south wall six feet ten inches from the east gable measuring five and a half feet in height and three feet four inches wide inside where it is semicircular at top, three feet from the ground outside where it is pointed and measures three feet four inches in height and ten in breadth, built up of cut stones and having its sides perforated for the reception of iron bars. There is a window in the east gable measuring about ten feet in height and five feet three inches in breadth on the inside where its top is semicircular, and built of well cut stones.

The top is broken in front, but it appears to have been divided into two parts by a mullion, which however, has disappeared - each division was nine inches in breadth. No burying ground here. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. MOYMORE (INISDIA), Sheet 23.—Kilfarboy Parish, 40 feet by 19 feet 6 inches. The east window has two round heads (the shaft gone); south window and door. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL024-012	Church Name:	Craggaunboy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Maghera	and the second	and the second
Co-ordinates:	187693N;124002E	Charles !!	Contraction of the second s
Orientation:	E/W	A. Maria	ALL TO MARKE
Category:	Mediaeval	- A State Bar
Landscape:	Wooded	A REAL COM
Other_Description:	Near a ravine
Access:	Across Fields	THE REAL PROPERTY OF	and the second
Condition:	Dangerous	Citore	the state of the second
Foundation:	Not Visible	The second second	A CONTRACT OF
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This is single cell church in a ruin trees/shrubs. There is collapsed breached, while most of the wes	stonework inside the chu
West Wall General Description:	Missing
South Wall General Description:	The east and western ends of the window survives at the eastern e		are heavy with ivy growth. A ruined
North Wall General Description:	The east and western ends of the	e north wall survive, but a	are heavy with ivy growth.
East Wall General Description:	A central window survives, large window.	ly obscured by ivy growth	h. A cut stone arch overarches the
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in an advanced sta deteriorate. A full detailed reco		-

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	None
Related Structures:	None
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	None
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will furtł	ner weaken the fa	bric c	f an already dam	naged st	tructure.
History:
None

Monument No.	CL025-052002	Church Name:	Templemarha
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballymacrogan West
Co-ordinates:	186306N132514E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland	A COMPANY AND
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		Later and the second
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	An enclosure survives, which co	ntains a scatter of stones.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	Cashel [ruined]
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none as there is no	o structı	ıre
History:

TEMPLENARAHA, Sheet 25.—Ruan Parish. Foundations of very ancient large masonry stand in a defaced caher. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL025-070001	Church Name:	Templemaraha
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Portlecka
Co-ordinates:	186790N,133467E		1 all
Orientation:	E/W		and the first of
Category:	Mediaeval	Contraction of the	1 N
Landscape:	Undulating	- A .
Other_Description:		the second
Access:	Beside Public Road	6
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	from an extension built to the so construction as it is not tied to the survives only to foundation leve the south wall is evident but not	buth wall at the western e ne original church. Most o l except a small portion o hing survives to record. T
West Wall General Description:	There are no associated features	s with the west wall.
South Wall General Description:		ng for a window survives	oor with with limestone jambs which on the eastern end. There are no jamb uare headed window.
North Wall General Description:	C . 5m of north wall survives on foundation level. Rebuilding rep		he remainder of the wall is reduced to
East Wall General Description:	The east wall if the church conta limestone jambs. The east wall c limestone jambs which are punc	f extension contains a lo	vindow with punched dressed w door with a semi pointed arch,
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is overall in good cor not helpful. Regular maintenanc		ilding equipment in the extension is e maintained.

Graveyard Monument	CL025-070002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard	l is cared	for and relieved	of pre	ssure for burial s	space by	/ the new graveya	ard.
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is which lies to the w		•			•		on
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will wea	ken areas within	the st	ructure that are	damage	d.
History:
none

Monument No.	CL025-084001	Church Name:	Rathblathmic
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Rath
Co-ordinates:	185693N,127019E		and the second
Orientation:	E/W		-
Category:	Early Christian		and the second
Landscape:	Farmland	a the same to the same reaction	and the second
Other_Description:		and and an and and	a second and a second and
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second second
Condition:	Good	and the second
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	time. As a consequence, 2 door and later churches. The church is The eastern gable of the chancel 7m, while the chancel is 5.7m x	openings survive, reflect s divided by a transept ar no longer survives. The 5.6m. The opening of the eral structures attached	alterations over different periods of ing a change of attitude between earlier rch which creates a nave and chancel. nave of the church measures 13.5m x e transept is 2.9m. The walls measure to south wall, mainly at eastern end.
West Wall General Description:	The west wall contains the rema disturbed.	ins of an early door. The	door is c. 1m in width, but is badly
South Wall General Description:	_	-	i pointed door in the nave portion. A south wall. A water stoop is inside the
North Wall General Description:	There are no features to record.
East Wall General Description:	There is no external east gable s width of the church. The walls a	_	h at eastern end of nave is the full ss.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	There is considerable deteriorat prevent further significant deter		gram of repair and restoration would

Graveyard Monument	CL025-084002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A large and well ma	anaged g	raveyard.
Related Structures:	Round tower, no lo	nger ext	ant.
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard surre	ounds th	e church. There	is no (	obvious extensio	n.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall w	/ill weak	en areas within t	he sti	ructure that are o	lamage	d.

Of the Church of Rath (Blaithmaic) the sides and middle or choir gable only remain. It is rather a modern building, the nave measuring forty four feet in length and twenty four feet five inches in breadth, the choir eighteen feet six inches in length and twenty feet in breadth. The choir arch is ten feet two inches wide and about fifteen feet high, in the pointed style. There is a large burying ground attached to the Church.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. RATHBLATHMAIC, Sheet 25.—Parish Church. Nave and chancel, 42 feet 10 inches by 24 feet 8 inches, and 18 feet 4 inches by 20 feet. The south walls of the nave and chancel, the former with plinth and round corner shaft, and part of the north wall of the nave are of the late eleventh or earlier twelfth century. The sills of two early windows are set in the south wall of the nave. The more western is richly carved with foliage, dragons' heads, and a sheelanagig struggling with monsters. The second forms the sill of a late fifteenth-century window. The chancel arch is plain and pointed. The east and west gables are levelled. The south door has a stoup in its right jamb, and a carved block with roundels and interlacings. Keane says that the stump of a round tower was demolished in 1838. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL025-091001	Church Name:	Dysart
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Mollaneen
Co-ordinates:	184764N,128154E
Orientation:	E/W	and the second second
Category:	Romanesque Church		We down
Landscape:	Farmland	100	Mar Ann
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	and alterations. The Romanesqu divided into a nave and chancel double bell-cote. The north and	e style door is believed to with a large transept arch south walls are "stepped	nulti-period construction of, additions o have been relocated. The church is n. The transept supports an unusual I" and this is at the western end and in most cases, however some walls are
West Wall General Description:	The west gable contains 2 windo and large tapered headed windo	· · · ·	d, but offset; a smaller square headed
South Wall General Description:			und headed window at the eastern end. t is also noted that a bottom pivot hole
North Wall General Description:	The north wall contains a double	e ogee window.
East Wall General Description:	To the eastern end of the church transept arch. The eastern gable mullions. There is also a double	contains a triple round h
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is a very good state o	f repair. Levels of mainte	enance to be maintained.

Graveyard Monument	CL025-091002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is we	ll maint	ained.
Related Structures:	Round Tower. To th dedicated to St. Tola		f the church son	ne dist	tance away there	e is a sta	tue and high cros	SS
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is we area to the north-ea north-west.						•
GRAVEYARD				✓				✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	While the church is	maintai	ned minimal eff	ects fr	rom predicted ind	creased	rainfall.

Parish of Disert (b)

The ruined Church of Disert consists of nave and choir, the former measuring seventy one feet by twenty four, the latter twenty five feet six inches by twenty one feet three inches; the walls perfect, about fourteen feet high and three feet one inch thick. There is a window in the west gable but of what particular form I could not ascertain from the quantity of ivy with which it is covered within and without. Thirteen feet ten inches from west gable in the south side is a beautifully sculptured circular door, six feet ten inches high, three feet two wide, the front having four circles one over the other, resting the first or inner on the sides of the door.

Ruined Church of Disert

The second arch was supported by a slender column of stone at each side carved and surmounted by a human head; the column on the east has disappeared. The third arch is supported by the angles of the wall and the fourth by two slender columns like those already mentioned, with heads also. The stones of this arch are nineteen in number and project a little from the wall, presenting twelve human heads and seven heads of some animals, the head on the keystone being smaller than any of the rest. I believe Mr. Petrie has a drawing of this door, as I remember having seen it in the Penny Journal. (Not by Mr. Petrie, and not accurate).

The choir arch is a beautiful circular one built with finely cut grit-stone, fourteen feet six and a half inches wide, and I should think the same in height. There is a double-headed curvilinear pointed belfry on this gable built with the very same kind of stone and workmanship. The wall around the choir arch appears to have been opening and threatening to fall out, but has been prevented by the timely interference of Mr. Synge, who some time ago, had it well plastered and staunched. There is a pointed window in the north wall of nave near this gable, seven feet seven inches by three feet ten inside and six feet two by nine inches outside. There is a window in the south side of quire near the east gable, built up with the same sort of stones as the choir arch, pointed inside, where it is six feet seven inches high and four feet four inches wide, round outside, where it is five feet two high and six inches wide. The window in the east gable is eleven feet two and a half inches wide and about fifteen feet high, divided into three compartments by two triangular pillars of masonry and lined all round with the same sort of cut stones as those in the choir arch, but looking somewhat fresher. These compartments are bluntly (flatly) pointed inside and circular in front. Tradition says that this choir was added to the Church by O'Dea, and the people here always call it O'Dea's Chapel. Indeed, this tradition is favoured by the appearance of the walls and its being built up against, not part of, the middle gable, nor would I be able to discover any material difference between the masonry of this gable and the rest of the choir. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. DYSERT-O'DEA, or DISERT-TOLA, Sheet 25.—Parish church. Nave and chancel, 71 feet by 23 feet 9 inches, and 21 feet by 25 feet. The south wall forms one line from the east gable to a projection to the west of the nave door. The semicircular chancel arch, and much of the north walls are probably of the later tenth century. The south door is of ornate Romanesque workmanship (probably of the late eleventh century, and the middle of the twelfth century), and has been rebuilt (some voussoirs of another arch having been apparently inserted) in the south wall. It has a row of nineteen heads round it. One of the west windows has also been made of carved fragments from at least three other windows. The whole west end of the nave is late and embodies moulded blocks of the older church. The east window has three plain Gothic lights, chamfered and recessed, probably of the thirteenth century. The gable above the choir arch has a shapeless bell chamber with two pointed opes. A rude font and small cross remain in the graveyard. The Round Tower stands 7 feet 5 inches north of the north-west corner of the church. It is about 60 feet high, and 61 feet in circumference. The door is perfect with a semicircular head. The tower was built in offsets, like the tower of Ardmore, it has late Gothic battlements and window, and has been partly thrown down by lightning. A "brass" bell was found inside. In the field to the east of the ruins stands the beautiful high cross, probably of the late twelfth century. It was restored by Michael O'Dea in 1683, and Colonel F. Synge in 1871. The well of St. Tola is defaced, but still flows in a ditch. A double bullaun, extant in 1839, is not now discoverable. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL025-102001	Church Name:	Killeenan
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Killeenan
Co-ordinates:	183958N128917E
Orientation:
Category:		ALC ALC
Landscape:	Scrub
Other_Description:	Field at edge of village beside modern church
Access:	Beside Public Road		CALL CONTRACTOR OF CALL CONTRACTOR OF CALL
Condition:			Construction in a second
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No trace of this church survives.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL025-102002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	Holy well, cross
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none as no structu	re surviv	ves
History:
None, Ecclesiastical re	mains

Monument No.	CL025-167001	Church Name:	Templeduff
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Aughrim
Co-ordinates:	184042N,134445E
Orientation:	E/W		and the second sec
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	C and the
Other_Description:		Statutes !
Access:	Across Fields	the second
Condition:	Fair		Contraction of the second
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	walls, a dry stone technique has door opening on the south wall. The opening if the south wall win	been employed. The reb It is probably in the correndow is in a poor conditi lar area which may have d "pulled" from both nor
West Wall General Description:	There is no reliable evidence for	west wall.
South Wall General Description:	Evidence of the door location su survives at the eastern end of so		f recent rebuilding. A south window
North Wall General Description:	Only a small niche recorded.
East Wall General Description:	The east gable contains a single in east gable wall.	window, 2.2m with a ser	mi-pointed arch. There is a small niche
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	_	" repaired. The land owr	are probably original. The remainder of ners be contacted to advise them of

Graveyard Monument	CL025-176002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	As noted in general may be the base of To the south of the thickness. This may record.	a high c church	ross or similar. there is a structu	re tha	t survives 15m x	6.6m. -	The walls are 7.5	m in
Architectural Fragments:	Two door arch jam three pieces cut dre			44451	E
Graveyard General \Description	There are no grave churchyard area is maintained by cattl	formed l	by the River Ferg		•		•
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
MARKINGS.	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases Fegus may flood up					urthern	nore the nearby F	River
History:

TEMPLEDUFF (AUGHRIM), Sheet 25.—Dysert Parish. A rude late building, 50 feet by 14 feet 6 inches, thickly ivied; late fifteenth century south door. The west gable and priest's house are levelled. It is called Temple Hugh O'Connell in the survey and maps of 1839; but this name is not known to the older peasantry. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL025-197001	Church Name:	Kilcross
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcurrish	C. Hay
Co-ordinates:	181629N129954E		A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A
Orientation:		E Wat .	and the state of the
Category:	Mediaeval	· Aller	and the state of the state
Landscape:	Farmland		A A A A A A A A
Other_Description:		Mar 197
Access:	Across Fields		A CANE THE THE
Condition:	Poor	and the second second	Contract of the Mark
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	There is little that survives. The s A door jamb stone was located o remains be carried out as a prior	on a stone outcrop. A full o
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None. The site be archaeologica	lly recorded.

Graveyard Monument	CL025-197002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	cut back nettles af	ead of a	ny other recomm	enda	tions
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Door jamb stone, :	181629N	I129954E
Graveyard General \Description	not visible totally o	overgrov	vn. Only entrance	gate	s and boundary v	vall surv	vive
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	None as the exten	t of surv	ival of the structu	re is	unknown.
History:
KILCURRISH, Sheet 25.	.—Dysert Parish. 21	feet by	12 feet. Only the	west	gable with a late	pointe	d door is standing	g. The

Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

The Church of Killcross lies in ruins in the Townland of that name; the west gable and small bits of the side walls only remain, the gable having a pointed doorway in it, five feet ten inches high and two feet two inches wide, built up with cut stone. The foundations of the building measure twenty one feet in length and twelve in breadth. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL025-213001	Church Name:	Templemaley
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballyallia
Co-ordinates:	181912N,133713E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	1998	. 7 .
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		e	HULL T
Access:	Beside Public Road		1 All All
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Pad Stones	a dia man	1.
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	collapsed. There is ivy growth or	n the west gable and part	e to north wall which had partially of both north and south walls. The esses. The church is 17m x 5.3m. Walls
West Wall General Description:	There are no features.
South Wall General Description:	The south wall contains two win window has a flat head; the doo		st window is pointed; the central om dressed limestone.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features on the nor	rth wall save the buttress	on the eastern corner.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a single vertice the east wall.	ery long narrow round he	aded window, 3.7m. There is a niche in
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The walls are vertical and in goo	d condition. The ivy grow	th is a concern. The ivy to cut back.

Graveyard Monument	CL025-213002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A large and well m	aintaine	d graveyard
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There is an original a car parking area. boundaries for ext	The gra	veyard has been o	exten	ded to south and		-
GRAVEYARD		✓						✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact : Mrs T Ma	alone, Te	emplemaley
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	s in rain	fall will accelerate	e det	erioration of this	structu	ire.

The walls of the Church of Templemaley remain in good preservation, and it measures fifty four feet six inches in length and eighteen feet nine inches in breadth. At the distance of twelve feet nine inches from the west gable, in the south side, is the doorway, quadrangular inside and measuring seven feet in height and three feet five and a half inches in breadth, pointed on the outside, measuring five feet ten inches in height and three feet in breadth. At the distance of eleven feet ten inches from this, to the east, is a window rectilineally pointed on the inside (the arch formed of two rude flags) and measuring four feet six inches in height and two feet ten inches in breadth, quadrangular outside and built up of rude field stones, measuring three feet in height, six inches wide at bottom and five inches at top. At the distance of three feet three inches from the east gable, in the same side is another window measuring four feet in height and three feet two inches in breadth, flat pointed at top inside, the sides built up of good cut stones, and the top of small rude stones, semicircular outside, built up of good cut stones, channelled (or castrated) measuring three feet five inches in height and six inches in breadth. The lower part of the east side of it broken away. There is a pointed window in the east gable four feet wide and about twelve feet high, part of the south side broken inside; eight inches wide at bottom and about eight feet high outside. This, tho' built of very rude stones, does not appear to me to be an old one. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. TEMPLEMALEY, Sheet 25.—Parish church, 54 feet 6 inches by 18 feet 9 inches. It is rudely built, and probably dates from about 1080; the windows belonging to that period. One seems still earlier, having an angular head of two slabs. A souterrain lies not far from the west end of the ruin; but the new river-bed of the Fergus has been cut between them. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL025-253	Church Name:	Liscullan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Liscullan
Co-ordinates:	187344N,127077E	N V	ALC: ALC: K
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Penal
Landscape:	Farmland	Con Maria
Other_Description:		3 7
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Ivy Covered
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	Now totally ruined and obscured detailed record of the surviving r		portion of masonry wall survive. A full s a priority.
West Wall General Description:	nothing to record
South Wall General Description:	nothing to record
North Wall General Description:	nothing to record
East Wall General Description:	nothing to record
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none. A full detailed record of th	e surviving remains be c	arried out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

A penal church is use during the 18th century. Fell into disuse when churches in Corofin and Roxton where built.

Monument No.	CL026-001001	Church Name:	Kilbakee
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Dromore
Co-ordinates:	186754N,136144N
Orientation:	E/W		UP A CAL
Category:	Mediaeval		All and the second second
Landscape:	Wooded	State State	AN ALC STREET
Other_Description:		TO AL
Access:	Difficult Access	不是是 为于	martin Practice
Condition:	Poor	and the second
Foundation:	Bedrock	and the second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The church is ruined to foundat	ion level. There are two co	ourses of stone surviving.
West Wall General Description:	There are two courses of stone	surviving.
South Wall General Description:	There are two courses of stone	surviving.
North Wall General Description:	There are two courses of stone	surviving.
East Wall General Description:	There are two courses of stone	surviving.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	As this church is largely ruined. priority	A full detailed record of t	he surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Possible enclosure	e wall
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	marginal consider	ing the c	condition of the st	ructu	re.
History:	L
None
Monument No.	CL026-003004	Church Name:	Doughnambraher
---------------------------------------	----------------------------------	------------------	-------------------
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killian
Co-ordinates:	185690N,136400E	1 della
Orientation:			1 AND NON
Category:
Landscape:	Wooded
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway	A CALL AND	A SALE AND A SALE
Condition:	Poor	A State of a set	Mar Hand Star
Foundation:		A CONTRACTOR
Masonry:
General Description:	Site totally overgrown and not a	ccessible
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL026-003002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	Bullaun stone, associated with a cure for warts
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	none could be located
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none as no structure could located
History:
None

Monument No.	CL026-051001	Church Name:	Kilraghtis
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballymaconna
Co-ordinates:	182446N138081E	Part Station	and the second
Orientation:	E/W		A CONTRACTOR
Category:	Mediaeval	A marine and
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		The same starting	Company of the
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Ivy Covered	the second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	it is completely covered in well e	stablished ivy. As it is est	d appears to be in good order; however tablished some damage to the masonry ed by the ivy. The church is 19.5M by
West Wall General Description:	There were no features to record
South Wall General Description:	There are two windows and a do heads are obscured.	or. The lower portion of	the easterly window is blocked up. The
North Wall General Description:	There are no features associated	with the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	A window was recorded but no d window.	etail is possible. There a	re two niches one each side of the
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The extensive ivy growth obscure The ivy should be cut back and th		church in good structural condition. nined for damaged.

Graveyard Monument	CL026-051002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A good tidy gravey	ard
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	Well maintained an church. The gravey			nere i	s a large mausole	eum 4.5	x3M south of the	2
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact: Mary Mar	rlboroug	h 065 6827126
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall v faster rate.	will enco	urage the ivy gro	wth a	nd will weaken a	ny dam	aged stone work	at a

Of the old Church of Kilreachtais, the walls remain perfect. It measures sixty three feet four inches in length and seventeen feet nine inches in breadth. There is a semicircular doorway in the south side, ten feet seven inches from the west gable, five feet high from the present level of the ground and three feet five inches wide, built up with well cut stone. Seventeen feet three inches from this is a rude semicircular window measuring five feet eight inches in height and three feet eleven inches in breadth on the inside, and three feet five inches in height and six inches in breadth on the outside, the little arch here being rudely scooped out of a rough flag stone, the whole built up of common field stones.

There is another window within four feet one inch of the east gable, quadrangular inside and measuring five feet one inch in height and two feet five inches in breadth, arrow-headed in front and measuring four feet three inches in height and six inches in breadth. There is a window in the east gable circular at top inside and measuring six feet six inches in height and four feet two inches in breadth, divided into two arrow-headed divisions in front by a mullion, each division four feet three inches in height and eight and three quarter inches in breadth. There is a small modern stone cross lying in this window, having a small representation of the Crucifixion engraved on it. There is a pointed recess in the same gable to the left of the window, three feet seven inches from the ground, five feet nine inches high, two feet ten inches wide and two feet six inches deep. This had a door and lock to it. No part of this Church appears to be 400 years old.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. . KILRAGHTIS, Sheet 26.—Parish church, 63 feet 4 inches by 17 feet 9 inches. A late fifteenth-century church, well built and perfect. The east window has two lights, probably trefoil-headed, but thickly ivied (shaft remains). The south door is slightly pointed. Not far to the north is the dolmen of Ballymaconna. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL026-092005	Church Name:	Kilvoydan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilvoydan South
Co-ordinates:	181530N,139870E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Karst Limestone
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	Church is levelled
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL026-092001
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Bullaun stone
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Kilnaboy Parish. Entirely levelled, a few fragments of cut stone remain in the graveyard, and a curious door jamb, with a rude carving of St. Sebastian and rich fifteenth century foliage was removed to Corofin Chapel. In the field south of the graveyard are the socketted base and head of an early cross; the water in the socket "cures warts." The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Inchiquin.

Monument No.	CL028-003001	Church Name:	Feakle
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Feakle
Co-ordinates:	186729N,157132E	-
Orientation:	E/W	-	Carl Sector
Category:		Part and
Landscape:	Undulating	AL MARSON
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of the church surviv	es.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL028-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard slop graveyard. Well m			om a	level area at the	northe	rn end of the
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	This is a very large stone, later are sto
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact: John Doo	ley, maiı	n St Feakle, 061 9	2433	5
Climate Effects:	none
History:

. FEAKLE, Sheet 28.—Parish church. One gable stood in 1780. [148] It stood to the south of the modern church, and where the Burke monument remains. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL028-028001	Church Name:	Kilnoe
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilnoe	A.K.
Co-ordinates:	181562N,157538E		State of the second second
Orientation:	E/W
Category:			-
Landscape:	Farmland		Contraction of the second
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road	A
Condition:
Foundation:			和1414年中国的中国人民的资源
Masonry:
General Description:	No remains of church to be reco	rded.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL028-028002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is w	vell main	tained.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is w	vell main	tained.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Of the Church of Kilno nothing now remains but a small bit of its western gable, nor do the people know anything about its ancient name or Patron.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILNOE, Sheet 28.—Parish church. Entirely levelled before 1839. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Upper.

Monument No.	CL028-058001	Church Name:	Tuamgraney
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Tomgraney	7.217
Co-ordinates:	182966N,163741E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Other	in the second se	La Ballin a Mars
Other_Description:	Within village
Access:	Beside Public Road	The States
Condition:	Excellent	Carl Statistics
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Cut Blocks
General Description:	building is fully roofed. The east, would seem to provide a level for	north and south walls an undation for the church	m for the village of Tuamgraney. The re built on a plinth like structure; this as the ground slopes West to East. The e material. 25m x 8m in measurement.
West Wall General Description:	The west gable has a tapered do There are 2 buttresses to the north west and south wes		here is a bell-cote over the west gable.
South Wall General Description:			o the east, closely spaced, the two these are early windows, they are now
North Wall General Description:	There is a window in the north w more centrally located has a sem		second window slightly
East Wall General Description:	-	a different form of winde	placement. Above the present window ow had existed previously. The original east corners are finished with a
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in excellent condit	on. None

Graveyard Monument	CL028-058002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The grave yard is o southern area is m		y the church, bur	ials to	o the north are m	ainly v	aults, while the
Related Structures:	Early grave slab ar	nd other	pieces on display	•
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	A laneway beside church building. T ground; chest tom	here are	a number of buri		• •	-		of
GRAVEYARD		✓		✓				✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	little while the chu	urch is m	aintained
History:

TOMGRANEY, Sheet 28.—Parish church, 75 feet 4 inches by 21 feet 4 inches. An unusually fine example of a nearly uninjured church of the tenth and eleventh centuries still used for worship. The west door, antæ, and wall (except the upper part of the gable) are of large "cyclopean" masonry, ante A.D. 969. The door has a lintel and inclined jambs, with a flat raised band round it. The south lights are plain rectangles, with low mouldings. The more eastern part of the church is of regular coursed masonry, with a plinth and corner shafts, the north and two south windows being richly decorated. There is also the head of a richly carved window in the south wall; the east window has round angle shafts inside; the light has been rebuilt. Several carved fragments, two faces, &c., appear in the walls. There was a round tower here; some tradition of it subsisted in Petrie's time; but when Brash visited the place nothing remained. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Upper.

Monument No.	CL029-003001	Church Name:	Clegg
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Moynoe
Co-ordinates:	184945N,166658E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	Contraction of the second
Other_Description:		Rinking
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		nd south wall. The rema	vily ivy covered. An intact east gable inder of the west gable and rest of n; walls are 0.78m in thickness.
West Wall General Description:	West gable had not survived
South Wall General Description:	Survives to 9.5m. It has a windov western end of south wall, but th		ening for door may exist at ruined height 3m.
North Wall General Description:	Approx 1m of wall survives as up covered in ivy.	standing, the rest an add	ditional 3m has collapsed; heavily
East Wall General Description:	Double window with wide centra 2.9m. The head of the east windo	_	f window 2.8m, total width internally
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is an advanced state back and then the structure's co		by heavy ivy growth. The ivy to be cut

Graveyard Monument	CL029-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Ivy Covered
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Poorly attended w	ith long	uncut grass.
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	In poor condition, The boundary wall pathways through	s are he	avily overgrown v					te
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rain	fall will accelerate	e the I	ruin of this churc	h.

The old Church of Moyno is not far from that arm of Lough Dergdheirc running up in the direction of Scarriff. It measures sixty feet nine inches in length and twenty three feet nine inches in breadth, not including the thickness of the walls. Its west gable is destroyed down to the very foundation, and of the north wall only a few feet attached to the east gable remain, but a large portion of the south wall, twenty five feet in length, fifteen feet in height and two feet six inches in thickness remains in good preservation, and also the entire of the east gable, but much injured by the gnawing tooth of time. The east gable contains a window in two divisions, of which the more southern measures on the outside nine feet six inches in height and eight inches in width, and the more northern nine feet in height and only seven and a quarter inches in width. Both are lancet headed outside and round inside and of some antiquity. The south wall contains another window about five feet three inches high on the outside and six inches wide and round at the head; on the inside about nine feet high and three feet ten inches wide. This Church would appear to be five or six centuries old.

There is a pointed arch which was probably a gateway leading into the graveyard of the Church. This probably belonged to the Castle of O'Grady at Muyno, which is mentioned in the College List of Castles of Thomond as belonging to Edmonde O'Grady.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. MOYNOE, Sheet 29.—Parish church. 60 feet 9 inches by 23 feet 9 inches. Only the eastern gable and fragments of the adjoing walls remain. The window has two high Gothic lights, and probably dates about 1280. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL029-009003	Church Name:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Co-ordinates:	185058N,169773E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other	Alleber 1
Other_Description:	Island		A A
Access:	Island	At and
Condition:	Excellent	The south first married	and the second sec
Foundation:	Bedrock	a the same that is a	2 PAGE AND
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The entire island is a collection of architectural fragments and bull		periods, associated graveyards are of the National Monument Service.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This church is in excellent condi	tion and is maintained by	the National Monuments Service

Graveyard Monument	CL029-009004
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Churches, round t	ower and	d graveyards som	e witł	n early cross grav	e slabs
Architectural Fragments:	Identified by Natio	onal Mor	nument Service
Graveyard General \Description	This grave yard is	attached	to the church an	d con	tains early flat cr	oss grav	ves
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	✓	Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ent Servio	ce
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	•

113 to 119. INISCALTRA [150] (HOLY ISLAND), LOUGH DERG, Sheet 136 of Co Galway.—An important group of churches founded by Caimin (half brother of Guaire "the hospitable" chief of Hy Fiachra Aidhne) before A.D. 640. However, we find earlier records, such as the death of Colan of Iniscealtra, A.D. 552. Probably Caimin may have founded the stone churches. The place was an important monastery and school, Caimin having been a learned scholar and acquainted with Hebrew. Lying on a great waterway, the island suffered much from the Norsemen. It was called Inis Celtra in 838. In A.D. 922 the Danes ravaged it and "drowned its relics and shrines." [151] Brian Boru restored its churches, circa A.D. 1000. "Inysgeltra," 1302. The parish was eventually partly given to County Galway, but always remained part of the see of Killaloe. The island, which was popularly regarded as part of County Clare, was formally restored with the remainder of Iniscaltra parish and that of Clonrush in 1898. Monuments, a group of tombstones from the eighth to the eleventh century, with incised crosses and many Irish inscriptions. O'Grady (restored the churches), 1703, in St. Caimin's church. Sir Torlough Mac Brien Arra, Baronet, 1626, in St. Mary's church. Remains of three early Celtic crosses, one with the epitaph, "Ilad in dechenboir." Descriptions, Dyneley, 1681; R. S. A. I., 1864, p. 82; Petrie (views), pp. 281-284; Brash, p. 17; Dunraven, II., pp. 3-5, and 56-60 (views and plan); Miss Stokes (Plates xxv., xxxviii.); Lenihan, R. S. A. I., 1889 [152] ; Report of the Board of Public Works, 1879-80, p. 73 (plans and illustrations). They have been vested as National Monuments.

113. Same, TEAMPUL CAIMIN.—Nave and chancel 30 feet 6 inches by 20 feet and 14 feet 7 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. An ancient church of the ninth or tenth century, with inserted chancel arch, probably circa 1000, and west door of somewhat later date. The original building has antæ at the gables and two ancient south windows (figured by Petrie), with inclined jambs, the lights respectively lintelled and with semicircular head. The chancel arch has clustered pillars and three plain orders, with a head in high relief on the keystone. The chancel gable and east end were levelled, the sides have a neat external cornice; the east wall and altar have been rebuilt in 1879. To the south east of this church is a beautifully built round tower, about 80 feet high and 46 feet in girth. The round-headed doorway is entire and once had an "iron" door. St. Caimins was called St. Columbcille's chapel in 1838. [153]

115. Same, "CONFESSIONAL," externally 10 feet 6 inches by 8 feet 6 inches. A small oblong cell north of the cemetery. There is a recess at the west end, and the doorway faces the east; it is filled with large plain slabs.

116. Same, ORATORY. A mere foundation to the north-east of the last.

117. Same, ST. MICHAEL'S, 6 feet by 4 feet 6 inches. An oblong foundation and enclosures west of St. Caimin's, and on the summit of the island.

118. Same, "BAPTISM CHURCH" (marked on the map as "St. Michael's"), 19 feet 10 inches by 11 feet 9 inches. Its foundations alone remained with the low north wall when I first visited it in 1877. In 1838 the east gable and its defaced window and a south window remained, but they fell in a great storm January 6, 1839, as O'Donovan notes that year on the original letter "how soon a piece of writing becomes an antiquity." The south window was a small oblong slit. In 1879 the rich semicircular-headed west door of three orders, the inner piers covered with chevrons, was recovered and rebuilt. The round-headed gateway of the enclosure was also rebuilt.

Monument No.	CL029-009006	Church Name:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Co-ordinates:	185058N,169773E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other	addition and
Other_Description:	island		Acon 1
Access:	Island	A to and	Destant and the second
Condition:	Excellent	The south first and the	and an and the second sec
Foundation:	Bedrock		and a second sec
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The entire island is a collection of fragments and bullaun stones al		periods, graveyards architectural tional Monument Service.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This is the second church on the maintained by the National Mor		to excellent condition. Again it is

Graveyard Monument	CL029-009007
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Churches, round t	ower and	d graveyards som	e witl	n early cross grav	e slabs
Architectural Fragments:	Identified by Natio	onal Mor	nument Service
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ent Servio	ce
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	•

113 to 119. INISCALTRA [150] (HOLY ISLAND), LOUGH DERG, Sheet 136 of Co Galway.—An important group of churches founded by Caimin (half brother of Guaire "the hospitable" chief of Hy Fiachra Aidhne) before A.D. 640. However, we find earlier records, such as the death of Colan of Iniscealtra, A.D. 552. Probably Caimin may have founded the stone churches. The place was an important monastery and school, Caimin having been a learned scholar and acquainted with Hebrew. Lying on a great waterway, the island suffered much from the Norsemen. It was called Inis Celtra in 838. In A.D. 922 the Danes ravaged it and "drowned its relics and shrines." [151] Brian Boru restored its churches, circa A.D. 1000. "Inysgeltra," 1302. The parish was eventually partly given to County Galway, but always remained part of the see of Killaloe. The island, which was popularly regarded as part of County Clare, was formally restored with the remainder of Iniscaltra parish and that of Clonrush in 1898. Monuments, a group of tombstones from the eighth to the eleventh century, with incised crosses and many Irish inscriptions. O'Grady (restored the churches), 1703, in St. Caimin's church. Sir Torlough Mac Brien Arra, Baronet, 1626, in St. Mary's church. Remains of three early Celtic crosses, one with the epitaph, "Ilad in dechenboir." Descriptions, Dyneley, 1681; R. S. A. I., 1864, p. 82; Petrie (views), pp. 281-284; Brash, p. 17; Dunraven, II., pp. 3-5, and 56-60 (views and plan); Miss Stokes (Plates xxv., xxxviii.); Lenihan, R. S. A. I., 1889 [152] ; Report of the Board of Public Works, 1879-80, p. 73 (plans and illustrations). They have been vested as National Monuments.

113. Same, TEAMPUL CAIMIN.—Nave and chancel 30 feet 6 inches by 20 feet and 14 feet 7 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. An ancient church of the ninth or tenth century, with inserted chancel arch, probably circa 1000, and west door of somewhat later date. The original building has antæ at the gables and two ancient south windows (figured by Petrie), with inclined jambs, the lights respectively lintelled and with semicircular head. The chancel arch has clustered pillars and three plain orders, with a head in high relief on the keystone. The chancel gable and east end were levelled, the sides have a neat external cornice; the east wall and altar have been rebuilt in 1879. To the south east of this church is a beautifully built round tower, about 80 feet high and 46 feet in girth. The round-headed doorway is entire and once had an "iron" door. St. Caimins was called St. Columbcille's chapel in 1838. [153]

115. Same, "CONFESSIONAL," externally 10 feet 6 inches by 8 feet 6 inches. A small oblong cell north of the cemetery. There is a recess at the west end, and the doorway faces the east; it is filled with large plain slabs.

116. Same, ORATORY. A mere foundation to the north-east of the last.

117. Same, ST. MICHAEL'S, 6 feet by 4 feet 6 inches. An oblong foundation and enclosures west of St. Caimin's, and on the summit of the island.

118. Same, "BAPTISM CHURCH" (marked on the map as "St. Michael's"), 19 feet 10 inches by 11 feet 9 inches. Its foundations alone remained with the low north wall when I first visited it in 1877. In 1838 the east gable and its defaced window and a south window remained, but they fell in a great storm January 6, 1839, as O'Donovan notes that year on the original letter "how soon a piece of writing becomes an antiquity." The south window was a small oblong slit. In 1879 the rich semicircular-headed west door of three orders, the inner piers covered with chevrons, was recovered and rebuilt. The round-headed gateway of the enclosure was also rebuilt.

Monument No.	CL029-009008	Church Name:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island	and the second se
Co-ordinates:	185058N,169773E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Romanesque Church
Landscape:	Other	addition and
Other_Description:	island		Acres 1
Access:	Island	and the second	I TANK I TANK
Condition:	Good	The south first with	and the second sec
Foundation:	Bedrock	a the light the	and a state of the
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The entire island is a collection of fragments and bullaun stones all		periods, graveyards architectural tional Monument Service.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This is the third church on the is maintained by the National Mor		excellent condition. Again it is

Graveyard Monument	CL029-009009
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Churches, round to	ower and	l graveyards som	e witł	n early cross grav	e slabs
Architectural Fragments:	Identified by Natio	onal Mon	ument Service
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	nt Servic	e
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained.

113 to 119. INISCALTRA [150] (HOLY ISLAND), LOUGH DERG, Sheet 136 of Co Galway.—An important group of churches founded by Caimin (half brother of Guaire "the hospitable" chief of Hy Fiachra Aidhne) before A.D. 640. However, we find earlier records, such as the death of Colan of Iniscealtra, A.D. 552. Probably Caimin may have founded the stone churches. The place was an important monastery and school, Caimin having been a learned scholar and acquainted with Hebrew. Lying on a great waterway, the island suffered much from the Norsemen. It was called Inis Celtra in 838. In A.D. 922 the Danes ravaged it and "drowned its relics and shrines." [151] Brian Boru restored its churches, circa A.D. 1000. "Inysgeltra," 1302. The parish was eventually partly given to County Galway, but always remained part of the see of Killaloe. The island, which was popularly regarded as part of County Clare, was formally restored with the remainder of Iniscaltra parish and that of Clonrush in 1898. Monuments, a group of tombstones from the eighth to the eleventh century, with incised crosses and many Irish inscriptions. O'Grady (restored the churches), 1703, in St. Caimin's church. Sir Torlough Mac Brien Arra, Baronet, 1626, in St. Mary's church. Remains of three early Celtic crosses, one with the epitaph, "Ilad in dechenboir." Descriptions, Dyneley, 1681; R. S. A. I., 1864, p. 82; Petrie (views), pp. 281-284; Brash, p. 17; Dunraven, II., pp. 3-5, and 56-60 (views and plan); Miss Stokes (Plates xxv., xxxviii.); Lenihan, R. S. A. I., 1889 [152] ; Report of the Board of Public Works, 1879-80, p. 73 (plans and illustrations). They have been vested as National Monuments.

113. Same, TEAMPUL CAIMIN.—Nave and chancel 30 feet 6 inches by 20 feet and 14 feet 7 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. An ancient church of the ninth or tenth century, with inserted chancel arch, probably circa 1000, and west door of somewhat later date. The original building has antæ at the gables and two ancient south windows (figured by Petrie), with inclined jambs, the lights respectively lintelled and with semicircular head. The chancel arch has clustered pillars and three plain orders, with a head in high relief on the keystone. The chancel gable and east end were levelled, the sides have a neat external cornice; the east wall and altar have been rebuilt in 1879. To the south east of this church is a beautifully built round tower, about 80 feet high and 46 feet in girth. The round-headed doorway is entire and once had an "iron" door. St. Caimins was called St. Columbcille's chapel in 1838. [153]

115. Same, "CONFESSIONAL," externally 10 feet 6 inches by 8 feet 6 inches. A small oblong cell north of the cemetery. There is a recess at the west end, and the doorway faces the east; it is filled with large plain slabs.

116. Same, ORATORY. A mere foundation to the north-east of the last.

117. Same, ST. MICHAEL'S, 6 feet by 4 feet 6 inches. An oblong foundation and enclosures west of St. Caimin's, and on the summit of the island.

118. Same, "BAPTISM CHURCH" (marked on the map as "St. Michael's"), 19 feet 10 inches by 11 feet 9 inches. Its foundations alone remained with the low north wall when I first visited it in 1877. In 1838 the east gable and its defaced window and a south window remained, but they fell in a great storm January 6, 1839, as O'Donovan notes that year on the original letter "how soon a piece of writing becomes an antiquity." The south window was a small oblong slit. In 1879 the rich semicircular-headed west door of three orders, the inner piers covered with chevrons, was recovered and rebuilt. The round-headed gateway of the enclosure was also rebuilt.

Monument No.	CL029-009011	Church Name:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island	-
Co-ordinates:	185058N,169773E	and the second second	and the second
Orientation:	E/W	1000
Category:	Romanesque Church
Landscape:	Other	utisticies and
Other_Description:	island		A A
Access:	Island	A ALL AND	De ser al and a ser and a s
Condition:	Good	Sector Sector And Inc.	and the second second
Foundation:	Bedrock	A WY LAW IN	and a second sec
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The entire island is a collection o fragments and bullaun stones all		periods, graveyards architectural tional Monument Service.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This is the fourth church on the i maintained by the National Mon		o excellent condition. Again it is

Graveyard Monument	CL029-009012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Churches, round t	ower and	d graveyards som	e witł	n early cross grav	e slabs
Architectural Fragments:	Identified by Natio	onal Mor	nument Service
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ent Servio	ce
Climate Effects:	minimal while it is	i maintai	ned

113 to 119. INISCALTRA [150] (HOLY ISLAND), LOUGH DERG, Sheet 136 of Co Galway.—An important group of churches founded by Caimin (half brother of Guaire "the hospitable" chief of Hy Fiachra Aidhne) before A.D. 640. However, we find earlier records, such as the death of Colan of Iniscealtra, A.D. 552. Probably Caimin may have founded the stone churches. The place was an important monastery and school, Caimin having been a learned scholar and acquainted with Hebrew. Lying on a great waterway, the island suffered much from the Norsemen. It was called Inis Celtra in 838. In A.D. 922 the Danes ravaged it and "drowned its relics and shrines." [151] Brian Boru restored its churches, circa A.D. 1000. "Inysgeltra," 1302. The parish was eventually partly given to County Galway, but always remained part of the see of Killaloe. The island, which was popularly regarded as part of County Clare, was formally restored with the remainder of Iniscaltra parish and that of Clonrush in 1898. Monuments, a group of tombstones from the eighth to the eleventh century, with incised crosses and many Irish inscriptions. O'Grady (restored the churches), 1703, in St. Caimin's church. Sir Torlough Mac Brien Arra, Baronet, 1626, in St. Mary's church. Remains of three early Celtic crosses, one with the epitaph, "Ilad in dechenboir." Descriptions, Dyneley, 1681; R. S. A. I., 1864, p. 82; Petrie (views), pp. 281-284; Brash, p. 17; Dunraven, II., pp. 3-5, and 56-60 (views and plan); Miss Stokes (Plates xxv., xxxviii.); Lenihan, R. S. A. I., 1889 [152] ; Report of the Board of Public Works, 1879-80, p. 73 (plans and illustrations). They have been vested as National Monuments.

113. Same, TEAMPUL CAIMIN.—Nave and chancel 30 feet 6 inches by 20 feet and 14 feet 7 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. An ancient church of the ninth or tenth century, with inserted chancel arch, probably circa 1000, and west door of somewhat later date. The original building has antæ at the gables and two ancient south windows (figured by Petrie), with inclined jambs, the lights respectively lintelled and with semicircular head. The chancel arch has clustered pillars and three plain orders, with a head in high relief on the keystone. The chancel gable and east end were levelled, the sides have a neat external cornice; the east wall and altar have been rebuilt in 1879. To the south east of this church is a beautifully built round tower, about 80 feet high and 46 feet in girth. The round-headed doorway is entire and once had an "iron" door. St. Caimins was called St. Columbcille's chapel in 1838. [153]

115. Same, "CONFESSIONAL," externally 10 feet 6 inches by 8 feet 6 inches. A small oblong cell north of the cemetery. There is a recess at the west end, and the doorway faces the east; it is filled with large plain slabs.

116. Same, ORATORY. A mere foundation to the north-east of the last.

117. Same, ST. MICHAEL'S, 6 feet by 4 feet 6 inches. An oblong foundation and enclosures west of St. Caimin's, and on the summit of the island.

118. Same, "BAPTISM CHURCH" (marked on the map as "St. Michael's"), 19 feet 10 inches by 11 feet 9 inches. Its foundations alone remained with the low north wall when I first visited it in 1877. In 1838 the east gable and its defaced window and a south window remained, but they fell in a great storm January 6, 1839, as O'Donovan notes that year on the original letter "how soon a piece of writing becomes an antiquity." The south window was a small oblong slit. In 1879 the rich semicircular-headed west door of three orders, the inner piers covered with chevrons, was recovered and rebuilt. The round-headed gateway of the enclosure was also rebuilt.

Monument No.	CL029-009015	Church Name:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishcaltra or Holy Island
Co-ordinates:	185058N,169773E		and the second
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Other	JUSE AL
Other_Description:	island		Acres 1
Access:	Island	A the second
Condition:	Good	Stand Real room	the second of the second s
Foundation:	Bedrock	A THE CASE AND AND A	2 Ends
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The entire island is a collection of fragments and bullaun stones a		periods, graveyards architectural
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This is the fifth church on the isl maintained by the National Mor		excellent condition. Again it is

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Churches, round t	ower and	d graveyards som	e witl	n early cross grav	e slabs
Architectural Fragments:	Identified by Nation	onal Mon	nument Service
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ents Servi	ice
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	iintained

113 to 119. INISCALTRA [150] (HOLY ISLAND), LOUGH DERG, Sheet 136 of Co Galway.—An important group of churches founded by Caimin (half brother of Guaire "the hospitable" chief of Hy Fiachra Aidhne) before A.D. 640. However, we find earlier records, such as the death of Colan of Iniscealtra, A.D. 552. Probably Caimin may have founded the stone churches. The place was an important monastery and school, Caimin having been a learned scholar and acquainted with Hebrew. Lying on a great waterway, the island suffered much from the Norsemen. It was called Inis Celtra in 838. In A.D. 922 the Danes ravaged it and "drowned its relics and shrines." [151] Brian Boru restored its churches, circa A.D. 1000. "Inysgeltra," 1302. The parish was eventually partly given to County Galway, but always remained part of the see of Killaloe. The island, which was popularly regarded as part of County Clare, was formally restored with the remainder of Iniscaltra parish and that of Clonrush in 1898. Monuments, a group of tombstones from the eighth to the eleventh century, with incised crosses and many Irish inscriptions. O'Grady (restored the churches), 1703, in St. Caimin's church. Sir Torlough Mac Brien Arra, Baronet, 1626, in St. Mary's church. Remains of three early Celtic crosses, one with the epitaph, "Ilad in dechenboir." Descriptions, Dyneley, 1681; R. S. A. I., 1864, p. 82; Petrie (views), pp. 281-284; Brash, p. 17; Dunraven, II., pp. 3-5, and 56-60 (views and plan); Miss Stokes (Plates xxv., xxxviii.); Lenihan, R. S. A. I., 1889 [152] ; Report of the Board of Public Works, 1879-80, p. 73 (plans and illustrations). They have been vested as National Monuments.

113. Same, TEAMPUL CAIMIN.—Nave and chancel 30 feet 6 inches by 20 feet and 14 feet 7 inches by 12 feet 6 inches. An ancient church of the ninth or tenth century, with inserted chancel arch, probably circa 1000, and west door of somewhat later date. The original building has antæ at the gables and two ancient south windows (figured by Petrie), with inclined jambs, the lights respectively lintelled and with semicircular head. The chancel arch has clustered pillars and three plain orders, with a head in high relief on the keystone. The chancel gable and east end were levelled, the sides have a neat external cornice; the east wall and altar have been rebuilt in 1879. To the south east of this church is a beautifully built round tower, about 80 feet high and 46 feet in girth. The round-headed doorway is entire and once had an "iron" door. St. Caimins was called St. Columbcille's chapel in 1838. [153]

115. Same, "CONFESSIONAL," externally 10 feet 6 inches by 8 feet 6 inches. A small oblong cell north of the cemetery. There is a recess at the west end, and the doorway faces the east; it is filled with large plain slabs.

116. Same, ORATORY. A mere foundation to the north-east of the last.

117. Same, ST. MICHAEL'S, 6 feet by 4 feet 6 inches. An oblong foundation and enclosures west of St. Caimin's, and on the summit of the island.

118. Same, "BAPTISM CHURCH" (marked on the map as "St. Michael's"), 19 feet 10 inches by 11 feet 9 inches. Its foundations alone remained with the low north wall when I first visited it in 1877. In 1838 the east gable and its defaced window and a south window remained, but they fell in a great storm January 6, 1839, as O'Donovan notes that year on the original letter "how soon a piece of writing becomes an antiquity." The south window was a small oblong slit. In 1879 the rich semicircular-headed west door of three orders, the inner piers covered with chevrons, was recovered and rebuilt. The round-headed gateway of the enclosure was also rebuilt.

Monument No.	CL029-026001	Church Name:	Temple Aglish
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballyhurley
Co-ordinates:	181478N169047E
Orientation:		with star.
Category:		A Law A	+ 200
Landscape:	Undulating		A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A A
Other_Description:			- The second second
Access:	Across Fields		and the second second
Condition:		Carl Carls
Foundation:		The second second second
Masonry:
General Description:	No remains of the church survive been part of the church.	e save a wall built in the gr	raveyard from stones believed to have
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL029-026002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Low maintenance	well care	ed for.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The grave yard is o	covered i	n stone gravel. Th	ne gro	ound slopes to th	e south	east.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul><li>□</li><li>✓</li></ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none as the struct	ure does	s not survive
History:

The old Church of this Parish, which is nearly level with the earth is still called Teampull na h-Eaglisha or the Church of Aglish, the latter part of the name being now forgotten. It is situated in the Townland of Islandcosgry, but nothing remains to shew its age or importance, but an extensive burial ground. To the south east of the site of this Church there is a holy well called Tobar Sraithin, over which there is a white thorn tree ornamented with votive rags. Delicate children are brought to this well that they may be cured by its sacred powers.

Monument No.	CL029A-003001	Church Name:	Meelick
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Meelick
Co-ordinates:	186880N,175958E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Early Christian	the local	A Charles int
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good	A NOT THE POINT
Foundation:	Pad Stones		and the second second
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	full extent of north and south w	alls is preserved by the sundation level and a probant and the south each attached to the southed to the south each attached to the south each attached to t	he north and south walls survive. The rvival of the foundation courses. The ble door opening survives in west wall. ast corner of the church, whch
West Wall General Description:	Only foundation course survives this wall also.	s of west gable; an openin	g believing to be the door recorded in
South Wall General Description:	Approx 6m survives, and this is a wall.	at eastern end of church;	one window is in this section of the
North Wall General Description:	Nothing to record survives on th	ne north wall.
East Wall General Description:	The gable survives to full height the remains of bell-cote survive		mullion window in the east wall and
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is largely ruined, but become an increasing problem.	_

Graveyard Monument	CL029A-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well cared for and maintained
Related Structures:	Arched opening and wall section attached to western end of church
Architectural Fragments:	door pivot, two arched jamb stones and two sill stones, 186880N,175958E
Graveyard General \Description	Well maintained gr plaque indicates th structures; extensiv from the eastern en The construction of	at it has vely ove nd, how	been built more rgrown, not poss ever a second, no	recer ible to long	ntly. Centrally loc o determine stru er in use is at the	ated is ctures. e south	one of more The church is acco wall at western e	essed
GRAVEYARD	M. D.			✓		✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	<ul> <li>Image: A start of the start of</li></ul>	Mausoleum:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:	V
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	s in rain .	fall will accelerate	e the I	ruin of exposed a	areas of	this church.
History:
none

Monument No.	CL031-008001	Church Name:	Kilfarboy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilfarboy	- Martine and Andrewson
Co-ordinates:	181565N,108127E		ALC: NOT
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval		the here lat
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		A COLORED STORE
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	wall, 1st in 2008 and 2nd in 2010	), this was to correct exce walls 0.82m in thickness	. The west gable is missing. The east
West Wall General Description:	Completely disappeared.
South Wall General Description:		op and upper door pivot t to repair in 2008 to relie	well cut door with limestone jambs . A large vault has been built against eve pressure on church wall. The
North Wall General Description:	No features to record.
East Wall General Description:	Contains single window which is pulled, it is not in danger of imm		; ogee head. Although the east wall has
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	With the repairs completed muc	h of this church is in exce	ellent condition. Monitor the east gable.

Graveyard Monument	CL031-008002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Good condition, but	: full, ar	extension will b	e nee	ded.
Related Structures:	A Holy Well.
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	This is a large well m west corner of grave mausoleums.				-			south
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of we	aken el	ements of this str	ructure
History:

KILFARBOY, Sheet 31.—Parish church, 65 feet 9 inches by 17 feet. The west gable had fallen in 1839. The ruin is of the late fifteenth century. The east and south windows have ogee heads, the former has got trefoils cut in its spandrils. The south door is well built. It has a pointed arch, and a stoup with two round-headed opes in the right jamb. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL032-002001	Church Name:	Templeduff
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Templeduff
Co-ordinates:	181199N,120948E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:		-
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:
Foundation:		192 - Carlos
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none
Graveyard Monument	CL032-002002
---	-------------------------	-----------	-----------------------	-------	------------------------	-------------------------------	---------------------------	--------
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	well maintained in	use
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard app	ears to I	be of two parts; t	he we	estern part has e	arlier bi	urials. Well maint	ained.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul><li>□</li><li>✓</li></ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL032-008001	Church Name:	Kilmacreechy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmacreechy
Co-ordinates:	177463N,116360E	R. R.
Orientation:	E-W
Category:
Landscape:	Wooded
Other_Description:		All and
Access:	Beside Laneway	6
Condition:	Poor		Second Street Street
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Other
General Description:	determined. Appears to have be	en a small structure 11m covered by vegetative gro	dow opening could be accurately x 3.6m, walls were 0.8m thick approx. wth. A gap in the south wall may be
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:		_	itored. A full detailed record of the cal investigation may also be required.

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	Mrs J Tottenham
Climate Effects:	minimal
History:
none

Monument No.	CL033-006001	Church Name:	Kilnamona
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilnamona
Co-ordinates:	179984N,127200E		A State Bar
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Late-Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating		The second second
Other_Description:			1 the second
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good	7.405	The second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Ashlar
General Description:	walls are massive, this is to com construction at NW corner. The church has been extensively bee	pensate for the sloping gr walls are capped with lar on repaired in the recent r letely missing. Again beca	I, 30-40 degrees of slope to south. The round. There is an unusual 'outshot' ge flags. This would suggest that the past. Half of the east gable is covered ause of slope there are steps up to the 5.3m, walls are 0.98m thick.
West Wall General Description:			ere the west and north wall meet. The it may be to reinforce the corner
South Wall General Description:		-	tern end of south wall. The window is n grooved and also contain bar-holes.
North Wall General Description:	North wall is missing to ground l	evel.
East Wall General Description:	East wall has a single large wind described on south wall.	ow, height 2.7m. The jam	bs for this window are similar to those
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Well repaired and stable. Mainta	ain the present level of re	epair.

Graveyard Monument	CL033-006002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Overall in good co	ndition
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The churchyard su mowed.	rrounds	the church and is	stee	oly sloping to the	south.	It is maintained,	grass
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal while mai	ntained

History:

The ruined old Church of Killnamona stands in the Townland of that name, with its walls in good preservation, measuring sixty two and a half feet in length and twenty one feet in breadth. At the distance of seventeen feet from a west gable in the south side is a pointed doorway, one side of which only remains, measuring six feet four inches in height and three feet nine inches in breadth, having a large Holy Water Font in the right jamb as one goes in. There is a semi-circular window in the same wall, two feet from east gable, six and a half feet high and three feet eleven inches wide inside; four feet nine inches high, eight inches wide at top and eight and a half at bottom outside, with holes in the sides for cross iron bars. There is a window in the east gable about eleven feet in height and seven feet three inches in breadth inside, eight feet eight inches high, one foot three inches wide at bottom on the outside, the top so thickly covered with ivy that its form could not be ascertained. This window too, has holes in the sill and sides for iron bars. The walls are about fourteen feet high, three feet two inches thick and built of large and small stones in irregular courses.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILNAMONA, Sheet 33.—Parish Church, 63 feet 6 inches by 21 feet. The north wall has fallen: the church is plain, and dates circa 1500. The east window has a round-headed light. The south door is pointed and defaced. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Inchiquin.

Monument No.	CL033-033001	Church Name:	Drumcliff
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Drumcliff
Co-ordinates:	180096N,132864E
Orientation:	E-W	-	Male Sand
Category:	Mediaeval	A AND
Landscape:	Undulating	A STANDAR	La Caller
Other_Description:			- L
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second second
Condition:	Good	and the second	- Participation - Participation
Foundation:	Not Visible	South and the second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	earlier construction, possible ear level. Interestingly, a window set It was also noted that a possible east walls. This may be an indica	ly Christian. A section of in the west gable is off- third window or slot surv tion of significant alterat d overlooking the gravey	lements of this church that suggest the north wall is missing to foundation set, not centrally located as is normal. vived at the corner of the south and tion to the layout of the church. The rard to the east. The church is 16.3m x
West Wall General Description:	Contains a large round headed w before is offset to the north wall	-	ambs high up in the gable and as noted
South Wall General Description:	most easterly window has a squa a chamfered arch limestone cons	are head, the central win struction, with steps dow ng two small 'pillars'. It w	rd window as described above. The dow has no head surviving. The door is vn. A bolt slot survives. The inner door vas noted that some sandstone was
North Wall General Description:	There are no features to record. the western end.	Approx 3m of the north	wall is reduced to foundation level at
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large double ogee wir corner of the east wall.	ndow, 1.75m in height, th	here is also a niche in the south east
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This church preserves some inter maintenance in order to preserve		ood condition. It requires ongoing

Graveyard Monument	CL033-033002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Three large gravey	ards the	earliest surroun	ding t	he church. All we	ell main	tained.
Related Structures:	Round tower to no	orth of cl	hurch.
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	There is a large gra in an easterly direct affect, with numer undoubtedly externed extends to the wear graves. The gravey to the north, also of The graveyard externed	ction. A s rous grav nded ove st of the vard to the on the fa	series of paths ru ves between the er time, however church, this is or he east extends to ar side of the road	n at ri baths. there more b the l from	ght angles to the This area of the is no clear distin e level ground an road. A second e the church. Exte	e slope o graveya ction. T d has so xtensio ension t	creating a 'terrace ard has been 'he graveyard also ome of the earlien n has been constr	ed' o r ructed
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	х л . Ц			✓	Mausoleum:	✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	es in rain	fall will accelera	e det	terioration of we	akened	elements of this
History:

The old Church of Drumcliff, situated about two miles to the northwest of the Town of Ennis, is an ancient one which was remodelled about five or six centuries since. It is fifty eight feet nine inches long and twenty feet ten inches broad. Its west gable is in tolerable preservation and about twenty two feet in height. It contains one window placed at the height of nine feet six inches from the ground and measuring on the outside about two feet nine inches in height and seven inches in breadth; it gradually widens towards the inside, but it is so curtained with large ivy that its dimensions on that side could not be easily ascertained.

The south wall is ten feet six inches in height and contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of seventeen feet nine inches from the west gable. It is pointed on the outside and semi-circular at the top on the inside where it looks very ancient (which is rare in Churches of its age). It measures on the inside seven feet six inches in height and four feet one and a half inches in width, and on the outside six feet three inches in height and three feet in width. The same wall has, at the distance of seven feet seven inches to the east of this doorway, an ancient window, which was stopped up when the doorway was inserted. It is three feet eleven inches wide on the inside and six inches on the outside, but it is so injured at the top that its height cannot now be ascertained. At the distance of seven feet nine inches from this window is another window which was inserted when the Church was remodelled. It measures on the inside five feet in height and three feet six inches in breadth and on the outside four feet one inch in height and six inches in breadth. In the same wall within a few inches of the east gable appears the right side of a very ancient window, now built up, from which it would appear that this Church was longer in its original state than it is at present.

The east gable contains a pointed window, on the inside five feet nine inches in height and three feet ten inches in breadth and on the outside five feet one inch in height and one foot ten inches in breadth. It is divided into two parts by a mullion of limestone. The north wall is featureless and about ten feet of it destroyed at the northwest corner.

The following are the parts of this Church which are ancient and modern:- The west gable was certainly all rebuilt, but the stones of the original gable were used in rebuilding it. The external face of the southwest corner has been removed by the peasantry to the extent of nine feet, to obtain stones for placing over graves. This part was of the original work. From this breach to where the modern doorway was inserted - an extent of about ten feet - is certainly of the original work inside and outside. The ancient work appears again at the distance of three feet ten inches to the east of this doorway and extends for sixteen feet six inches, but all the rest of the south wall is certainly modern, as is all the east gable and all the north wall excepting a few feet of the middle part of it. A considerable part of its external face near the northwest corner, which seems to have been of the original work was destroyed by the peasantry to get stones for placing over the graves of their friends.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. DROMCLIFF, Sheet 33.—Parish church, 58 feet 6 inches by 20 feet. The south wall and windows are probably of the eleventh century, the east gable of the fifteenth, with a two-light window (the shafts entire); the head is ivied, but was probably trefoil-headed. The south door is well built, very slightly pointed and late, with a curious thickening of the walls. The round tower stands due north from the church; it is 40 feet high, and 50 feet 6 inches in circumference. The door, 13 feet above the ground, and having a raised band round the sides and head, was extant in 1809; also two oblong windows, only one of which remained in 1839. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL033-034002	Church Name:	Templeharaghan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Drumcliff
Co-ordinates:	180515N133492E		A CONTRACTOR OF THE OWNER
Orientation:		A STATE
Category:		e and
Landscape:	Wooded
Other_Description:
Access:	Difficult Access		A WAR THE DATE OF THE STATE
Condition:	Poor		March And Barris
Foundation:		and and the of	Same the area
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of the church could	be located
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	None
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none as no structi	ure is bel	lieved to survive
History:

TEMPLEHARAGHAN, Sheet 33.—Dromcliff Parish. Now entirely demolished; it stood in a fort now nearly levelled. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL033-122001	Church Name:	Doora
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Bunnow
Co-ordinates:	176991N,135315E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Early Christian	A State States	and the second second
Landscape:	Farmland	Contraction of the	Real and the
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	pointed, however, it is a concre sandstone in the church walls. T	te construction and is not There are two projecting so the south central window. T	ng much of the detail. The door head is reliable. There is inclusion of some andstone carved head/figures, one They are now worn and difficult to ick.
West Wall General Description:	Is reduced in height, heavily ove	ergrown with ivy, no featu	res were recorded.
South Wall General Description:	pointed head and is built from o	concrete. The water stoop	d by ivy. As noted, the door has a is outside to the immediate east to the south wall at the eastern corner.
North Wall General Description:		l of several corbels and a s	small structure built on the north wall. small stone sill over the door on the ar.
East Wall General Description:	East gable window is constructe two windows. These are heavily	•	rge central mullion, creating effect of
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is heavily impacted condition.	by ivy growth. Ivy to cut b	ack and the structure appraised for

Graveyard Monument	CL033-022002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is fu	ll. A proj	posed extension	to the	e north exposed s	significa	nt archaeology
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is lo A number of stone
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of we	akened	elements of this

History:

The old Church of Dúiré is situated in the middle of a bog, about one mile to the south east of the Abbey of Ennis. It is a Church of considerable antiquity and was remodelled at an early period. It measures on the inside fifty nine feet in length and twenty three feet eight inches in breadth. The west gable, which was not of the original work, is all destroyed with the exception of two fragments attached to the two walls; the fragment at the south west corner six feet in length and about seventeen feet in height, and that at the north west corner three feet in length and of the same height with the north wall.

At the distance of thirteen feet three inches of the west gable the south wall contains a doorway now reduced on the outside to a formless breach; on the inside it is also very much injured, but it can be ascertained from what remains of it that it was seven feet four inches in height to the springing of the arch and four feet ten inches in width. There is a stone projecting from the wall on the outside over this doorway with the head of some animal rudely shaped on it.

At the distance of thirteen feet seven inches to the east of this doorway there is in the same wall a very ancient window, round-headed inside and outside. On the inside it is five feet three inches from the present level of the ground, eight feet high and five feet in width, and on the outside four feet in height and in breadth (width) five inches at top and seven and a half inches at the bottom. At the distance of eleven feet eight inches to the east of this window there is another nearly of the same shape, but not so ancient, it having been evidently inserted to match the former when the Church was remodelled. It is placed at the height of five feet from the present level of the ground on the inside, and measures on the inside seven feet seven inches in height and four feet six inches in breadth (width) and on the outside three feet eight inches in height, and in width four and a half inches at top and five and a half inches at the bottom. The former of these windows has a channel and rope (rabbit) on the outside and a representation of the head and breast of a very large dog (evidently the Irish wolf dog) placed at the height of one foot over it; the latter window has not the channel (architrave) or rope (cable moulding) and the only ornament it exhibits is a semicircle raised on the stone which forms its top.

The former is constructed of grit stones beautifully chiselled and the latter of grit and lime stone mixed.

Within two feet six inches of the south east corner there is in the east gable a pointed recess (like a doorway) measuring six feet one inch in height and two feet five inches in breadth and extending about half the thickness of the wall. This was certainly constructed when the Church was remodelled. Besides this, the east gable contains two windows which were once very beautiful but now much effaced. They are round-headed inside and outside, and constructed of beautifully chiselled grit. The southern one measures on the inside nine feet six inches in height and six feet in width, but it is disfigured on the outside except at the top, where the stone in which the top of the little arch is formed remains untouched. From this it appears that the width at top was (is) four and a half inches; it was probably six or seven inches at bottom, but it cannot now be ascertained with much certainty. The northern window in this gable is of the same height and breadth with the other, but it certainly is not so old. Like the other, it is destroyed on the outside except the top stone in which its round head is formed. This stone is lime, but the head of the other is grit. The former has the channel and rope (rabbit) on the outside, the latter has the rope but the channel not so deep. The north wall contains a semi-Cyclopean doorway placed eleven feet from the east gable and measuring on the outside five feet six inches from the present level of the field and in width two feet four inches at top and two feet five inches at bottom. Its lintel is three feet nine inches long, seven inches thick, and extends the entire thickness of the wall. This doorway led into an lardom, the site of which is still faintly traceable. It resembles the southern doorway on the Cathedral of Glendalough which led into a similar lateral (lardom) building. There were two buttresses placed at the north west and south west corners, but they are nearly destroyed; they were manifestly built when the Church was remodelled. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839.

DOORA, Sheet 33.—Parish church, 58 feet 6 inches by 23 feet 8 inches. A very ancient church "cyclopean" masonry. The side walls and south windows probably date from the early eleventh century. The east window has two lights; the southern is of sandstone, with a semicircular head boldly moulded, and of the same period as the south window; its other light is a close copy in limestone. The north door is lintelled, but does not incline. There are two curious corbels in the south wall. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Bunratty Upper.

Monument No.	CL034-003002	Church Name:	Ballymacahill
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Drumgrangh
Co-ordinates:	180254N,136564E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	This site was not visited it surviv	ves as an enclosure.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL034-059001	Church Name:	Castletown
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Castletown
Co-ordinates:	177953N,137988E	54.5	Sec. 10
Orientation:	E-W	NISSE .
Category:	Late-Mediaeval	Contraction of the second
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		-	The second second
Access:	Beside Laneway		A BARA
Condition:	Poor		A SPEED
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	Little of this church survives. It e The walls are 0.8m in thickness.		. It measures approx 12.3m x 5.3m. aveyard
West Wall General Description:	Bare outline survives
South Wall General Description:	Bare outline survives
North Wall General Description:	Only foundations survive, length	n c.8-9M
East Wall General Description:	Bare outline survives
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL034-059002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Neglected, but not	overgro	wn.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	Circular graveyard	bounded	d by a stone wall.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Local history refers to this church as "the church that never got built". Story in brief is that a woman passing by the church didn't bless the work so the men downed tools and left. It was never completed. The lack of any architectural fragments my support the story.

Monument No.	CL034-087001	Church Name:	Clooney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Clooney
Co-ordinates:	178364N,142147E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland		1
Other_Description:			And Annual Property and a second seco
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	covered in ivy, which significantly side wall built on a batter. This m	y obscures that part of th hay be an indication of ea hoted that some sandsto	walls in south wall. The eastern end is ne church. There is a buttress to the arly instability and was a repair after one was used in the construction. The
West Wall General Description:	There are no features to recorde	d.
South Wall General Description:	Contains a door and window. The recorded. There is a vault built ag is a buttress, 4.5m in length built	gainst the south wall exte	ivy and could not be properly ernally, located east of the door. There
North Wall General Description:	Contains a window centrally loca by ivy growth.	ted of good size, 1.1m w	vide internally. The window is obscured
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large window, 3.5m h survives in the head, possibly ori		covered by ivy. A wooden timber
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church wall are vertical but t south walls & the east gable. The repaired.		to the eastern end of the north and Ivy to be cut back, the east gable

CL034-087001
Stone
Good
North
old graveyard full.	ld graveyard full. They are cared for none
none
small burial area su condition. There is Newly built stone w	urvives to a large o wall in ex	o the east. The be extension opened ccellent conditior	ounda I to th	ary wall for the o	ld grave	eyard is in good to	o fair
Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓ not known
Predicted increase structure.	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	terioration of we	akened	elements of this
	Stone Good North old graveyard full. none none The old graveyard small burial area su condition. There is Newly built stone v The graveyard is w Vault: High Crosses: not known Predicted increase	Stone Good North Old graveyard full. They are none The old graveyard runs par small burial area survives t condition. There is a large o Newly built stone wall in ex The graveyard is well main Vault: High Crosses: not known Predicted increases in rain	Stone         Good         North         old graveyard full. They are cared for         none         none         The old graveyard runs parallel to the road a small burial area survives to the east. The boc condition. There is a large extension opened. Newly built stone wall in excellent condition. The graveyard is well maintained.         Vault:       Chest Tombs:         High Crosses:       Flat:         not known       Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerat	Stone Good North Old graveyard full. They are cared for none The old graveyard runs parallel to the road and is small burial area survives to the east. The bounda condition. There is a large extension opened to th Newly built stone wall in excellent condition. The graveyard is well maintained. Vault: Chest Tombs: High Crosses: Flat: Newly built accelerate det Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate det	Stone Good North old graveyard full. They are cared for none The old graveyard runs parallel to the road and is mainly to the we small burial area survives to the east. The boundary wall for the o condition. There is a large extension opened to the north of the ex Newly built stone wall in excellent condition. The graveyard is well maintained. Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: High Crosses: Flat: Upright: not known Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of we	Stone         Good         North         old graveyard full. They are cared for         none         none         The old graveyard runs parallel to the road and is mainly to the west of th         small burial area survives to the east. The boundary wall for the old grave         condition. There is a large extension opened to the north of the existing of         Newly built stone wall in excellent condition.         The graveyard is well maintained.         Vault:       Chest Tombs:         High Crosses:       Flat:         Upright:       Image: Construction of the existion of         Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened	Stone         Good         North         old graveyard full. They are cared for         none         none         The old graveyard runs parallel to the road and is mainly to the west of the church, though small burial area survives to the east. The boundary wall for the old graveyard is in good to condition. There is a large extension opened to the north of the existing church and graver Newly built stone wall in excellent condition. The graveyard is well maintained.         Vault:       Chest Tombs:       Mausoleum:       Uninscribed:         High Crosses:       Flat:       Upright:       Pedestal:         not known       Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this

History:

The old Church of Clooney is not one of much antiquity nor antiquarian interest. Its walls are in good preservation and it measures forty five feet six inches in length and twenty in breadth. The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of four feet from the west gable. It is constructed of cut lime stone and measures on the inside eight feet in height and in breadth four feet four inches, and on the outside seven feet in height and three feet four and a half inches in breadth. The same wall contains a round headed window placed at the height of five feet from the present level of the ground on the outside, and measuring on the inside eight feet in height and three feet eleven inches in width and on the outside five feet nine inches in height and five and a half inches in breadth.

The east gable contains a large modern window, measuring on the outside nine feet in height and four feet in width but it is not worth particular description.

The north wall contains a round headed window built of rude stones and not worth attention. The side walls are about eighteen feet high and three feet thick. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. CLOONEY, Sheet 34.—Parish church, 45 feet 6 inches by 20 feet. The south door is pointed. The sides and west end probably date from the fifteenth century; the east end is late. A capital and another carved fragment are built into the south wall. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL034-102001	Church Name:	Killow
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killow
Co-ordinates:	174963N,136986E
Orientation:	E-W		1 m
Category:	Mediaeval		New Street Street
Landscape:	Undulating	Telever also
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor	Contraction of the
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The door arch has been robbed extensive ivy growth on the east	out and there is little to p wall, which spreads to o om the construction of a	m the laneway, but easily accessible. revent it from collapsing. There is ther walls. The south window is n internal vault and memorial plaque
West Wall General Description:	No features to record.
South Wall General Description:	As mentioned, there is a door or wall, head of window is gone.	the south wall. There is	1 window at the eastern end of the
North Wall General Description:	The only feature on this wall is a	small niche on the easte	rn end of the church.
East Wall General Description:	Contains one large window, heig	ht 1.75m. The window h	as a rounded head.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The door and south window are ivy growth. Cut back the ivy repa		fabric is compromised by the heavy n evaluate the structure.

Graveyard Monument	CL034-102002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard,	under g	rass is maintaine	d. The	e extension is gra	velled
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard surr long narrow extens grassed, but has pe burial area for the	sion o th ebble an	e south of the old d stone chippings	l grav . The	eyard with a sma re is a very large	all numb mausol	per of graves. It is eum and a private	not
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of wea	akened	elements of this
History:

There is an old Church and burying ground in the Townland of Killowe to which the old Church gives name, called in Irish Cill-Lugha, i.e., Lugha's Church. It measures thirty seven feet nine inches in length and nineteen feet four inches in breadth, the walls in perfect preservation excepting a small breach over a window in the south side. There is a broken doorway at the distance of nine feet nine inches from the west gable in the south wall. There is a broken topped window twelve feet eight inches from this. The window in the east gable is four feet ten inches wide and about eleven feet high on the inside where, as well as I could ascertain through the thick ivy, it is pointed, five feet seven inches high and six and three quarter inches wide on the outside, where it is semicircular at top and channelled or castrated. There is a very respectable monument belonging to the Stamer family to the right of the window inside.

This Church appears to be a modern one.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839

Monument No.	CL034-104002	Church Name:	Kilbreckan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilbreckan
Co-ordinates:	176340N,137870E	1 2
Orientation:	E-W
Category:		Children Barris
Landscape:	Farmland		the states and
Other_Description:			and the second
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor	and the second	and the second second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:		es 4m in width and surviv	along with north and south wall at ved length of 8m; walls 0.75m thick,
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Little of the structure survives A priority.	full detailed record of the	e surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	CL034-104001
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The landowner Joh	n Lynch	noted that buria	s had	taken place up t	o 80 yr:	s ago.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	John Lynch
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL034-107001	Church Name:	Carntemple
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Noughaval	21.00
Co-ordinates:	176770N138600E	A. C.	A CAR AND AND AND
Orientation:		Charles The State	A SA SA
Category:		and the state	Carl And Carl
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		and the second sec
Access:	Across Fields	and the second shifts	See The Action Service
Condition:	Poor		And a second
Foundation:	Not Visible	and the second second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The site of this church is heavily section of one wall was partially		ishes and not readily accessible. A valuation was not possible.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Appears largely ruined and now remains be carried out as a prio		detailed record of the surviving

Graveyard Monument	CL034-107002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none located
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	not possible to co	mment
History:

CARNTEMPLE, Sheet 34.—Cloney Parish, 20 by 10 feet. The very ancient and massive foundations of an oratory (some of the stones over 6 feet long) in the townland of Noughaval, and called Carntemple. It marks the site of Kilbrecan, one of the first mission churches of Thomond. Founder, Brecan, c. A.D. 480. "Kellbrakyn," 1302, being then a separate parish. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Bunratty Upper.

Monument No.	CL035-022002	Church Name:	St Mochulla's
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Tulla
Co-ordinates:	179840N149270E	-77
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Other	The second secon	uth a
Other_Description:	Hill top in Tulla village		THE AND
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence for this church surviv section of the church wall is at the		cupied by two large vaults. A possible y wall north of Tulla Church
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL035-022001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Good condition ar	ıd very w	ell maintained
Related Structures:	Tulla Church
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	Large graveyard as	sociated	l with Tulla Churc	h.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	National Monume	ents Servi	ice
Climate Effects:	None as church al	l but rem	loved.
History:

TULLA, [145] Sheet 35.—Parish church. A portion of the north wall remains, about 5 feet high, and with the chamfered edge of an ambry. South of it is the ruined seventeenth century church, with a barrel-vaulted chancel. The east window and three south windows are round-headed, and the west door pointed. Founder, Mochulla; date and identity uncertain.

Monument No.	CL035-022003	Church Name:	St. Mochulla's
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Tulla Upper
Co-ordinates:	179890N,149270E	A COLOR
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Undulating		2 51
Other_Description:			E THE
Access:	Beside Public Road	Ment and
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Not Visible	and the second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	church is divided into a nave an maintained. Stone work is excel 15m x 6.6m; the chancel 3.5m x	d chancel. The chancel is lent. The church overall n 3.6m; the nave and chan	National Monument Service. The roofed under slate. The church is well neasures 18.5m x 6.6m; the nave is cel are separated by a transept arch. nemorials built into the north and south
West Wall General Description:	Originally contained the door, the mason's mark.	ne opening of which survi	ives. On the SW corner there is a stone
South Wall General Description:	The south wall contains 3 large decorative string along the sout memorial.		ndow jambs survive. There is a south wall of the chancel also has a
North Wall General Description:	The north wall of the nave conta	ains no features; the chan	icel has two large memorials.
East Wall General Description:		v, height 3.7m. It is noted	t arch with an opening of 3.6m. The that the chancel arch is constructed
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is well maintained. N	None

Graveyard Monument	CL035-022001
Boundary Wall Type:	tone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	Nest
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The grave yards slope away from the church. An old boundary wall to the east suggests an early extension
Related Structures:	Tulla Church
Architectural Fragments:	2 mullions + 2 columns, 179861N,149292E Column base, 179864N,149320E jamb stone, 179875N,149323E Rose carved scroll, 179874N,149327E fluted column, 179878N,149325E Part of memorial, 179880N,149322E column, 179870N,149320E column, 179876N,149323E mullion, 179851N,149287E finial, 179852N,149254E
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard surrounds the church. A boundary wall to the east suggests an early extension, while to the north of the church is a new and extensive graveyard extension. Another extension is proposed.
GRAVEYARD	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Vault
MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Image: Chest TombsHigh Crosses:Flat:Image: Chest TombsImage: Chest TombsHigh Crosses:Flat:Image: Chest Tombs
Owner:	National Monuments Service.
Climate Effects:	Minimal while the church is maintained.
History:

TULLA, [145] Sheet 35.—Parish church. A portion of the north wall remains, about 5 feet high, and with the chamfered edge of an ambry. South of it is the ruined seventeenth century church, with a barrel-vaulted chancel. The east window and three south windows are round-headed, and the west door pointed. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL035-089001	Church Name:	Shankill
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Dangan (Quin)		States Mar Stor
Co-ordinates:	176150N,145890E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second	and the second s
Other_Description:		2 martin
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor	Contraction of the
Foundation:	Bedrock	- 18 12 M P
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	The church is totally ruined and s	survives as tentative wal	ls among other ruined buildings.
West Wall General Description:	nothing to record
South Wall General Description:	nothing to record
North Wall General Description:	nothing to record
East Wall General Description:	nothing to record
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None. Possibly the neary by "spo fragments. The area associated v detailed record of the surviving r	vith ruined buildings to a

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Poor
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	n0ne
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
MARRINGS.	High Crosses:	Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

SHANKILL, Sheet 34.—Quin Parish. A graveyard and fragments of a church near Dangan Ivigen. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL036-017001	Church Name:	Balldonaghan (Killana)
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Balldonaghan		diale.
Co-ordinates:	180770N,160050E	alife a.	and the
Orientation:		and the second	N. H. Horaca
Category:			SAVE
Landscape:	Farmland		AND THE STATE
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	Only a graveyard is known and a	ll traces of it have been re	emoved.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL036-017002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	nothing survives
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL036-024001	Church Name:	Killuran
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killuran
Co-ordinates:	177306N,156790E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:		a de a també
Landscape:	Undulating	THE REAL PROPERTY AND	A har the second
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	There are no remains of this chu	urch.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL036-024002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Graveyard is maint	ained
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Window sill, 17730	4N,156	781E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard cont mausoleum type va		•	-		-
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	✓ ✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Of the Church of Killuran not a vestige remains but nineteen feet of the south wall to the height of about twelve feet and two and a half feet in thickness, built of brown mountain stone and apparently of modern erection. There is a large graveyard attached to it.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.KILLURAN, Sheet 36.—Parish church. 19 feet of the south wall stood in 1839. There was a window in it (not named in O. S. Letters); now entirely levelled. I found a late carved stone head in 1893. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Lower

Monument No.	CL038-003001	Church Name:	St Sean's
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Mutton Island
Co-ordinates:	174607N,098048E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other		the second s
Other_Description:	Island
Access:	Island
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	Recent survey of Mutton Island or visited during this survey.	confirms that little survive	es of this oratory. The island was not
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:
Graveyard Monument	none
---	---------------------	-------	--------------	------------	--------------	--
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal as it is ru	ined.
History:

INISCAERACH (MUTTON ISLAND), Sheet 38.—Kilmurry Parish. In 1887 I found the coarsely built west wall of a small oratory still standing in a cultivated field, and two roughly-shaped flag-pillars in a field to the north. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900. Lewis gives this account of Mutton Island; "On its shores are some curious natural caves, formerly used by smugglers for storing contraband goods. Here are an old signal tower and the ruins of an ancient structure, said to have been founded by St. Senan of Inniscattery." This small oratory, dedicated to St. Senan has since fallen into the sea. A Description in 1837 (County Clare A History and Topography by Samuel Lewis).

Monument No.	CL038-010001	Church Name:	Kilmurry
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Shandrun
Co-ordinates:	173267N,101912E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval	2
Landscape:	Farmland	1
Other_Description:		Las A
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:		ast gable is ruined. Two s	2m thick. There are two internal vaults, styles of construction survive in the end indicative of an upper level.
West Wall General Description:	There is a damaged bell-cote ove	er and a small upper wind	dow, a vault is built on the NW corner.
South Wall General Description:	is a small upper window at the w	central window between vestern end. There are 2 d	e east and west windows are the door and westerly window. There corbels on the south wall to the east of Il internally. There are 4 external vaults
North Wall General Description:	The north wall had two corbels a	nd no other features. Th	is wall has a vertical split.
East Wall General Description:	The east gable is largely ruined.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The north wall is in poor condition evaluate this structure and repair		ecome dangerous. There is a need to

Graveyard Monument	CL038-010002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	There is a large number of flat graves in both parts of the graveyard. There are also a good number of large vaults. Low maintenance as there is little grass.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard was to the south of the church. The graveyard extension is to the east, across the road.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed: 🗹
	High Crosses: Flat: Upright: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known.
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure.

The old Church of Kilmurry measures in length eighty six feet six inches and in breadth twenty four feet four inches. The west gable is nearly perfect and contains a quadrangular window placed at the height of fourteen feet from the ground, measuring on the outside about three feet in height and ten inches in width. In the south wall close to the west gable there are two windows one placed over the other, the lower at the height of three feet from the ground and the upper about twelve feet. The former measures on the outside two feet six inches in height and six inches in width, and the higher window is nearly of the same dimensions. They are constructed of chipped stones. The same wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of nineteen feet from the west gable and measuring in height on the inside six feet six inches, and in breadth three feet nine inches, and on the outside six feet in height and three in width. At the distance of fourteen feet six inches to the east of this doorway, in the same wall, there is a window, quadrangular inside and outside and measuring on the inside three feet nine inches by three feet eight inches, but broken on the outside. At the distance of ten feet from the east end there is a rude quadrangular doorway not stopped up with mason work. Within two feet of the east gable there is a pointed window of cut stone placed at the height of three feet six inches from the present level of the ground on the outside and measuring on the outside four feet six inches in height and eight inches in width.

The east gable is entirely destroyed and the north wall is featureless.

The side walls of this Church are about sixteen feet high and four feet two inches thick. The western part of it to the extent of twenty seven feet six inches is much more ancient than the remaining part. It is built of thin long flags from three to four feet in length and about three inches in thickness. The eastern part is built of larger stones, which were hammered.

This church, like all those dedicated to the Blessed Virgin in Ireland, is very modern and does not exhibit one ancient characteristic or feature.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL040-014001	Church Name:	Kilmaley
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmaley
Co-ordinates:	174715N,125528E
Orientation:	E-W	and the second second
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	THE R. LOW CO. LOW CO. LOW CO.	And
Other_Description:		Citta of Star
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	northern extent of the east gabl gable. The church is 20m in leng to east gable and south wall, ea	e and a small portion of t th by c.6m width. The wa	th and west walls are missing. As is the he south wall where it meets the west Ils are 1m thick. Established ivy growth
West Wall General Description:	The west wall is gone
South Wall General Description:	which obscures the easterly and suggesting considerable alteration	l westerly window. The so ons to internal floor heigh small porch or similar. The	gainst the outside of the south wall outh door now appears to be quite low, nt of the church. Externally 2 diagonal ese stones were asymmetrical to each oth wall. External water stoop
North Wall General Description:	Nothing survives.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a double niche in the S window is heavily obscured by i		double ogee with central mullion. The rk is on the south window jamb.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The east gable
Graveyard Monument	CL040-014002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	All the graveyards	All the graveyards are well maintained, having a well cared for appearance.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Corbel, 174711N, Corbel, 174709N, Mullion, 174703N	125529E
Graveyard General \Description	corner of the grav changes significar extension contain	The early graveyard surrounding the church is dominated by flat graves with vaults in the SE corner of the graveyard. Going north of the graveyard to the road, the style of graveyard marker changes significantly to more modern marks. Further north and across the road is a large extension containing only modern upright pedestal markers. A 3rd graveyard extension was identified some distance to the east.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	no known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure.
History:

Of the Church of Cill-Mhaille, the south wall and east gable only remain, both to the full height. The south wall measures sixty five feet in length and the gable twenty feet in breadth. Within one and a half feet of the end of the south wall is a pointed window, inaccessible from vaults being built up against it. At the distance of ten feet from this is a pointed doorway of cut limestone measuring six feet three inches in height and four and a half feet in breadth on the inside, and five feet seven inches in height and three feet seven a half inches in breadth on the outside.

At the distance of fifteen feet ten inches from this doorway is another pointed window, five feet three inches high and two feet nine inches wide on the inside; four feet high and five and a half inches wide on the outside, built up of cut limestone. At the distance of sixteen feet six and a half inches from this is another pointed window, five feet four inches high and five feet wide on the inside; four feet two inches high and six inches wide on the outside.

The window in the east gable is semi-circular on the inside, measuring seven feet eight inches in height and three feet eight and a half inches in breadth; pointed on the outside, where it is five feet nine inches high and one foot five inches wide, divided into two parts, six inches in breadth each, by a mullion. This window had shutters on the outside, the iron hooks of which remain yet in the wall. The walls are three feet four inches thick and about twelve feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILMALEY, Sheet 40.—Parish church, 67 feet 6 inches by 20 feet. The east gable and south wall remain, and date about 1450. The east window has two trefoil heads (shaft gone); the iron staples of its shutters remain, and a "Patrick's cross" is cut on the jamb. The splay has a well built semicircular head. The plain south door has a stoup in the outer right jamb. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Islands.

Monument No.	CL042-027003	Church Name:	St Finghin's
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Commons
Co-ordinates:	174536N,141759E
Orientation:	E-W		a. 1
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	Chana.
Other_Description:	within Quin village	ALL?	T. A.
Access:	Beside Public Road	ADDITION OF THE PERSON
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	addition. The north wall is reduce on 3 corners, probably contemp	ced to c. 1m height along orary with the tower, the	ouilt to the south west corner, a later entire length. The church is buttressed NW excepted. The church measures vy to the east gable, south wall and less
West Wall General Description:	blocks and there appears to be e upper door opening off the tow the western end. No corbels sur	evidence of a chimney in er, indicating that the chu vive to confirm this. Ther	the tower. The tower is built from cut the tower. There are windows and an urch had an upper floor level at least at re is evidence of a blocked upper high up on the SW corner of the tower.
South Wall General Description:	corner, 2.2m x 1.7m; there is als	o a buttress on the south buttress. There is a wind	re is a buttress on the south east n west, 2.2m on west side, 4.2m on east low to the east and west of the door. oor survives.
North Wall General Description:	Survives to 1m height. At NW co	orner there is a large butt	ress 2.2m square at the base.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall is dominated by a the windows on the east wall.	tripartite window, 4.1m i	n width. There are niches either side of
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The ivy is becoming established be cut back, repairs to the door		d easterly window are damaged. Ivy to aintenance.

Graveyard Monument	CL042-027004
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A well maintained	graveya	rd
Related Structures:	It is in vicinity of Q	It is in vicinity of Quin Abbey.
Architectural Fragments:	There is are windo South of the south A window jamb sto Stone is piled up w	wall, 17 one, 174	4536N,141759E 536N,141759E
Graveyard General \Description	The area north of t is the surviving gra accessed from the	veyard t	o the south. Ther	e is a	large mausoleur	n in the	graveyard, which
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of wea	kened	elements of this
L l'ata a u

The ruins of the Church of St. Finghin stand on the west side of the river opposite the ruins of the Abbey, measuring seventy nine feet in length and twenty seven feet in breadth. The north wall is down to the ground, the gables and south side remain to their original height. A square tower about fifty six feet in height is built at the southeast angle, the door opening into the Church, measuring within four feet eight inches from east to west and four feet from north to south, the wall one foot eleven inches thick at the height of five feet six inches from the ground, where there is a small quadrangular window in the north side. It has a flat stone floor at the height of about eight feet from the ground, through which is an oblong aperture near the north wall.

There is a pointed doorway, its sides broken, in the south wall, fourteen feet four inches from the west gable. Twenty nine feet from this is a window with a flat circular head inside, where it measures about eight feet in height and five feet in breadth, divided in front by a pillar of masonry into two pointed divisions, five feet three inches in height and each six inches wide. Within three four inches of the east gable is another window, broken at top, front and sides, except the western side within, which is built up with ornamented cut stones. It was five feet four inches in breadth and six feet ten inches to the springing of the arch. The window in the east gable is thirteen feet wide inside, divided into three parts by columns of masonry, but the height or form at top cannot be ascertained on account of the quantity of ivy by which the gable is so thickly covered. The south wall is three feet four inches thick and about eighteen feet high. No part of the ruins appear to me to be older than the 15th century, if so old, therefore they must not be parts of the Church mentioned in the following article from the Annals of the Four Masters: Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. QUIN, ST. FINGHIN'S CHURCH, Sheet 42.—Parish Church, 79 by 27 feet. A Gothic church, built probably about 1280, with a later belfry tower. The east window is a triple lancet, the south window richly moulded. Founder, Finghin; identity doubtful. The well Toberinghine is dedicated to Inghean Baoith. "Cuinche," in 1110, was adopted by the Synod of Rathbreasail as a boundary mark for the diocese of Killaloe and that of Limerick. "Cil Cuinche" was burned by the Irish over De Clare's soldiers in 1279. Description, R.S.A.I., 1900, and a view, R.S.A.I., 1890, p. 292. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL042-083001	Church Name:	Finlough Church
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Finlough Church
Co-ordinates:	170430N,143560E
Orientation:	E-W		ALCONTA - TAN
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second	and the property of
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		1000
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second second	the has been
Condition:	Dangerous
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	the east gable (this was believed west wall are heavily overgrown overgrown, as is the interior of t	I to be due to excessive of with ivy. The north wall t he church. It is noted that y growth on this wall cou all has been partially robb	en subject to the complete collapse of f ivy growth) The surviving south and chough reduced in height is extensively t the west gable has a large breach, (a Id contribute to its collapse, given its ed out.
West Wall General Description:	_	etails were observed save	ay or may not be the remnants of a e two corbels, as the wall is covered
South Wall General Description:	on the south wall to the west of and a vault. Ivy growth has obsc more windows at the eastern en	the door. Immediately to ured the window immed of the wall, a double an obscured by ivy growth. Th	he two small windows as described jut
North Wall General Description:	A small window survives to the v internal mausoleum. The averag		wall. At the eastern end there is a large 2m.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall now lies complete The stone work is covered in veg		d having collapsed some years ago.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in p back. The west ga			•			- he ivy to be cut h	ard
Graveyard Monument	CL042-83002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:		All rave yard areas are maintained, however part of the graveyard around The church is closed to visitors, unsafe structure.
Related Structures:	St. Luchtigern's O	ratory
Architectural Fragments:	carved door jamb	arch sto	ne, 170430N,143	560E
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard west of the church graveyard area. T	h. Beyon	d the old graveya	rd is a	2nd graveyard a	ind bey	ond that a 3rd	uth-
GRAVEYARD						✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increas structure.	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of wea	kened	elements of this
History

The old Church of Tuaimfinlough measures seventy one feet in length and twenty five feet in breadth, the walls to the full height, side walls fifteen feet high and two feet ten inches thick.

There is a pointed doorway in the west gable, nearer to the north than to the south side, measuring four feet nine inches in height and three feet six inches in breadth, the wall broken a little over it, and at its sides.

There was a quadrangular window nearly over it which is now closed up with mason work. About four feet in height of the lower part of this gable appears to be much older than the other parts of it, and the little doorway does not appear to be of the same age with it. There is a broken pointed doorway in the south side twelve feet nine inches from the west gable. There is a quadrangular window at the distance of twenty five feet from this, measuring about two feet in height and ten inches in breadth in front, partly stopped up and covered with ivy, and a vault inside. At the distance of seven feet from this is another window, semicircular within and measuring eight feet three inches in height and three feet two and a half inches in breadth, pointed outside and measuring five feet two inches in height, five and a half inches in breadth at top and seven inches at bottom, built up all through of handsome brown grit cut stone, channelled or rabitted in front. Within six feet six inches of the east gable is a window divided into two pointed divisions by a little pillar of masonry in front, and a handsome hexagonal column of grit within, with a passage between the column and pillar, each division measuring ten feet six inches in height within and seven feet in height in front, but all the stones in front here have been taken away or have fallen out, except the arch of the one next the gable. It measures five feet five inches in breadth on the inside, the whole built up of the same kind of stone with the last mentioned window, and ornamented at the springing of the arches (within) with sculptured human heads, now very much mouldered by the action of the weather. There is a vault under this window in the foundation, but whether it was for sculpture or passage, nobody knows.

The window in the east gable is round at top inside, measuring nine feet six inches in height and four feet one inch in breadth, divided in front into two shamrock headed divisions by a mullion six and a half inches in breadth, each division nine and a half inches wide. This window which does not appear to be many centuries old, is inserted in another window, twelve feet one inch wide; the top, which reaches high up in the gable, covered with ivy, so that its form cannot be ascertained. The sides of this window appear on the outside of the wall, all built up of the same sort of grit as that already mentioned. There is a square headed window in the north side five feet from west gable, about six feet high and four feet wide.

About thirty feet in length and about nine feet in height of the south wall extending from the door eastward and including the little quadrangular window, appears to me to be as old, at least, as the early part of the 10th century. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. TOMFINLOUGH, [131] Sheet 42.—Parish church, 71 by 25 feet 6 inches. The side walls are very early, of large "cyclopean" masonry in parts; two windows remain, one flat-headed, with inclined jambs; the other is recessed, and has a semicircular head, probably of the eleventh century. The church was evidently partly rebuilt about 1300, perhaps by the English settlers under the De Clare. It had a plain three-light east window, and a richly moulded pointed double-light south window, the capitals carved with leaves, and the hood resting on faces, two pointed heads, and a central detached shaft with moulded bands (now fallen). A well-moulded ambry remains in the south-east corner. The older east window is now defaced by a well-made late fifteenth-century one, with semicircular headed splay and two trefoil-headed lights (shaft intact), with a square hood. The west gable is badly breached; near it are corbels marking the position of a gallery, which was reached by a door (about 7 feet above the ground) in the north wall. The south door is defaced. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL042-083003	Church Name:	Finlough, (St. Luchtigern's Ora
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Finlough		Name and the second
Co-ordinates:	170390N,143610E
Orientation:			and the card of
Category:	Early Christian	State -
Landscape:	Farmland		the second second
Other_Description:		New York
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		A TRACT	A MARK
Foundation:		All and a second	and a start of the
Masonry:
General Description:			g church, it is marked by 3 stone eads is the only indication of an early
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL042-083002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Finlough Church
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There is no separa	ate grave	yard with oratory	; it is	part of Finlough	Church
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	The exposed head	ds will sut	ffer accelerated w	veath	ering with increa	sed rair	nfall.

About sixty yards south east from the south east angle of the Church and included in a kitchen garden wall, is a piece of a wall nine feet high and twelve feet three inches long, finished at the extremities with large cut stones, like the angles of the gable of a house, and having a quadrangular doorway in the centre measuring four feet ten in height from the present level of the ground, one foot nine and a half inches in breadth at top and two feet two inches at bottom, covered by a lintel stone five feet long and ten inches thick, but what the condition or appearance of this piece of wall may be on the other side I was not able to ascertain as it forms part of the wall of a gentleman's kitchen garden, to which I could not at the time gain access.

There can be little doubt that this was the west gable or end of a very ancient Church, of the existence of which no traditional account remains in the district.

Over the doorway are placed three heads (human) sculptured in stone.

Of these heads the middle one is very much defaced, all its features having given way to the action of the weather, while the other heads retain their features in a good state of preservation.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. Same, ORATORY.—To the south-east of the last. Only the end wall remains, having a door with lintel and inclined jambs, and above it three corbels with human faces. A very early building. It is 12 feet wide externally. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL043-027001	Church Name:	Clonlea
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Clonea	-
Co-ordinates:	173062N,150352E		port and a
Orientation:	E-W	A:	10000000
Category:	Mediaeval	K
Landscape:	Farmland		make what a state of the
Other_Description:			A REAL PROPERTY.
Access:	Beside Public Road	Pre-
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	west gable have been shuttered south wall; some 20m survives o	and concrete repaired. T f the south wall, but app th wall and it has pulled s red gritstone in the wal similar technique was n
West Wall General Description:	The west wall contains a small hi undisturbed. There is a bell-cote limestone; however, the arch sto	over the west gable, it is	ch appears to be original and well constructed from cut dressed
South Wall General Description:		has been subject to the s	re reduced in height to 1.2m for most hutter concrete repairs as mentioned ve survived.
North Wall General Description:	No features to record. There is to growth on north wall.	umble on the east and we	est ends and there is extensive ivy
East Wall General Description:	The east wall is doubtful and ap survives to a height of approx 1n		d of 'replacement rubble'. It only
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:		o have this building strue	the splitting wall, which may be "on the cturally examined and appropriate

Graveyard Monument	CL043-027002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North	lorth
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A well maintained	well maintained graveyard.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	barge stone and m	ullion, 1	73062N,150352E	-
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard maintained.	surround	ds the church wit	h an e	extension to the	north. B	oth are well
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of wea	kened	elements of this

The old ruined Church of Clonlea stands about half a mile east of the Village of Kilkishen over a handsome lake to which it gives name; the walls are in good preservation excepting a small breach in the lower part of the north wall near the east gable. It measures forty two feet in length and eighteen feet nine inches in breadth. There is a window in the west gable but so thickly covered with ivy that its form could not be seen through it. At the distance of sixteen feet five inches from this gable, in the south wall, is a semicircular doorway measuring eight feet in height and four feet in breadth inside, and seven feet in height and two feet seven and three-quarter inches in breadth outside, built with cut stones through and through, the arch stones on the inside extending to the outer circle, say two feet one inch deep; the stones in the inner jamb on the left as you go in appear in material and workmanship to be much older than the other parts of the door. At the distance of thirteen feet four inches from the door to the east is a window measuring three feet six inches in breadth on the inside, but so thickly covered with ivy at the top and front that its form or further dimensions could not at the time be seen.

The window in the east gable is so thickly covered with ivy at top that I could not discover its precise form. It measures four feet seven inches in breadth and about eight feet in height on the inside, where it is built up with handsomely cut red grit stone; on the outside it is three feet eleven inches high and five and a half inches wide at top and six and a half inches at bottom, curvilineally pointed and built of the same kind of stone as the inside, rabbit cut all around the edge. The walls are three feet thick, no part of them appearing to me to be of any great antiquity but the stones already mentioned as placed in the left hand side of the doorway as you go in, and these appear to have belonged to an older edifice. There is a large burying ground attached to the ruin. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL043-046002	Church Name:	Kilmurry
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmurry
Co-ordinates:	170690N,147134E
Orientation:
Category:			artised
Landscape:	Undulating	A POIN
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		XX
Condition:		and the second second
Foundation:			A CONTRACTOR
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence for this church survi	ves above ground.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL043-046001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A large well mainta	ined gra	aveyard with old a	and n	ewer burials defi	ned. Th	nere is an outside	altar.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The early graveyard park and footpath bounded by a ston onto the extension	that leac e wall in	ds to extension ar	nd int	o the old graveya	ard. The	e old graveyard is
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Of the old Church of Killmurry nothing now remains but twenty one feet in length of the north wall to the height of about ten feet, with no appearance of antiquity. There is a burying ground attached to the ruin. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL044-028001	Church Name:	Killokennedy
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilokennedy
Co-ordinates:	173523N,161131E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second	A A Limping
Other_Description:		THE AVE
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:		Sec. Margare
Foundation:			and the second sec
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives to be recorded	d.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL044-0228001
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A air of neglect, bu	ir of neglect, but the grass was not over-long
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Barge stone, door	Barge stone, door jamb stone, 173511N,161121E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is re	easonabl	y maintained wit	n patl	ıways.
GRAVEYARD				✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

The old Church of Kill-O'Kennedy is situated in Glen-Omra about two miles to the north east of Broadford. It is fifty six feet long and twenty three feet ten inches broad. The north wall is built of large field stones and appears ancient, but the south wall is built of quarried stones and does not exhibit so much of the impress of age as the north one. The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of sixteen feet from the west gable, and measuring on the inside seven feet in height and three feet nine inches in width, and on the outside six feet one inch in height and three feet in width. It does not appear to be of coeval erection with the north wall. The two gables are destroyed down to the very foundations but some of the foundation stones remain in the original position, by which I was enabled to ascertain the exact length of the Church as given above. This was never divided into nave and choir; its side walls are ten feet high from the present level of the ground. The north wall contains an ancient little window measuring on the inside three feet five inches in height and three feet two inches in width, and on the outside three feet two inches in height and four and a half inches in width, and covered at top inside and outside with small lintels. It has been ascertained at this window that the wall is three feet three inches thick. There was another window on the south wall near the south east corner, but it is so injured that its characteristic features cannot be ascertained. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL044-035001	Church Name:	Kilseily
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilseily
Co-ordinates:	172535N,155733E		and a second second second
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		A NOM
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Ivy Covered	-En
Foundation:	Not Visible	C. MILLING P
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	it from the road, Built from grit church is dominated by a large door opening appears to have b	and sandstone, with occa Mausoleum dedicated to been altered in recent tim ving into and out of the cl	umber of trees and hedgerows obscure asional shale in pieces. The inside of the Bentley Family. 8.34m in length. The as there are bricks over the door hurch wall at the south west corner. The
West Wall General Description:	Contains a single door, as noted head has been replaced by bricks and a spud stone survives. This maybe a later insert.
South Wall General Description:	Most of the internal south wall near the SE corner, although it i	-	soleum, however, a window survives
North Wall General Description:	There are no features on the no large and intricate memorial pla		ears to have been built on a batter. A north walls at the eastern end.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single window of goo stone. There is a niche in the NE		xtensively obstructed by ivy and some
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in fair/good condi externally. The ivy to be cut bac		y and the south wall is damaged structure evaluated.

Graveyard Monument	CL044-035002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	not well maintain	ed.
Related Structures:	There is a holy we	ell south	of the church, sou	th of	the graveyard.
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is a cutting was obser overgrown. The b	rved. The	boundary wall w	nere o	observable was in	n fair co		S
GRAVEYARD						✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	_
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increas structure.	es in rair	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of wea	akened	elements of this
History:
				( )

The ruined Church of Kilseely is situated about one mile southwest of Broadford at the foot of a steep hill. It measures forty seven feet four inches in length and twenty feet in breadth. All its architectural features are destroyed except the window in the east gable which shews it to be about a century and a half old. It does not come properly under the head of antiquity.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILSEILY, Sheet 44.—Parish church, 47 feet 4 inches by 20 feet. A late church. Well dedicated to Seily. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Lower.

Monument No.	CL045-033003	Church Name:	Friar Island's Oratory, St Moul
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Knockyclovaeun
Co-ordinates:	172889N,170422E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Kilaloe Town
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second s
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Rubble	And the second second
General Description:	submerged; therefore, it was rem parts, nave and chancel. The ove	bry was on Friar's Island egan, water levels would noved and rebuilt on its rall dimensions of the b
West Wall General Description:	The west gable contains the door church construction.	est gable contains the door opening, which is tapered with a squared head, typical of early n construction.
South Wall General Description:	A narrow door access the chance a window at the eastern end of t	•	he in the south chancel wall. There was
North Wall General Description:	There are no features, save a nic	he in the chancel
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a single w	indow. There are two sn	nall niches in the east wall.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Excellent condition, none

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	Historic town
Architectural Fragments:	a stone oblong basin, 172889N,170422E
Graveyard General \Description	There is a cluster with the modern of		type graves east	of the	oratory, but the	se are r	nore likely associa	ated
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	National Monume	ents Serv	vice
Climate Effects:	while maintained	minimal
History:

FRIAR'S ISLAND ORATORY, 10 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 6 inches. A small barrel-vaulted oratory with an over croft and east window slit with semicircular head. To this was added probably in the ninth century a nave 21 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 8 inches. It had a lintelled door with inclined jambs, The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Lower

Monument No.	CL045-033015	Church Name:	St Flannan's Oratory
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Knockyclovauen
Co-ordinates:	172942N,170086E		THE REAL
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Kilaloe Town
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Excellent	and the second second
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	by the graveyard on north and w	vest sides. The oratory ha he church sits below the	a more recent church and surrounded is a barrel vault and a door at both the level of the present graveyard and is etween wall and church.
West Wall General Description:	gable above the door. There are	corbel on the external w	oor arch with a window high in the all on either side of the door. The door re built onto the western side of the
South Wall General Description:	Contains a single small high set p	pointed head window app	prox midway on this wall.
North Wall General Description:	Contains a single small high set p	pointed head window app	prox midway on this wall.
East Wall General Description:	Contains the main door into the opening into the church. There is	-
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Excellent condition, none

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Historic town
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There is a churchy	ard to th	e west and north	of th	e oratory that be	longs to	o the later church	•
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
					opright.		reacstal.
Owner:	National Monume	ent Servio	ces
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	•
History:

ORATORY, 36 feet 6 inches by 25 feet 6 inches. A very perfect barrel-vaulted oratory with an over croft. Inserted west door, with bold plain mouldings and semicircular head. A chancel was added, but has been levelled. The popular name is Brian Boru's vault. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Lower

Monument No.	CL046-003001	Church Name:	Killard
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Farrehy
Co-ordinates:	167085N,094972E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Coastal		Auto
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor	- Charles	THE THEFT
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:		mal buttress repair was n	ection above the north and south wall nade on the north wall at the eastern k.
West Wall General Description:	Contains a single round headed	window.
South Wall General Description:	There are 2 windows, one at the is probably associated with the		t. The central area of wall is missing and
North Wall General Description:	There are no features associated	d with the north wall save	e the buttress repair at the east end.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single round headed	window.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is considerably ruine record of the surviving remains		g surviving features. A full detailed y.

Graveyard Monument	CL046-003002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	There is a holy wel	l to the r	north of the grave	eyard.
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is or graves throughout mausoleums to the	the grav	veyard which is ov	/ergro	own. There are a	-
GRAVEYARD	L	_				_
MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase structure.	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of wea	ikened e	elements of this

The ruined old Church of Killard stands in Killard Townland to which it gave name, measuring sixty three feet in length and fourteen feet four inches in breadth, both gables remaining to the full height and of the north wall five feet remains attached to the west gable and thirty four feet to the east gable, and of the south twelve feet remains joined to the west gable and twenty one feet to the east gable. There is a quadrangular topped belfry in good preservation on the west gable and a quadrangular window underneath at the height of eight feet from the ground, measuring four feet in height and two and a half feet in breadth on the inside, two feet eight inches high and eight inches wide on the outside. There is a broken window in the south side eight feet from the west end. There is another quadrangular window in the same side within four feet four inches of the east gable, measuring three feet in height and two feet eleven inches in breadth on the inside, two feet five inches high, four inches wide at top and five at bottom on the outside. There is a window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and two and a half feet in breadth on the inside, where it is built up with brown grit cut stone as far as the springing of the arch, which is a rectilineally pointed one, composed of two green thin flags unlike any of the stones immediately around them. On the outside it is semicircular at top, measuring one foot nine inches in height and ten inches in breadth, looking very old as does the entire of this gable and the parts of the side walls that attach to it, being built up of large blocks of stones irregularly placed. The side walls are about ten feet high and two and a half thick, the west gable appearing more modern than the other parts. There is a large and much frequented burying ground attached to the ruin. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILLARD, Sheet 46.—Parish church, 63 feet by 14 feet 4 inches. The gables and fragments of the adjoining walls remain, The east window had a semicircular head. The two south windows were respectively square and round-headed. The west gable had a plain bell chamber. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL047-047001	Church Name:	Kilmacduane
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmacduane East
Co-ordinates:	163682N,105098E	No. State	ANT PLATE
Orientation:	E-W	Salar Salar	ALL STRANGER
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Undulating	A DECK	A 1 *
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Ivy Covered		7
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:		-	orth and south wall are missing, the Id be recorded, 7.2m; wall thickness
West Wall General Description:	West gable is missing.
South Wall General Description:	Contains a window and niche, w	hich is located in the sou	th east corner.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features associated	d with the north wall.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single window.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in a ruinous condistructure evaluated.	tion and impacted by ivy	growth. He ivy to cut had back and the

Graveyard Monument	CL047-047002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is tightly filled and what little grass there is controlled. The holy well is to the west between the old and new graveyards.
Related Structures:	holy well
Architectural Fragments:	2 barge stones, 163682N,105098E
Graveyard General \Description	There are a number of vaults to the west of the graveyard. Between the vaults and remains of church are a number of flat graves. To the immediate east of the church is another small concentration of vaults. A new extension has been defined further west of the western extent of the graveyard. Both old and new graveyard are well maintained. The old graveyard has a stone boundary wall in good condition. The extension graveyard has a wooden fence boundary.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed: High Crosses: Flat: Vpright: Pedestal:
Owner:	High Crosses: □ Flat:   Upright:   Pedestal:
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure. Ivy growth will be more vigorous.

Of the old Church of Kill-Mac-a-Dubhain the east gable and twenty five feet of the side walls attached to it only remain, all to the full original height. There is a semi-curricular window in the south side thirteen feet from the east gable, measuring eight feet three inches high and five feet three inches wide on the inside and five and a half feet in height and eleven inches in breadth on the outside. The window in the east gable is pointed, measuring seven feet four inches in breadth and about twelve feet in height on the inside, and nine feet eight inches in height and one foot nine inches in breadth on the outside. The sides perforated with holes for the reception of bars. The side walls are about sixteen feet high and three feet thick, built of large stones, but not of apparent antiquity. It measured twenty three feet eight inches in breadth. A large burying ground attached. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILMACDUAN, Sheet 47.—Parish church. The east gable and portions of the sides remain; it was built of flagstones on a rising ground near a stream. The east window is well moulded, and has an ogee head. It dates from the later fifteenth century. The south window is very early; it is made of sandstone, and recessed with inclined jambs; the older head has been replaced by a plain semicircular head of flagstone. The walls have a neat cornice with wedge-shaped corbels. Round the church remains a "village" of over thirty vaults. KILMACDUAN, Sheet 47.—Parish church. The east gable and portions of the sides remain; it was built of flagstones on a rising ground near a stream. The east window is well moulded, and has an ogee head. It dates from the later fifteenth century. The south window is very early; it is made of sandstone, and recessed with inclined jambs; the older head has been replaced by a plain semicircular head of flagstone. The walls have a neat cornice with wedge-shaped corbels. Round the church remains a "village" of over thirty vaults. KILMACDUAN, Sheet 47.—Parish church. The east gable and portions of the sides remain; it was built of flagstones on a rising ground near a stream. The east window is well moulded, and has an ogee head. It dates from the later fifteenth century. The south window is very early; it is made of sandstone, and recessed with inclined jambs; the older head has been replaced by a plain semicircular head of flagstone. The walls have a neat cornice with wedge-shaped corbels. Round the church remains a "village" of over thirty vaults. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL047-053001	Church Name:	Doonbeg
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Doonbeg
Co-ordinates:	165407N,096859E
Orientation:
Category:		. 1
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	in Doonbeg village		1: 1
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:
Foundation:		and a state of the Real Property in the Real Proper	And a
Masonry:
General Description:	Only a location area survives
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL047-053002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is r	near capa	city. Little mainte	enanc	e required, but ir	n good (	order.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	2 finials, cut stone	e, 165407	7N,096859E
Graveyard General \Description	Large graveyard p	arallel to	the road. Site of	churc	h north of grave	yard.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul><li>✓</li></ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL048-063001	Church Name:	St Michael's
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Kilmihil
Co-ordinates:	164028N,110921E
Orientation:	E-W		and the second
Category:	Late-Mediaeval	ACE here	the ATT
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Within Kilmihil village.
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible	And the second
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	The church is single cell, and mean 0.76m, west and south 1.1m. The		I the walls vary in thickness, east o the west gable.
West Wall General Description:		ernally a flagstone arch s	uggesting an early date for this church. urvives over the door, possibly a porch puld not be recorded.
South Wall General Description:			the door. There is a niche in extreme horizontally. All 3 windows have
North Wall General Description:	No features to record.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single ruined window	, only the opening surviv	res and a niche to the south east corner.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good condition with a second tion with the west gable before it	-	ing maintenance, and the removal of

Graveyard Monument	CL048-063002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard s modern grave marl	•	est to east, and is	s tigh	tly filled. The exte	ension {	graveyard reflects	S
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard s within it. There are There are numerou the nearby modern	two ext Is paths	ensions both to t through the grav	he so eyard	uth of the gravey s. To the east of	/ard, pa the grav	rallel to each oth veyard associated	er.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
MARKINGS.	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases structure.	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of wea	kened e	elements of this
History:

The old Church of this Parish, which is dedicated to St. Michael, is very modern and scarcely worth attention, but we shall nevertheless describe it minutely from (because of) our veneration for its Patron Saint.

It measures seventy feet in length and nineteen feet six inches in breadth. Its west gable contains two features, a small belfry on the top which is much injured and a doorway at the bottom, which, although in the usual position of the primitive Irish doorways, is still decidedly not many centuries old. Its measurements cannot be obtained in the inside but on the outside it is five feet ten inches high and three feet three inches wide.

The south wall contains a square window placed at the distance of four feet from the west gable and measuring on the outside four feet seven inches in height and six inches in width. At the distance of ten feet six inches to the east of this, in the same wall, is a pointed doorway constructed of well cut stone and measuring on the outside six feet in height and three feet nine inches in width. At the distance of eleven feet eight inches from this was another window, but all its features are destroyed. Within three feet six inches of the east gable there is another window which is round-headed, placed at the height of four feet from the ground and measuring on the inside six feet seven inches in height and five feet ten inches in width, and on the outside four feet nine inches in height and six inches in breadth.

The east gable contains a pointed window measuring on the inside about twelve feet in height and six feet ten inches in width and on the outside (where it is placed at the height of six feet from the ground) about eight feet six inches in height and one foot six and a half inches in breadth. It appears to be two inches narrower at the top. It is constructed of well-cut lime stones, and bar holes appear in its sides at regular distances.

The side walls are twelve feet high and four feet thick and constructed of good quarried stones laid in regular courses. All the features of this Church are constructed of well-cut lime stones. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILMIHIL, Sheet 48.—Parish church, 70 feet by 19 feet 6 inches. A late building; the east window is pointed with inclined jambs and a single light. The west gable has a small bell chamber and a doorway. The south door is pointed; there were three south windows lintelled, two defaced and three round headed. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL050-011001	Church Name:	Clondegad
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Knockalehid
Co-ordinates:	165993N,127129E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Undulating	ALL A TH
Other_Description:			HERE SUT AND ADDRESS OF ADDRESS O
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	This is believed to be the only u corners to the eastern end with of cut block, shale and flagstone choir stall at the western end of tower. It should be noted that be The ground slopes away steeply	pstanding example. The c a bell tower to the west. e, with limestone in the co the church where the churck was also used in cons to the north and east. Th	o have been built during this period. hurch is unusual in that it has rounded Building material is varied with the use onstruction. Evidence survives for a urch was entered through the bell struction, notably in internal features. he main body of the church is 13.5m in the is some variation in wall thickness,
West Wall General Description:		ately above that is anothe	door at ground level that permits er which allows access to choir stall.
South Wall General Description:	Contains 2 windows identical to The south wall of the bell tower		all niche to south east at ground level. h, with two windows over.
North Wall General Description:			iche in the north wall, but this is at an tall which overlooked the church floor.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large single window,	2.8m high, 1.5m in width
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	This is the only surviving example and therefore worthy of maintained preservation. The church to be maintained with appropriate repairs, in particular the door arch, and several windows require attention
---	--
Graveyard Monument	CL050-011002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Little to maintain, but graveyard has a neglected appearance.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The churchyard is situated to the north of the church on slightly sloping ground, divided by central path. A large mausoleum/vault is built against bell tower, western end.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure.
History:

There remains not a trace of the old Church of Cluaindagad. The present Protestant Church is believed to stand on its site. There is a stone in the south side wall near the east gable, outside, with the following inscription. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. CLONDEGAD, Sheet 50.—Old church destroyed. Present one modern, 1700, rebuilt 1809, and in ruins. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL050-036001	Church Name:	Killchreest
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Carrowkilla
Co-ordinates:	163623N,127196E
Orientation:	E-W	A	0
Category:	Mediaeval		All and a second se
Landscape:	Undulating	E Pl
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road	and the second
Condition:	Fair		2. PARAMAN
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
	with ivy. There is vegetative grow
West Wall General Description:	Contains 4 corbels along its wall	and 2 niches at the north	n west and south west corners.
South Wall General Description:	0.8m, which would suggest it pro choir or the priest. The main doo which has a pointed head and ar main door are 2 smaller square h wall. There is a niche on the sout was associated with an upper flo	ovided an access to the e or is hooded on the extern n easterly window which neaded windows, one set th wall on the western er oor. on the south wall which	r would appear to be quite narrow, wastern end of the church for either the nal face. There is a central window has a round head. To the west of the t high up similar to the one the north nd. This is also high enough to suggest it would have supported timber for an wall.
North Wall General Description:	an internal upper floor in that pa	art of the church. on the north wall which	wall. This would indicate that there was would have supported timber for an wall
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large triple lancet wir	ndow, 2.3m width, 4.2m l	high.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is upstanding, however a number of the windows on the south wall are in poor repair. The windows to be restored to a stable condition and the ivy cut back.
Graveyard Monument	CL050-036002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is in the main well attended, an area to the north is over grown, but seems unused.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The churchyard surrounds the existing church and is undoubtedly the oldest part of the graveyard, The graveyard appears to have been extended to the east and probably to the north, although defined extension boundaries are not visible
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Image: Upright:Image: Pedestal:Image: Vault:Flat:Image: Vault:Image: Vault:Image: Vault: </td
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure.
History:

The ruined Church of Kilchrist stands in the Townland to which it gives name, all its walls in perfect preservation, and measuring seven seventy feet two inches in length and twenty three feet three inches in breadth. The west gable has a broken belfry at top. Two feet nine inches from this gable, in the south side and at the height of about four and a half feet from the ground, is a small quadrangular window two feet two inches high and five and a half inches wide in front. Two feet farther on and about two feet higher is another quadrangular window about four feet in height and ten inches in breadth. Nineteen feet from the gable, in south wall, is a pointed doorway six feet four inches in height and three feet seven inches in breadth. At the distance of twenty one feet from this is a pointed window, six feet high and four feet six inches wide on the inside, four feet eight inches high and seven and three quarter inches wide on the outside. At the distance of fourteen feet three inches from this, to the east, is a small doorway, quadrangular inside where it measures five feet six inches in height and two feet five in breadth, pointed in front where it measures five feet six inches in height and one foot nine inches in breadth. There is a window within one foot of the east gable measuring six feet two inches in breadth and about eight feet in height on the inside, where its top is a flat arch, semicircular on the outside where it measures six feet four inches in height, one foot one and a half inches in breadth at top and one foot one and a half inches at bottom. The window in the east gable is seven feet eight inches wide and about seventeen feet high on the inside, and five feet two inches wide and about twelve feet high on the outside, divided by two mullions.

There is a quadrangular window in the north side at the distance of about eight feet from the west gable and ten feet from the ground, about three feet high and seven inches wide. All the windows and doors are built of well cut stones. The internal surface of the walls exhibit symptoms of the action of fire, and there is a tradition in the neighbourhood of its having been burned during some religious commotion. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILCHRIST, Sheet 50.—Parish church, 77 feet 2 inches by 23 feet 3 inches. A late fifteenth-century building. The east window has two interlacing shafts and is pointed. The south door has a heavy angular weather ledge. It has a stoup with two pointed opes in the right jamb. There is a second smaller pointed door to the east of the last. There are two windows in the south wall, one heavily ivied, the more eastern has a round head. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL050-047	Church Name:	Inishmore
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Inishmore (Deer Island)
Co-ordinates:	163107N,129622E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Island
Access:	Island
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	It was not possible to visit the is ruinous state, with little survivin		e church is understood to be in a
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:	Chest Tombs:	Mausoleum:	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:	Flat:	Upright:	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	not known
History:

INISMORE (DEER ISLAND), Sheet 50.—Kilchrist Parish. Church marked on map, "Inis mor," The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900. The ruins of the old church, some cholera graves and a holy well called Tobar Breedia are still to be seen. Deer Island - A description in 1837 (County Clare A History and Topography by Samuel Lewis)

Monument No.	CL050-050	Church Name:	Coney
Location:	Rural	I
Townland:	Coney Island
Co-ordinates:	162655N,132771E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Island
Access:	Island
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	This is one of two churches on the exist only as a site. It was not vis		oximity. This church is believed to
West Wall
General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	church and gravey	ard
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

A church not marked on map, but mentioned by Brash. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL050-051001	Church Name:	Coney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Coney Island
Co-ordinates:	162678N,132826E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Island
Access:	Island
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Cyclopean
General Description:	This is one of two churches on t survive in reasonable condition.		oximity. This church is believed to
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL050-051002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Church site
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	not known
History:

There are two churches. Brash [166] describes the older building as an oblong church, 16 feet 8 inches by 9 feet 10 inches. The masonry is of large blocks, and the west door has a lintel and inclined jambs. The east window is defaced.

Monument No.	CL051-019001	Church Name:	Kilnasoolagh
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Kilnasoolagh
Co-ordinates:	168066N,138737E		Many Bartin
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Edge of village
Access:	Beside Public Road	Anna Anna Anna
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Pad Stones	The second second
Masonry:	Ashlar
General Description:		nd. This church has beer vide; bell tower 4.3m x 3	ot open on day of inspection. There is a n built on the site of an earlier church, Bm.
West Wall General Description:	Bell tower with steeple, built on	a batter.
South Wall General Description:	Contains 5 arched windows with contains a door for accessing the		surrounds. South wall of bell tower
North Wall General Description:	A small extension has been built	to the north east end of	the north wall; purpose unknown.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a large triple lancet win	dow.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Excellent, none

Graveyard Monument	CL051-019002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	There is a split in burial between the old graveyard and the newer extension to the north. The latter is mausoleum burials and associated with the later Anglican Church. The older graveyard is associated with the earlier church
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is bo predominately Cath graveyard, which co predominately the	nolic gra	ves. To the north a number of vaul	of th	e church, access	by a ly	nch gate is the 2n	ıd
GRAVEYARD		✓		✓		✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	<	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>Image: A start of the start of</li></ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none, while mainta	ined.
History:

Of the ancient Church of Cill Subhalaigh not a vestige now remains, but its site is supposed to be occupied by the present modern Protestant house of worship, within which is a respectable monument of the O'Briens of Drumoland. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL051-059001	Church Name:	Kilmaleery
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmaleery
Co-ordinates:	165687N,137326E	-
Orientation:	E-W	-	A Real And
Category:	Mediaeval		Salaran (Salaran (Sa
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		in the
Access:	Across Fields	A second s
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible	at a strength the state
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	ground. The church is in a ruine There appears to have been an	d state, with walls missin addition to the south wal extension' was acquired	elds in an isolated area, on elevated g and reduced to minimal heights. I at the eastern end. It appears that from the ruined church. The church
West Wall General Description:	The west gable is missing.
South Wall General Description:	but could not be confirmed.	g to the south from the e	. A possible window was indentified, xisting south wall was evident, possibly
North Wall General Description:	Survives for most of the length o wall is 0.75m thick.	of church, but is reduced	1.2 and heavily covered wit ivy. This
East Wall General Description:	The east gable is missing. To the south of the east corner is a wall 4.1m in length. There is a stone over this wall, providing an opening, a doorway? The level of construction and use of material would suggest recycling of material from ruined church.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is largely ruined. A fipriority	ull detailed record of the	surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	CL054-059002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone	tone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:		a large graveyard that has a number of architectural fragments as grave markers. It is naintained. A flat grave had been recently exposed, e.g. the sod removed.
Related Structures:	none	one
Architectural Fragments:	Jamb stone, 1656 Arch jambs, 1656 Window jamb, 16 Door pivot, 1656 moulded base, 16 Moulded base, ja Cut arched stone,	Mullion,165685N,137316E Jamb stone, 165686N,137313E Arch jambs, 165685N,137317E Window jamb, 165670N,137309E Door pivot, 165668N,137306E moulded base, 165661N,137312E Moulded base, jamb stone, 165664N,137319E Cut arched stone, 165678N,137310E Jamb stone, 165687N,137335E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard su architectural frag							per of
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
MARKINGS.	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of weakened elements of this structure.
History:

The old Church called Kilmaleery is now nearly destroyed. It was thirty eight feet in length and fifteen feet in breadth. Both its gables are destroyed down to the foundation stones. The north wall is in tolerable preservation and is two feet six inches in thickness and nine feet in height. It is constructed of hammered stones and cemented with lime and sand mortar, which was copiously used. Of the south wall a portion measuring nine feet in height and twenty seven feet in length remains, but it contains no feature.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILMALEERY, Sheet 51.—Parish church, 38 by 15 feet. It was evidently rebuilt late in the eighteenth century. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL051-077001	Church Name:	Clonloghan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Clonloghan		-
Co-ordinates:	164493N,139476E
Orientation:	E/W	1
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	ALLAN THE
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible		and the second sec
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		stone grit in both window	red East gable and part of the south w jambs. A stone is situated as a altar
West Wall General Description:	No remains
South Wall General Description:	The south east corner preserves internal jambs.	s a small square headed v	window. There is some damage to the
North Wall General Description:	Nothing survives
East Wall General Description:	A larger round headed window,	centrally located survive	es in the East gable.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Little of this church survives but some basic remedial repairs to t		The ivy should but cut back hard and undertaken.

Graveyard Monument	CL051-077002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well cared for
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Cornerstone, 1644 Cornerstone , Win	-		windo	ow head, 164491	N13946	55E
Graveyard General \Description	A rectangular grav	eyard su	rrounding the ch	urch.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	Contact: Lucy Hast	tings Mc		w-Ma
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will weal	ken an already vu	Ineral	ble structure.

History:

The Parish of Clonloghan, in the Barony of Bunratty Lower and County of Clare, is bounded on the north by the Parishes of Toomfinlogh and Kilnasoola, on the east by the Parish of Drumline, on the south by the Parish of Drumline and the River Shannon, and on the west by the Parishes of Kilconry and Killmalyry. See Name Book.

The proper Irish name of this Parish is Cluain-Lócháin, which literally means the Cloon of the Chaff, but whether Lochan here means a small lake or a man's name, I know not. There is a Church and Parish of the name of Rath-Lochain near Johnstown, in the Barony of Galmoy, County of Kilkenny, but there is no Saint of the name of Lochan mentioned in the Irish Calendar, tho' there are several of the name of Loichein to be found in, but none of them in connexion with Clonlochain.

Of the old Church of Clonlochan the east gable and about fifteen feet in length of the side walls attached to it, together with about fifteen feet in length of the north wall, near the west end only remain to the full height. This last part mentioned appears to be a great deal older than the rest. The length was fifty three feet and breadth fourteen feet two inches.

There is a small quadrangular window in the south side within three feet of the east gable, measuring three feet one inch in height and two feet one inch in breadth on the inside; two feet six inches in height and four and a half inches in breadth at top and five and a half inches at bottom on the outside.

The window in the east gable is quadrangular on the inside, but so covered with briers that it could not be measured, but it is about four feet six inches high and two feet six inches wide, semicircular in front and measuring three feet three inches in height and five and three quarter inches in breadth at top, and six inches at bottom.

Both the windows are built up in front of cut grit stone, apparently much older than the parts of the wall in which they are situated. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. CLONLOGHAN, Sheet 51.—Parish church, 53 by 15 feet. The west end had fallen before 1839. Now only the east gable and portions of the sides remain.

It is a very ancient oratory, perhaps of the tenth century. The east and south windows have inclined jambs, the former having a semicircular head, the latter a lintel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL051-094001	Church Name:	Drumline
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Drumline
Co-ordinates:	164828N,141989E
Orientation:	E/W		and a second second
Category:	Mediaeval	A State
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second s
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Poor		And the second
Foundation:	Not Visible		Contraction of the second
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	Little of this church survives; the covered. Width 6.2m, lengthc.2	-	er of the north wall. It is heavily ivy
West Wall General Description:	no remains
South Wall General Description:	A foundation course survives.
North Wall General Description:	A ivy covered corner survives, 1	.5m height. There are no f	features.
East Wall General Description:	The east gable is reduced to 1.5	M height and covered in i	vy. No features survive.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is ruined with little s the surviving remains be carried		rimmed back. A full detailed record of

Graveyard Monument	CL051-094002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Isolated location b	ut well r	naintained
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Arched door jamb, Octagonal column
Graveyard General \Description	A rectangular grav	eyard su	rrounding the ch	urch.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓ ✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rain fall	will acce	lerate the ruin of	this o	damaged church
History:

The old Church of Drumline is nearly destroyed. It was seventy two feet in length and twenty one in breadth. The west gable is destroyed down to the foundation. The south wall is also destroyed except a fragment of six feet in length and about twelve feet in height attached to the east gable. The window in the east gable is totally destroyed, there being a breach in the middle of that gable from the top to the bottom. Of the north wall a portion about forty feet in length, nine in height and two feet six inches in thickness remains, but it contains no doorway or window. Parts of it look ancient. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. DROMLINE, Sheet 51.—Parish church, 72 by 21 feet. The west gable, much of the south wall, and the east window have been destroyed. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL052-002001	Church Name:	Feenagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Feenagh	and with
Co-ordinates:	166039N,145532E
Orientation:	E/W		-107 I.S.
Category:	Mediaeval	1
Landscape:	Farmland	-	A ministration
Other_Description:		THE SE
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible		A SUBARA STATE
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	heavily covered in ivy. The church		maining walls upstanding, but all are wall thickness 1.1m.
West Wall General Description:	There are no features
South Wall General Description:	A door and ogee window survive pointed head.	e. The window is largely c	obscured by ivy. The door has a semi-
North Wall General Description:	There is a niche in the northwes	t corner.
East Wall General Description:	Nothing survives
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The surviving walls are upstandi structure accessed.	ng but heavy with ivy. Th	e ivy to be had cut back and the

Graveyard Monument	CL052-002002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The grass to be m	own and	ivy removed fron	n road	l boundary wall.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Corner stone 1660	)39N145	532E
Graveyard General \Description	The grave yard is r	mainly to	the south of the	churc	h. The grass was	uncut.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact Noel O'M	eara, Sixı	nilebridge
Climate Effects:	Increased rain fall	will wea	ken the structure	and u	unchecked ivy gro	owth lo	ad the walls

History:

The old Church of Feenagh in the Townland of that name measures fifty feet in length and eighteen feet in breadth. The east gable is down to the ground but the other parts remain in good preservation. The west gable has nothing in it worthy of notice. There is a semicircular doorway in the south side fifteen feet from the west gable, measuring seven feet in height and four feet two inches in breadth on the inside; five feet six inches in height and two feet five inches in breath on the outside, where it is built up of well cut lime stones. There is a window in the same side within four feet of the east end, measuring three feet in height and four feet three inches in breadth on the inside where it is quadrangular, and three feet from the present level of the ground; on the outside it measures three feet in height and five inches in breadth, pointed at top.

The side walls are about twelve feet in height and three and a half feet in thickness, built of large rough stones laid in irregular courses; the angles built up of cut stones. There is a small burying ground attached to the Church. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. FEENAGH, Sheet 52.—Parish church, 56 by 18 feet. 15th century; the east gable has fallen; the south door had a semicircular arch, and an ogee-headed stoup. The window was an ogee head. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL052-013001	Church Name:	Ballysheen
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Soorneey
Co-ordinates:	165937N,147735E		and the second s
Orientation:	E/W	State Val al	N in the second
Category:	Mediaeval		L'AND
Landscape:	Farmland		and and the first
Other_Description:			Man I P
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair	and the second second	and the second second
Foundation:	Bedrock		ASI/ALSO PROVIDENT
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		2010 but growth is still vi e west gable is gone. Wh	igorous. C.5Ms of the North wall has hile the south wall in the door area has
West Wall General Description:	Gone
South Wall General Description:		oor arch is semi-pointed	th obscured by ivy. The head is missing . Again the windows are made with eginning of collapse.
North Wall General Description:	•	o stones in situ. There is	externally. This is the site of a North a double ambry in the northeast corner
East Wall General Description:	-	-	ely blocked up and ivy obscured. Red der is to the east of the window, again
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	-	avy ivy growth. The north	gered. The S door is falling out, the n wall to be repaired and north door re accessed.

Graveyard Monument	CL052-013002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard	surroun	ds the church, slc	ping	to the south. An	extensi	on to the west
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Clare County Cour	ncil
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will cont	inue to weaken tl	nis str	ucture in particu	lar the	north wall.

History:

The ruins of an old Church and burying ground called Ballysheen Church stand in the Townland of Sooreaney. The Church is about sixty feet long and twenty one feet wide, the walls perfect except a breach in the north wall near the west gable. There is a window in the west gable but it is so covered with ivy that its form could not be ascertained.

There is a pointed doorway in the south side, twelve feet from the west gable. There are two semicircular headed windows in the same side nearer the east gable, built up of cut brown grit stone and much out of character with the wall in which they are placed, they appearing older. The window in the east gable cannot be seen, it having been filled up with mason work and covered with ivy. Parts of the wall near the breach in the north side, the lower part of west gable and the part of the south wall between that gable and the doorway, appear to be much older than the rest.

I think there can be little doubt that this is the Kilfeenaghta from which the Parish takes its name. It occupies the identical spot on which the Church of Kilfeenaghta is set down on Petty's Map. How its name happened to be forgotten and changed to Ballysheen Church nobody now can tell. Though this Church is set down in the Name Book as situated in the Townland of Sooreeny the parishioners believe it to be in the Townland of Ballysheen, from which it has its name. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. KILFINAGHTA [138] (BALLYSHEEN), Sheet 52.—Parish church, 63 by 22 feet. An ancient church, dating probably about 1080. The west gable was standing in 1839, but part of the north wall had then fallen; the gable has since collapsed. The east window is defaced, ivied, and built up; the large semicircular-headed splay has mouldings and bases; to the right are two moulded ambries, cut in sandstone, the upper with an angular head. Two of the south windows are of sandstone, recessed, and with round mouldings, semicircular heads, and inclined jambs [139]; the third is plain, with inclined jambs. The south door is slightly pointed, and has an ancient corbel with a human face cut in sandstone above it. The masonry throughout is small, bad, and decayed. Founder unknown. "Kilfinity," 1302. Monuments, Cruice, 1600; Rodan, 1619; Rochford, 1723. P.M.D., II. (1894), p. 448, &c. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Bunratty Lower.

Monument No.	CL052-016002	Church Name:	Sixmilebridge
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Sixmilebridge
Co-ordinates:	165937N,147735E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Modern	25 JU
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	in Sixmilebridge village
Access:	Beside Public Road		DERES COFFE
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Bedrock	and the second second
Masonry:	Cut Blocks
General Description:	Modern church with bell tower to north wall at eastern end. R		all with east window. Small extension I as a library
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	Excellent condition

Graveyard Monument	CL052-0016003
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained	ell maintained
Related Structures:	Sixmilebridge histo	ixmilebridge historic town
Architectural Fragments:	Central window ar	Central window arch stone, 165937N147735E
Graveyard General \Description	Small graveyard to	north a	nd west of church	1
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓ ✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	✓ ✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	<ul> <li>✓</li> </ul>
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Minimal while bui	lding is 1	maintained
History:

SIXMILEBRIDGE.—Kilfinaghta Parish. It is alleged in "Hibernia Dominicana" [140] that a house of Dominicans stood near this place. No ruin or site is remembered. There is a graveyard attached to the Protestant church, which is at least as old as the Restoration.

Monument No.	CL052-043	Church Name:	Oatfield
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Oatfield
Co-ordinates:	167241N,154289E
Orientation:	E/W	A SPACE
Category:	Modern	Silva /
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Excellent
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Other
General Description:	This is a modern church built pos slate roof	st 1840. It is in a equal ar	m cross configuration. It is under a
West Wall General Description:	The west wall has three aspects w	with two windows and a	bell-cote over the central aspect
South Wall General Description:	the south wall has three aspects.	Two with windows
North Wall General Description:	There are three aspects to the no	orth wall two with a wind	ow the other a door.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall has three aspects w	with one window and two	o doors
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good repair and	used regularly

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	The water stoop i	nside the	church appears e	earlie	r than the age of	the chu	urch
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Minimal as the bu	uilding is	maintained.
History:
None

Monument No.	CL052-061	Church Name:	Kilfintinan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Carrowmore
Co-ordinates:	163737N,149317E
Orientation:			Contraction and the
Category:
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:		1 Alert
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		1. 1909	E OM
Foundation:			A AND
Masonry:
General Description:	Only a small elevated graveyard informant.	survives. It is not believed	l to attached to the church site; local
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained ar	nd in use	2
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:	Possible jamb ston	e 16373 .	7N149327E
Graveyard General \Description	Small maintained graveyard, accessed by iron steps from the road level.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
	-				oprigne.
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

The old Church called Kilfintanan is in a state of great dilapidation. It was thirty two feet long, and sixteen feet six inches broad and the walls three feet thick. Of the side walls and east gable only four feet in height remain, and the west gable is destroyed down to the very foundation stones. The parts of the walls remaining look very old, being built of very large stones not laid in regular courses, and exhibiting the impress of time. No doorway or window remains. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. KILFINTINAN, Sheet 52.—Parish church, 32 feet by 16 feet 6 inches. A late looking church. All the features were defaced before 1839; the west gable had fallen. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900: Barony of Bunratty Lower

Monument No.	CL053-032001	Church Name:	Trough
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Trough
Co-ordinates:	164618N,158544E
Orientation:
Category:		a de la compañía de la
Landscape:	Farmland	site and the	and and its the second
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		and the second second	and the second second
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	Nothing of this church survives.	The grave yard is believed	to separate from the church site.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL053-032002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard	l is main	tained. The extens	ion h	as its own entra	nce and	l is newly opened
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	A good size grave	yard witl	h an extension to	the ea	ast
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

Of the old Church of Troogh nothing now remains but about ten feet of the west gable to the height of about twelve feet, built of small brownish mountain stones, the masonry of a modern character. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. TROUGH, Sheet 53.—O'Brien's Bridge Parish. 10 feet of the west gable stood in 1839. Now entirely levelled; The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL054-007001	Church Name:	Inishlosky
Location:	Rural
Townland:	O'Briensbridge
Co-ordinates:	167212N,167160E
Orientation:		lasta in the
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Other
Other_Description:	Island	Carlo Carl
Access:	Island
Condition:	Poor	the second
Foundation:	Bedrock		The first of the second s
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:			[Aegis Arch Ltd] found the structure urviving. The site was extensively over
West Wall General Description:	c. 5M survives to a height 4M ma	x.
South Wall General Description:	nothing survives
North Wall General Description:	nothing survives
East Wall General Description:	c. 5M survives to a height 3M ma	х.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none A full detailed record of the	e surviving remains be c	arried out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument	CL054-007002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Poor
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	poorly maintained, but isolated.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	several architectural fragments were identified within the graveyard area
Graveyard General \Description	overgrown and not well defined
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:   Flat:   Upright:   Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall will further weaken an already damaged structure.
History:
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS: Owner: Climate Effects:	High Crosses: Flat: Upright: Pedestal:   not known

INISHLOSKY, Sheet 54.—O'Brien's Bridge Parish. A defaced and heavily-ivied church on an island. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL054-010001	Church Name:	Kiltenanlea
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Doonass Demesnes
Co-ordinates:	161740N,164560E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	ALL ALL	A State of the second
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:			San Line was
Access:	Beside Laneway	and the second se
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	heavy ivy growth. The northeast east wall. The south wall at the e	corner has been restore eastern end , site of an og	on. The north wall is part ruined with d, 2008; as was the north corner of the gee window is ruined. Vegetative and has been poorly repaired in the
West Wall General Description:	No features
South Wall General Description:	A central semi-pointed door, wh	ich was repaired in 2008	and a ruined single ogee window.
North Wall General Description:	No features
East Wall General Description:	Single ogee window
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in fair condition m window. Ivy and vegetative grov structural condition.	-
Graveyard Monument	CL054-010002
---	--------------------	------------	------------------	--------	-------------------	---------	--------------	---
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Well maintained
Related Structures:	Bullaun stone
Architectural Fragments:	Ogee window hea	d, barge	stones and windo	ow jar	nb stones, 16174	40N,164	1560E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard sur	rounds tl	ne church and ha	s beei	n extended to the	e north	and east.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Contact PJ Carmoo	dy
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will furth	er weaken an alr	eady	damaged structu	re.

The old Church of Kiltinaanlea is not one of the primitive Irish times but a re-erection of the 14th or 15th century. It is in good preservation and measures fifty eight feet ten inches in length and eighteen feet eight inches in breadth on the inside. The west gable contains a small window placed near the top which is so curtained with ivy that its dimensions or characteristics could not be ascertained without going to unnecessary trouble. At the distance of twenty seven feet from the west gable the south wall contains a pointed doorway constructed of cut lime stone but it is so broken that its dimensions could not be ascertained without going to more trouble than it is worth, it being a modern doorway like those of which we have hundreds of specimens in other parts of this and other countries. At the distance of three feet eight inches of the southeast corner there is a window but so filled and matted with strong ivy that its form could not be seen. The east gable contains a window which is narrow on the outside and wide on the inside. On the inside it measures seven feet in height and three feet in breadth and on the outside (where its lower part is five feet six inches from the ground) five feet three inches in height and six and a half inches wide. This window is rectangular on the inside being covered overhead with a lintel of limestone, and on the outside pointed. It is constructed of chiselled lime stones. The north wall is featureless. The side wall of this Church are about eleven feet in height, three feet six inches in thickness and well built of quarried lime stones of good size and hammered. The corner stones are chiselled. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839. KILTINANLEA, Sheet 54.—Parish church, 59 feet by 18 feet 8 inches. A coarsely built, late fifteenth-century ruin. The east window is a tall ogee-headed slit; the south window is of yellow grit-stone, with a neat trefoil head. South door is pointed and well moulded. It has a stoup (with two semicircular opes) in the right jamb. There are a rock-cut bullaun and holy hawthorn to the north. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL055-004001	Church Name:	Bishop's Island
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Bishop's Island
Co-ordinates:	159432N,085615E
Orientation:
Category:	Early Christian
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:	Island
Access:	Island
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	This church was not visited duri	ng this survey.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	A full detailed record of the sur	viving remains be carried o	out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of the	structu	re.
History:

BISHOP'S ISLAND ("ILLAUN AN ESPIG GORTAIG"), Sheet 56.—Kilfearagh Parish. Two very ancient dry stone buildings and two plain pillars stand on an inaccessible sea rock, 215 feet high, and are clearly visible at no great distance from the opposite cliff. The oratory is about 18 by 12 feet; the walls, 2 feet 7 inches thick, with a lintelled east window and south door. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp.

Monument No.	CL056-015001	Church Name:	Tullaher
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Tullahea
Co-ordinates:	161877N,092604E
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Undulating	The second
Other_Description:		A CONTRACTOR
Access:	Beside Laneway		the survey of the second
Condition:			Market and Aller
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No Church survives.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL056-015002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The northern end o but in good order.	of the gr	aveyard is well at	tende	ed, while the sou	thern ei	nd is full to capac	ity,
Related Structures:	holy well
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is re burials to the north southern section or southern portion o	nern par f gravey	t of the graveyard ard is dominated	l, don	ninated by uprig	nt and p	edestal markers.	The
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
MARKINGS.	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL056-061001	Church Name:	Baunmore
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Baunmore
Co-ordinates:	158666N,094062E		A statement of the statement of the
Orientation:	E-W	A set of the set of the	W. State wards
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland		Contraction of the
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor		Contract Charles
Foundation:	Not Visible		The Property and the second
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	The northern wall of this church i 9m survives to a height of 1.5m.	s all that survives in the n	orthern area of the graveyard. Approx
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:	Approx 9m survives to a height o	f 1.5m. There is consider	able vegetative growth.
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	A full detailed record of the survi	iving remains be carried o	out as a priority.

Graveyard Monument	CL056-61002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Grass is kept unde	r control	l
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The flat graves we overgrown though recent burial to the	evidenc	e of occasional st					s one
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
None

Monument No.	CL056-062001	Church Name:	Emlagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Emlagh	The line of the	7.00
Co-ordinates:	159990N,094451E		and the second s
Orientation:			March
Category:		Pinet -
Landscape:	Farmland		AND A CONTRACT OF A
Other_Description:		10.50
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:			The second second second
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of this church surviv	ves
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
None

Monument No.	CL056-070001	Church Name:	Killfeargh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killfeargh
Co-ordinates:	157365N,088541E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		Server E	Rins
Access:	Beside Public Road	m P
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible	- A said
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		e outside wall. There is fu	now blocked in by later stonework rther evidence of rebuilding of the eight of the gable.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	What survives is in good order, i	none

Graveyard Monument	CL056-070002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Both areas are in good order and maintained.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Base of water stoop, 149211N,079835E
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard would have been surrounding the church. It was noted that a metal outdoor alter was built, presumably this would have been the location at the eastern end of the church in the past. East of this altar is a mausoleum what has appears to be a sod roof. There are 3 smaller mausoleums to the south and west of the church wall. The extension further to the west is dominated by more recent burials.
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed:
	High Crosses: Flat: Vpright: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal as the surviving wall has been stabilized.
History:

KILFEARAGH, Sheet 56.—The gable of a late eighteenth century church alone remains. Founder, Fiachra. "Killifeheragh" (Kelliheneragh), 1302. Perhaps, "Cil Fiabra," near Kilkee, in O'Brien's Rental, 1390. It was rebuilt early in the last century by the Macdonnells of Kilkee. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL056-90001	Church Name:	Kilnagalliagh
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilnagalliagh
Co-ordinates:	156330N,093980E
Orientation:
Category:		ANT -	and the second second second
Landscape:	Farmland		A LO CONTRACT
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:			and the second second
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives to record.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL056-90002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Poor
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The grave yard is dominated by a very large mausoleum. There is an unusual double c Not cared for on an ongoing or regular basis.	hest tomb.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	This graveyard is very overgrown, as was the boundary wall which was not visible due overgrowth.	to the
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:OutputHigh Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:	d:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

Monument No.	CL058-055001	Church Name:	Kilmurry East
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmurry East	-
Co-ordinates:	156470N,112480E	The a
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Modern
Landscape:	Undulating	and and the server	server out the
Other_Description:			- Alle
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Poor	1 million
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	could be recorded. There are four both of which appear to have be existed on this site that was repl be remnants of these early struct western end, while the eastern end accessed through the bell tower	undations of two smaller s een cut by the later church aced by the modern churc ctures. The church was 28r end was rounded not havi by a south facing door. Th	vive, leaving a foundation outline that tructures immediately to the north, . It is known that an early church ch and these other foundations may m x 6.9m, with a bell tower at the ng true forms. The church was he walls were c.0.7m thick. This was style see Clondegad Church, CL050-
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none as only foundations survive.
Graveyard Monument	CL058-055002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is well maintained, with a clear shift in burial practice between the older graveyard and the extension
Related Structures:	Foundations of two other structures.
Architectural Fragments:	3 Mullions, 2 door jamb, dressed stone, [door jamb?], 156470N,112480E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard extends to the east and to the south of the church. The eastern portion appears to be an extension, as does the more southerly part of the graveyard. The area around the church is mainly under gravel, the rest of the graveyard is grass and well maintained. The boundary wall on the roadside is very high, 2.5m approx. The wall height reduces to the modern extension to the east.
GRAVEYARD	Vault: Chest Tombs: 🗹 Mausoleum: 🔽 Uninscribed:
MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:OutputHigh Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal, if any

KILMURRY MACMAHON, Sheet 58.—Parish church. Entirely destroyed in 1819 to build the modern Protestant church. It had in 1640 a fine monument of the Mac Mahon, 1460. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900. The ancient church of this parish was pulled down about ninety years ago to supply materials for the existing Protestant church which stands upon its site. It was dedicated to the Blessed Virgin Mary as its name implies. In the townland of Kilmore was another church, but to whom dedicated cannot be ascertained. In this parish stood the castle of Clonderalaw, the principal residence of MacMahon, chief of East Corcabaskin. Only a few fragments of the building can now be seen.

The History and Topography of the County of Clare by James Frost

Monument No.	CL059-036001	Church Name:	Killadysart
Location:	Rural	÷
Townland:	Killadysart
Co-ordinates:	158192N,125325E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway	An	AND STREET
Condition:	Fair	P. D.	the second second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	thick, to which a later bell tower ivy, however the ivy does not ap However given the height of the in the past) the ivy growth is a ca	was added to the west. pear to be at such a leve bell tower and its genera use for some concern. T e of stonework evident,	most notable the east gable arch stone.
West Wall General Description:	-	-	ving arch which accesses the bell is noted that the west wall is also built
South Wall General Description:	There are in addition 2 windows,	is a second smaller doo , one between the 2 doo There is a niche under t	r at the eastern end of the south wall. rs mentioned and a window at the he easterly window. There is another
North Wall General Description:	The north wall of the church has contains 3 windows.	no features to record. W	Vhile the north wall of the bell tower
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a large win is damaged i.e. evidence of slipp		at is hooded on the outside. This hood
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:		western end of the sout	ctural areas weakened. In particular the h wall has a vertical split. The ivy to cut n.

Graveyard Monument	CL059-036002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone	one
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:		The graveyard is dominated by a very large mausoleum to the north of the church. The graveyard is well maintained
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	There is a very recent west of the bell tow east appear to be the	ver, to tł	ne east of the eas		-	•
GRAVEYARD								✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall w	ill furth	er weaken an alr	eady (	damaged structu	re.

The old Church of Kildysart is situated near the margin of the Shannon close to the village of Kildysart and appears more like a small Monastery than a Parish Church. It is very firmly built of most excellent lime stone and has suffered very little from the shock of elements, except at the south west angle and west side of its tower, where it was injured by lightning about thirteen years ago, and at the same period a stream of lightning struck the north wall, but did not make any breach in it in consequence of the manner in which it fell, it having only skimmed along the surface.

It is seventy five feet in length and twenty one feet in breadth on the inside, and its side walls are four feet five inches in thickness at the bottom and three feet eleven inches at the height of five feet from the level of the ground (there being a batter to that height all round, which renders the building very firm) but from this up they are of equal thickness. They are fifteen feet high.

There is a square tower attached to the west end measuring on the inside eight feet one inch from east to west and eight feet five inches from north to south, and about forty feet in height. The walls of this tower are two feet five inches in thickness and very well built of most excellent lime stones. It had six lofts as is clear from the stones projecting from the wall for the support of joists, and each story was lighted by one window, quadrangular inside and outside. The lowest of these windows (which may be taken as a model for all the rest as well as I could judge from the ground) measures on the inside four feet in height and three feet four inches in breadth, and on the outside two feet five inches in height and six inches in breadth. A pointed archway leads into this tower from the body of the Church, measuring six feet nine inches in height and the same in breadth. Over this archway, at the height of one foot, there is a quadrangular doorway or window leading into the tower and lower than the roof of the Church.

The south wall of the Church contains a quadrangular window placed one foot and a half from the present level of the ground on the outside, and in the south west corner adjoining the tower. It measures on the outside two feet eight inches in height and six inches in width, and it gradually widens towards the inside, but it is partly filled up with modern mason work.

At the distance of twenty feet nine inches from the tower there is in the south wall a pointed doorway measuring on the outside six feet six inches in height and three feet two inches in width, and on the inside eight feet in height and five feet ten inches in breadth. Its head on the inside forms a segment of a circle (about the sixth part of a circle of considerable size). At the distance of fifteen feet to the east of this doorway there is a window which is very broad on the inside and very narrow on the outside. On the inside it is eight feet in height and six feet six inches in width, and on the outside five feet six inches in height and seven inches in width. At the distance of twelve feet ten inches to the east of this window there is a curious pointed doorway, very narrow on the outside. On the inside it is five feet ten inches to the east of this window there is a curious pointed doorway, very narrow on the outside only one foot four and a half inches wide at top and one foot seven inches at bottom. Within thirteen inches of the east gable there is a window, quadrangular on the outside four feet one inch in height and six and three quarter inches in breadth. The east gable contains a high pointed window measuring on the inside about fourteen feet in height and nine feet ten inches in breadth, and on the outside ten feet in height and in width one foot eleven and a half inches at bottom, and it narrows gradually towards the top to one foot two inches. The sides of this window are perforated for the reception of iron bars, and the seat of a mullion is to be seen at the bottom.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILLADYSERT, Sheet 50.—Parish church, 75 feet by 21 feet. It differs considerable from the usual types in this county, and it is very regrettable that its origin is forgotten. It has a neat belfry tower with stepped battlements at the west end, which was struck by lightning in 1826. It contains a residence for the priest, 8 feet 8 inches by 8 feet 5 inches, and opens into the church by a low pointed arch. The east window has inclined jambs, but is late Gothic, and had a shaft and transom now lost. The south wall has (beginning at the west end) a square slit; a pointed door (21 feet from the belfry); it has a heavy angular weather ledge; 15 feet eastward is a slit with an angular head 7 inches wide; 13 feet eastward is a narrow pointed door, 1 foot 5 inches wide; while a foot from the east wall is a window with square splay and semicircular-headed light. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL061-002001	Church Name:	Kilcorney
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Rineanna North
Co-ordinates:	161757N,136297E		Mary Market
Orientation:	E-W		and the second second
Category:	Mediaeval	a start	AND AND AND
Landscape:	Farmland		1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1 1
Other_Description:			- Ander
Access:	Beside Public Road	AL PROPERTY OF
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Pad Stones
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	largely ruined. The western end with iron railings and a gate bise numerous O'Donoghue burials.	of the church is dominate of the church from the ne The west gable appears to urials. Most notable all m	the west gable. The east gable is ed by O'Donoghue burials. A low wall orth to south wall, beyond which are o have been extensively repointed ortar joints are raised, square finished. easures 13.3m x 5.3m and wall
West Wall General Description:	Appears to have been rebuilt us modern cast concrete cross is fix	-	walls are capped with cement and a
South Wall General Description:	The only feature that appears to	have survived is the doo	r as described above.
North Wall General Description:	The north wall has no features to have been rebuilt and is not in		part of the western end which appears
East Wall General Description:	Little survives above 1.5m and t	nat is covered in ivy.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The western end of this church h ivy growth. The ivy to be cut har	-	uilt/repaired. The remainder is under accessed.

Graveyard Monument	CL061-002002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone	one
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is w	vell main	tained.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Jamb stone, 161736N,136293E Window sill, 161741N,136301E Dressed jamb stone, 161743N,136306E Jamb stone, 161744N,136309E Door jamb stone, 161748N,136306E
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is mainly to the south and south east of the church. It is maintained. The boundary wall is overgrown in places, but appears to be in good condition.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will furth	ier weaken an alr	eady	damaged structu	ure.

The old Church called Kilconry is in a tolerable state of preservation and measures fifty five feet seven inches in length and seventeen feet nine inches in breadth on the inside. The west gable contains no feature and has a large breach in the middle but not extending to the top. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet ten inches from the west gable, and measuring on the inside eight feet in height and five feet one inch in width but it is disfigured and nearly destroyed on the outside. At the distance of two feet from the east gable there is a window measuring on the inside four feet two inches in height and two feet one inch in breadth, and on the outside three feet seven inches in height and five and a half inches in breadth. It is pointed on the outside and flat arched at the head on the inside. The east gable contains a window which is rectangular headed inside and outside and divided into two divisions which are arrow headed. It measures on the inside five feet ten inches in height and three feet six inches in width, and on the outside four feet ten inches in height and one foot seven inches in width, of which the mullion is seven inches. The north wall is featureless. The side walls are about ten feet high and two feet eight inches thick. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILCONRY, Sheet 61.—Parish church. 55 feet 7 inches by 17 feet 9 inches. A late fifteenth-century church: the east window has two pointed lights; the south window is also pointed, and the splays have flat arches. The door was to the south: the west gable is breached. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL061-011001	Church Name:	Bunratty
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Bunratty East
Co-ordinates:	160882N,144904E		- ANNA
Orientation:	E-W		Attack
Category:	Mediaeval		A start
Landscape:	Undulating	E
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway	A CONTRACTOR	2 /10
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	the door may be a later addition wall. The north window is a tripl number of burials and a large ma mausoleum with steps down car	, however it is in the same e ogee window. The walls ausoleum have been inse n be accessed by the nort I, however this door may	be a later addition. The church is 22.6x
West Wall General Description:	There was probably a bell-cote of stones survive on the west gable		s largely ruined. A number of barge
South Wall General Description:	end. To the west of that door is a	a later triple mullion style e second door which is blo	door appears to be at the western window. To the east and centrally ocked and finally an eastern window in ith a foliate carving.
North Wall General Description:	The north wall contains two feat commentated before, the door r triple ogee window is a small op mullion window is pecked dresse	may be a later addition, be ening acting as a drain for	ut this is not confirmed. Beneath the
East Wall General Description:	Details of this window are obscu	ired because the lower po	h is dominated by a large window. ortion has been in filled at some recent as been replaced. The original window
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	_		gns of ivy establishing. There is also tive growth removed and the walls

Graveyard Monument	CL061-011002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	West
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard a maintained. The ex			in sor	ne impressive la	rge vau	ilts, generally wel	I
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	Large and extensive fencing, the easter second line of iron	n bound	dary is a line of ev	ergre	en trees, to the r	north is
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall v	vill furth	ner weaken an alr	eady	damaged structu	ıre.
History:	L

BUNRATTY, Sheet 62.—Parish church, 66 by 26 feet. A late building, much probably as late as the sixteenth century. The east window is rectangular and defaced; the south wall has two single lights, one with a late ogee head, and a third window with three rectangular opes (shafts intact). There is a neat, well cut, pointed south door. Founder unknown. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL062-007001	Church Name:	Craughan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Ballinphunta (Kilfintinan)
Co-ordinates:	161660N,147885E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval		and the second sec
Landscape:	Farmland	and the second second
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Laneway		april 1
Condition:	Fair	and all
Foundation:	Not Visible	10 - 10 - 2
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	the church. There is a large car p the graveyard. The church is mu repaired in 2008 under architect wall survive. The entire north wa in poor condition and a section h the west wall survives, but the re	bark to the east of the chu ch reduced, with only a se cural archaeology supervis all is upstanding to a heig has rolled on itself, best d emainder of the west wal	parallel to the main road, both east of irch which extends the full length of ection of the south wall which was sion. Only the foundations of the east ht of 3m, however, this wall is in part escribed as 'bellied'. A small corner of I as with the rest of the south wall are 5.5m in length, walls are 0.8m thick.
West Wall General Description:	Only the corner to the north sur	vives.
South Wall General Description:	The rebuilt south wall has a sing wall on the internal face. Adjace	-	blocked by a vault built on the same
North Wall General Description:	The north wall contain no featur	res, as noted this wall is w	veakened by mortuary erosion.
East Wall General Description:	Only the foundations survive.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The north wall is in a dangerous condition and could collapse , in part. The remainder of the structure is now in good order. The north wall requires urgent repairs.
Graveyard Monument	CL062-007002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard appears to have been extended twice. It is in excellent order.
Related Structures:	Wedge tomb
Architectural Fragments:	Window head, finial and dressed stone, 161660N,147885E
Graveyard General \Description	The old church yard is built around the church on all sides. There are two extensions to the south. There is an east/west low dividing wall, with an access from the older churchyard to newer extensions. The older churchyard is bounded by a stone wall in good condition, as is the later extensions, except to the west, which is timber rail fencing. Notably there is a wedge tomb in the south east corner of the extended graveyard.
GRAVEYARD	Vault: Chest Tombs: 🗹 Mausoleum: 🗹 Uninscribed: 🗹
MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall will further weaken an already damaged structure, in particular the north wall.

n the south of the Townland of Ballinphonta in this Parish are the ruins of the Church of Croaghaun, measuring sixty five feet in length and twenty feet eight inches breadth. The west gable is destroyed down to its foundation. There is a breach in the south wall apparently where the doorway was. There is a pointed window in the same wall near the east gable measuring on the outside three feet four inches in height and seven inches in width. The east gable contains a pointed window, now much broken, measuring on the outside four feet ten inches in height and one foot seven inches in breadth.

There is a Pagan grave situated at the distance of four perches to the south of this Church called as usual, Leaba Dhiarmada agus Ghraine. There is nothing peculiar in its construction, it being as usual covered overhead with one large flag which slopes a little to the south-east. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. CRUGHANE, Sheet 62.—Kilfintinan Parish. 65 feet by 20 feet 8 inches. A fifteenth-century church. The west gable had fallen before 1839; the east gable had then a pointed window, much broken, and has since fallen. The slightly pointed door and window remain in the south wall. The Rev. Jasper White says it was the parish church of Kilfintinan in 1658. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL062-020	Church Name:	Cratlomolye
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Cratlomolye
Co-ordinates:	159537N,151232E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval	Mary and and	SAN BANK
Landscape:	Wooded		A STREET OF COMPANY
Other_Description:		and the second s
Access:	Across Fields	Contraction of the second
Condition:	Dangerous	and the
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	Galway-Limerick bypass, near th overgrown, with ivy, bramble an rendering the building dangerou	e Tower house of the sar ad elder trees. The walls a as, for that reason there w e church was as overgrow	are split and stonework is missing, was limited access to the internal wn as the outside, few features were
West Wall General Description:	There is an opening, possibly a v	vindow. This was the only	y point of access.
South Wall General Description:	It was possible to observe two w detected, as portions of the wall	-	y. No evidence of a door could be
North Wall General Description:	No features could be identified.	It is noted the north wall	is split and breached (robbed out).
East Wall General Description:	The east wall appears to have sin	ngle central window. The	head of this appears to be missing.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is so overgrown that structure appears to be there. Co	-	possible; however, much of the rgrowth and evaluate the structure.

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	Roller Bearing Com	npany [A	merica}
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall v increase.	vill furth	er weaken an alr	eady (	damaged structur	e. Tree	and shrub will

Up to the early summer of 1978 it was impossible to examine the features of this in any detail due to the presence of a heavy vegetation cover of, especially, ivy. However in that year the American-owned Roller Bearing Company (R.B.C.) which owns the land where the site is to be found, had the ivy covering cleared. At present (1979) ivy roots and branches of cut down trees cover much of the site's interior. Hopefully these will be shortly removed thus making it possible to walk through and examine the site's features without difficulty (photo 1).

The southern wall originally contained the entrance area but no trace of this has survived. An examination of the site plan will show a 4.0 metre wide gap in the wall to the south-west (photo 1). Presumably the doorway was originally here. A deal of collapse does occur in this immediate area but there is no evidence of cut stone suggesting traces of the doorway.

Four metres further east of this gap, also along the southern wall, part of the interior stone facing is gone, for a distance of 2.0 metres. A short distance beyond this, 1.30 metres, is the site of a damaged window. This was originally of a rectangular shape with a lintel on top. It had inclined jambs, making it 1.0 metre wide on the inside and 1.15 metres high but only .30 metre wide on the outside. The outer eastern facing to this window is gone, leaving only rough limestone pieces visible (see site plan and photo 2). This outer-facing damage, unfortunately, is not solely restricted to the area of the rectangular window but it continues to the opening next to it. Here there is a fluted basin of a Piscina in a good condition (photo 3) though the outer wall is, as stated above, quite damaged (see site plan and photo 2).

On average this southern wall is 3.50 metres in height and consists of limestone blocks (photo 1).

The eastern wall is 8.20 metres in length externally and contains the lower traces of a stone cut rectangular window (photo 4). Originally this had a central shaft but only the end part of it now may be noted on close examination. This window, which has inclined jambs (site plan) is 2.10 metres wide on the inside but only .50 metre wide on the outside. It survives to a height, with the upper part missing, of 1.47 metres and a cut stone depth of .15 metre. On the inside of this eastern wall is a niche. It begins 1.0 metre above ground level, it is .55 metre wide, .48 metre high and

.47 metre deep.

The eastern wall, built on outcropping limestone, has an average height of 3.50 metres.

The northern wall, which is 19 metres long and 3.50 to 4.0 metres high on average, has part of its stone facing missing on the outside. It contains no windows or other features of interest.

The western wall, like the eastern one, is 8.20 metres long and contains trace of a small rectangular window at its centre. This is .50 metre wide, inside and out, .95 metre deep and .85 metres high. Originally it was defined by cut limestone but most of this is now gone (photo 5). This western wall averages 4.50 metres above the interior. A Survey of Monuments of Archaeological and Historical Interest in the Barony of Bunratty Lower, Co. Clare by W.G. Ryan.

Monument No.	CL063-011001	Church Name:	Kilquane
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilquane
Co-ordinates:	159928N,158643E	- Ander
Orientation:	E-W		+
Category:	Mediaeval		the second state of the second
Landscape:
Other_Description:		Sec. Ser
Access:	Beside Laneway		the second second
Condition:	Good		Take to star a first of the
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	appearance. A door opening sur	vives, with some dressed nsidered to be the most o	aired, giving it a very square and upright I blocks to north west corner. The north original part of the church. The building
West Wall General Description:	No features survive.
South Wall General Description:	There is a door opening (recons	tructed) evident, with a n	iche to the south east part.
North Wall General Description:	There are no surviving features.
East Wall General Description:	No features survive.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The surviving structure is largely	reconstructed save the	west wall. None

Graveyard Monument	CL063-011002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	In good maintaine	ed condi	tion.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Door jamb, 15992	8N,1586	543E
Graveyard General \Description	The large graveya undoubtedly an e condition.					•
GRAVEYARD		✓		✓				✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal give the l	evel of r	reconstruction
History:

The old Church called Kilquan (Cill Chuain) is situated on the brink (margin) of the Shannon in a Townland now called Church Land, but originally, no doubt, Fearann Cille Chuain, i.e., the Land of the Church of Kilquan. It measures on the inside thirty six feet six inches in length and seventeen feet six inches in breath. The walls are built of large blackish limestones not hammered nor laid in regular courses. The side walls are twelve feet high and three feet thick. The west gable is in good preservation but featureless; the south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of eleven feet from the west gable and measuring in breath five feet three inches, but its height cannot be ascertained as the top is destroyed. It is constructed of large quarried stones, which were neither hammered nor chiselled. There is a breach in this wall towards the east gable of ten feet in length (extent), the part in which the window was placed. The east gable contains a window, but it is so completely curtained and filled with strong ivy that its form could not be seen. The north wall is featureless and is destroyed to the extent of nine feet. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL063-019001	Church Name:	Templemochulla
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Garraun (Kiltenanlea)
Co-ordinates:	159636N,162001E	Rich	A CARLER OF THE REAL
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval	A Real Contraction
Landscape:	Farmland	Mile Sin
Other_Description:
Access:	Across Fields	A ANT STORE	The second
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Rubble
General Description:	wall. Appears to be built of local jambs, corner stones with mixed	material -limestone and limestone and sandston	tu survives and a portion of the north sandstone. Limestone to the window e. Only a length of 5m could be of the north wall was c. 5m. There is
West Wall General Description:	Nothing survives.
South Wall General Description:	2.5m of south wall survive to conwindow in the south wall in the		ndow jamb stones indicate there was a n originally.
North Wall General Description:	No surviving features.
East Wall General Description:	Nothing survives.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is largely ruined. A fupriority	ull detailed record of the s	surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	CL063-0190002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is sub-circular and somewhat over grown
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	This graveyard is notable as it is sub-circular, with a diameter of 43m. The church was located towards the eastern end of the graveyard area. There is a breach in the stone boundary wall and a gateway has been inserted in the south east. The churchyard is somewhat neglected and overgrown.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: Chest Tombs: Mausoleum: Uninscribed:
Wi ddddo.	High Crosses:   Flat:   Upright:   Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall will further weaken an already damaged structure.

In the Townland of Garraun in this Parish are the ruins of a Church dedicated to Saint Machuille or Mochuille, the brother of Saint Senan Liath. The gables of this Church are destroyed down to the foundation stones, but a fragment of the south wall twenty nine feet in length and ten feet in height remains, and about eighteen feet of the north wall. The south wall contains a window placed at the distance of four feet from the east end of the Church; it is rectangular at the top on the inside, being covered with a lintel and curvilineally pointed on the outside. It measures on the inside four feet six inches in height and two feet three inches in breadth (width) and on the outside three feet four inches in height and six feet six inches in width. It is five feet from the level of the ground on the outside and constructed of cut lime stone. The walls of this Church are built of field lime stones not laid in regular courses; they are two feet six inches in thickness, and ten feet in height. They exhibit a good deal of the impress of age, but they have not features enough to enable the antiquarian to pronounce with any certainty on their age.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. GARRAUN (TEAMPUL MOCHULLA), Sheet 63.—Kiltinanlea Parish. 28 feet of the south wall and 18 feet of the north remain; the south window is of the late fifteenth century, with a chamfered angular head cut out of one block. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Tulla Lower.

CL065-026002	Church Name:	Kilcasheen
Rural
Kilcasheen
156126N,086098E
E/W
		A DECEMBER OF A
Farmland		An of the last of the second
Across Fields	Acres 1
Poor	Colores of the
	11 1/4 2 D T
rectangular structure could be se	en, which is scattered ov
Ruined, A full detailed record of	the surviving remains be	carried out as a priority.
	Rural   Kilcasheen   156126N,086098E   E/W   Farmland   Across Fields   Poor   Scattered remains only survive, a rectangular structure could be set small number of uninscribed grave	Rural Kilcasheen 156126N,086098E E/W Farmland Across Fields

Graveyard Monument	CL065-026001
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	An undefined area	around	the church remai	ns.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	a few markers surv	ive
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	minimal
History:
none

Monument No.	CL065-053001	Church Name:	Templeshealis
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Templeshealis
Co-ordinates:	152661N,084018E	1.00
Orientation:	E-W	and the second se	Contraction of the local division of the loc
Category:			and the second second
Landscape:	Farmland	A. A.
Other_Description:
Access:	Difficult Access	- and the second second	recently to the party
Condition:	Poor		But the second s
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	Nothing of this church survives.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none
Graveyard Monument	CL065-053002
---	---	------------------------	---	-----------------	---	--------	------------------	---------
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	North
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	This is a large grave grouped in 3 distin graves, the southe end of graveyard.	ict areas ern areai	. Flat graves in th s dominated by p	e cent edest	tral area, with 3 r al type grave ma	mausol	eums to the east	of flat
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:
none

encrony 26N,085536E Christian al e Public Road
26N,085536E Christian al
Christian al
al
al
e Public Road
e Public Road
		the construction isible
one/Shale
gable. The interior of the ch of the length, leaving a nar	hurch is almost completely f	ontains a square headed door in the illed by two large mausoleums, e name 'Morney' appears on both kness.
ins a square headed door.
ars to have two window; or	ne is largely 'destroyed' by ir	nternal mausoleums.
atures to record.
		and by the
ast wall contains a small ce	entral window, largely obscu	rea by ivy.
э:	st wall contains a small ce	st wall contains a small central window, largely obscu

Graveyard Monument	CL065-056002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	A well maintained	graveyaı	rd. The old grave	yard is	s filled to capacit	y.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is la east. The boundar and walls to the ot	y of chur	chyard is mixed,				•
GRAVEYARD		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:	_	Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will furth	er weaken an alr	eady	damaged structu	ire.

About two miles east of Carrigaholt Castle is the old ruined Church of Kill-Croine, measuring seventeen feet four inches in length and twelve feet in breadth, the walls in good preservation, about ten feet high and two feet ten inches thick. There is a quadrangular doorway in the west gable near the south angle, measuring six feet seven inches in height and three feet in breadth on the inside, and six feet in height and three feet one inch in breadth on the outside. The lintel stone is three feet eleven inches long and five inches thick. There are two windows in the south side, but so far dilapidated that no architectural feature remains.

The window in the east gable measures four feet three inches in height and two feet in breadth on the inside, where it has a pointed arch, and three feet seven inches in height and eight inches at top and nine inches at bottom in breadth on the outside, where the top forms a small segment of a circle. There is no cut stone to be seen in any part of the building, nor does it appear to be of any antiquity. There is a large burying ground attached to the ruin. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILCRONY, Sheet 65.—Moyarta Parish, 17 feet

4 inches by 12 feet. A late plain little oratory, built of flagstones; the east window has a semicircular arch. The west door has a flag lintel, and flat relieving arch. The heads of the two south lights are gone. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL065-071001	Church Name:	Killballyoewn
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killballyoewn
Co-ordinates:	151015N,079020E	100 C
Orientation:	E-W	and the second se
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		A CONTRACTOR	AND THE PART
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	roof corbels, with a double string wooden structures in the past. T	g course and a large num he church is built on slop	hitectural features survive. Notably the ber of block holes suggesting internal ing ground West-East gradient. The urch is 23.3m x 6.6m, walls are 0.85m
West Wall General Description:	Contains a small square headed	window, a bell-cote survi	ves on the west gable.
South Wall General Description:	The centre of this wall contains a contains a niche. The south wall	-	lows to the east. The south east corner els.
North Wall General Description:	Contains a small window at east The north wall has a number of i		ock door survives at the eastern end. length.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a single so window.	quare headed window an	d a small niche to the south of the
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is good condition, bu maintenance.	t there is some stress to	the southeast corner. Regular ongoing

Graveyard Monument	CL065-071002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	East	ast
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is w	ne graveyard is well maintained.
Related Structures:	none	one
Architectural Fragments:	broken base of wa	broken base of water stoop, 151015N,079020E
Graveyard General \Description	The churchyard su extension to the ex There is an area to 4 mausoleum type The graveyard is w	ast, this the sou burials	extension is defir th of the church to the south, nor	ned by which	the remains of a the remains of a the remains of a the second sec	a proba used ar	ble field bounda	ry wall.
GRAVEYARD				✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	<ul> <li>Image: A start of the start of</li></ul>	Mausoleum: Upright:	<ul> <li>Image: A start of the start of</li></ul>	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will furth	ier weaken any d	amag	ed areas of this s	structur	е.

The name of this Parish is formed of Kill, a Church, and Ballyowen, i.e., the Town of Owen; hence Kilballyowen. There is no Patron Day remembered in the Parish. The ruined Church of Kilballyowen measures seventy six feet six inches in length and twenty one feet in breadth, the walls in good preservation, two feet eight inches thick and ten feet high. The west gable has a broken-topped belfry and a quadrangular window at the height of seven feet from the ground outside, measuring three feet seven inches in height and two feet four inches in breadth on the inside; one foot nine and a half inches in height and six inches in breadth on the outside. There is a pointed doorway, with its sides broken, twenty four feet six inches from the west gable, in the south side, measuring six feet eight inches in height on the inside and six feet on the outside. At the distance of eight feet ten inches from this, in the same side, is a quadrangular window measuring four feet ten inches in height and four feet in breadth on the inside, three feet in height and six inches in breadth on the outside. At the distance of fifteen feet four inches from this, in the same side and near the east gable, is another window measuring six feet in height and four feet six inches in breadth on the inside, where it is quadrangular at top and four feet two and a half inches in height and seven inches in breadth on the outside, where the top is also quadrangular. The window in the east gable is bluntly pointed at top, inside, where it measures seven feet six inches in height and four feet six inches in breadth and quadrangular on the outside, where it measures four and a half feet in height and six inches in breadth. There is not a cut stone in the whole building. A large burying ground here.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILBALLYOWEN, Sheet 65.—Parish church, 76 feet 6 inches by 21 feet. A long plain building of flagstones; the windows are all small and flat-headed; the south door is pointed; the west gable has a bell chamber. The walls are of thin flagstones, and have a corbelled cornice. There was, in 1816, a font carved with branches, [178] I could not find it on either of my visits; and the foundations of a "Friary," or priest's house, lie to the north of the road. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-006001	Church Name:	Shankill
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Leadmore West
Co-ordinates:	154710N097760E
Orientation:
Category:			and the second second
Landscape:	Coastal	the second
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		tares	Carlonnin -
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	The church no longer survives
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL067-006002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	In good condition	and mai	ntained, although	n one	or two of the s	mall mau	usoleums need at	tention
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	A very large grave and east	yard, we	ll maintained wit	h inte	rconnecting pa	ths. Exte	nded to both the	south
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:	✓	Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	Clare County Cour	ncil Cont	act: Peggy Cahill,	Doon	een Park, Kilrus	sh 065 90	51767
Climate Effects:	none
History:
None

Monument No.	CL067-011001	Church Name:	St.Senan's Church of Ireland
Location:	Urban
Townland:	Kilrush
Co-ordinates:	154970N,099999E	_	A DE
Orientation:	E-W	man the st
Category:	Mediaeval	and match
Landscape:	Other		Repaired and the second
Other_Description:	Edge of Kilrush town.
Access:	Beside Public Road	a state of the sta	Salar and the second
Condition:	Fair	and the fight of the second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
	north and south wall were dest transept arch and chapel surviv arch has been in filled and what body of the church is inserted in	royed in order to make w e, although they have be t was believed to have be nto the in filled transept a The chancel is 6.4m x 3.5	cluding the western wall and parts ray for the Vandelur Mausoleum. The en subject to alterations. The transept een the original doorway in the main arch. There are steps down through this im, the width of the nave is 6.04m, the
West Wall General Description:	Nothing survives.
South Wall General Description:		nave survive. There are p	able and is also heavily overgrown by possible features, but this is unreliable rea of this church.
North Wall General Description:		ll built opening. The east	e transept arch which was at the east window in the chancel appears to be vy growth.
East Wall General Description:	The east contains a large centra	al window covered with iv	г у.

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:			e cut back. An ard		tural conservatio	on surv	ey should be com	pleted
Graveyard Monument	CL067-011002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is	extensive	ly over grown and	d larg	ely abandon to tl	ne sout	h of the modern o	church
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	carved stone, 15	4970N,09	9999E
Graveyard General \Description	graveyard extend north of the mod	ds in all di Iern churc	rections of the ch	urch bears	and to rear of mo to be the only are	odern o ea that	es, long grass etc. hurch. The area to is maintained. Th des.	o the
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfal	l will furtl	her weaken any d	amag	ed areas of this s	tructu	ſe.
History:
none

Monument No.	CL067-015001	Church Name:	Kilcarrol
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcarrol
Co-ordinates:	155266N,102435E		1
Orientation:
Category:
Landscape:	Undulating
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		Contraction of the second
Condition:		Same in the local
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:	No church survives within the g	raveyard.
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL067-015002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is ma	aintaine	d
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is do vault/mausoleum to boundary end of th fair. The graveyard	ype bur e grave	ials within the grant area. The co	aveya nditic	rd, with one exc	eption,	these tend to be
GRAVEYARD		✓						✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:	_	Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none

In the Townland of Kilcarroll, a short distance to the east of Kilrush, is a burial place in which a Church, shown on the Down Survey, anciently stood, which was dedicated to a Saint Cearbhull; but I cannot find a Saint of this name in the Irish Calendar, and I incline to think that the Church was called after a layman like Gaulskill in the Co. of Kilkenny. There is however, a pile of stones and a Holy Well near the grave yard called after St. Cearbhull (pronounced Carroole). Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839.

KILCARROL, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. This church was standing in 1816. It contained "a worm-eaten image" of St. Carrol. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900

Monument No.	CL067-021001	Church Name:	St. Senans
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Molougha
Co-ordinates:	154581N,105062E	and the second se
Orientation:	E-W	+
Category:	Early Christian	-	A Martin and a second
Landscape:	Farmland	-
Other_Description:		-
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This is the larger church, single of	cell, with a surviving west g	gable and the north and south walls.
West Wall	No features
General Description:	No reatures
South Wall General Description:	No features
North Wall General Description:	No features
East Wall General Description:	no longer extant
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL067-021002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Now well filled wit	h burials	s, but in good ord	er
Related Structures:	St.Senan's Altar 30	m east,	two churches
Architectural Fragments:	Finial
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is a by a significant nur the east of the grav been an old outsid	nber of veyard tl	vault like mausol here is a monume	eumsj ent re	, which occupy a ferred to as St.Se	ll areas	of the graveyard.	То
GRAVEYARD		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓	Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall v	vill furth	er weaken any d	amag	ed weakened are	eas of th	is structure.
History:

In the Townland of Moylough, about four miles east of Kilrush, are two old Churches dedicated to St. Seanán, the one a small Damliag and the other an Oratory of remarkably small dimensions. The larger Church measures in length twenty two feet three inches and in breadth thirteen feet and its walls are from two feet five inches to two feet ten inches in thickness. All the north wall is level with the ground, but about fourteen feet five inches of the part of the south wall connected with the west gable remain. A considerable portion of the west gable is standing, but the only feature it contained is destroyed, that is, a little window or Belfry which was placed near the top, and over it a small cross of antique form. This cross is now laid prostrate on the ground near the west gable on the outside and broken to pieces; but a pretty accurate idea may be formed of its shape and size from its pedestal, which is perfect, and from the bits of the cross remaining. The pedestal was the finishing stone of the gable. The east gable is in tolerable preservation. It is three feet in thickness and contains a window measuring on the inside seven feet five inches in height and three feet three inches in breadth (width) and on the outside five feet three inches in height and five inches in width at the top, but the south side at the bottom being destroyed, its breadth there could not be ascertained with sufficient accuracy.

The west gable is three feet four inches in thickness and exhibits at both corners the long and the short style of masonry which I have observed to belong to Churches of the middle ages (9th to 13th century) but not to those of the primitive ages of the Irish Church. The east gable does not shew much of this style, but it looks much more ancient than any part of the west gable, excepting a few feet of the lower part of it. Both gables were re-built from the height of five or six feet upwards, but the west gable would appear to have been re-built at a later period than the east one.

About nine paces from the northeast corner of this Church is a small oratory now called Seipeal Beag Sheanain, i.e., the Small Chapel of St. Senanus, measuring on the outside eleven feet seven inches in length, and nine feet eight inches in breadth. Its little walls are two feet seven inches in thickness. The east gable contains a window rectangular at top inside and outside, and measuring on the inside three feet ten inches in height, one foot ten inches in width, and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and six inches in width. It is covered on the inside and outside with one stone.

The south wall contains a broken little window about four and three quarter inches in width on the outside. The doorway was in the west gable, but now destroyed down to the threshold, where its breadth there is ascertained to be twenty four and a half inches. I do not believe that this little oratory is of the period of Saint Seanan.

Three paces to the north of the west corner of the larger Church are the foundations of a house or small church, thirty feet three inches in length and sixteen feet six inches in breadth. The south wall was two feet nine inches in thickness as ascertained from a distinct part of its foundations remaining.

About five perches nearly due east of the larger Church, there is a square pile of stones called Altoir Sheanáin, the Altar of Senaun. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. Same, TEMPLE SENAN. An oratory built of flagstones, 32 feet 3 inches by 13 feet. The north and south walls have fallen, except a fragment of the last. The gables remain; they were rebuilt from 6 feet above the present level of the ground. The east window is lintelled; there is a small lintelled window in the west gable which was crowned by a socket and cross which had fallen before 1839.

177. Same, SEIPEAL BEG SHENAN. An oratory, 11 feet 7 inches by 9 feet 8 inches, stands near the last; the east window is lintelled; the sills of the south door and window remain.

178. Same, NAMELESS ORATORY, 30 feet 3 inches by 16 feet 6 inches. It is levelled to its foundations, and lies at the west end of Temple Senan. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-021003	Church Name:	St. Senan's Church (Molougha
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Molougha
Co-ordinates:	154568N,105063E	and the second se
Orientation:	E/W	4
Category:	Early Christian	-	and the second second
Landscape:	Farmland	the
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:	Fair	Street and the second	A DESCRIPTION OF THE OWNER
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	This the second of three small ch to c1.2m height. A window to the	_	t is a ruined state with the walls down
West Wall General Description:	There are no features to record.
South Wall General Description:	There are no features to record.
North Wall General Description:	There are no features to record.
East Wall General Description:	The position of a window survive	es, now used as am impro	omptu altar.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church walls are stable enou	gh because of their redu	iced height. The walls be maintained.

Graveyard Monument	CL067-021002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Now well filled with	h burials	s, but in good ord	er
Related Structures:	St Sean's Altar 30m	eters ea	ist, two churches
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is a object of the graveyard is a significant num the east of the grave been an old outside	nber of v veyard th	vault like mausole nere is a monume	eumsj ent re	, which occupy a ferred to as St.Se	ll areas	of the graveyard.	То
GRAVEYARD		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:	✓	Mausoleum: Upright:	✓	Uninscribed: Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of the	structu	re.

n the Townland of Moylough, about four miles east of Kilrush, are two old Churches dedicated to St. Seanán, the one a small Damliag and the other an Oratory of remarkably small dimensions. The larger Church measures in length twenty two feet three inches and in breadth thirteen feet and its walls are from two feet five inches to two feet ten inches in thickness. All the north wall is level with the ground, but about fourteen feet five inches of the part of the south wall connected with the west gable remain. A considerable portion of the west gable is standing, but the only feature it contained is destroyed, that is, a little window or Belfry which was placed near the top, and over it a small cross of antique form. This cross is now laid prostrate on the ground near the west gable on the outside and broken to pieces; but a pretty accurate idea may be formed of its shape and size from its pedestal, which is perfect, and from the bits of the cross remaining. The pedestal was the finishing stone of the gable. The east gable is in tolerable preservation. It is three feet in thickness and contains a window measuring on the inside seven feet five inches in height and three feet three inches in breadth (width) and on the outside five feet three inches in height and five inches in width at the top, but the south side at the bottom being destroyed, its breadth there could not be ascertained with sufficient accuracy.

The west gable is three feet four inches in thickness and exhibits at both corners the long and the short style of masonry which I have observed to belong to Churches of the middle ages (9th to 13th century) but not to those of the primitive ages of the Irish Church. The east gable does not shew much of this style, but it looks much more ancient than any part of the west gable, excepting a few feet of the lower part of it. Both gables were re-built from the height of five or six feet upwards, but the west gable would appear to have been re-built at a later period than the east one.

About nine paces from the northeast corner of this Church is a small oratory now called Seipeal Beag Sheanain, i.e., the Small Chapel of St. Senanus, measuring on the outside eleven feet seven inches in length, and nine feet eight inches in breadth. Its little walls are two feet seven inches in thickness. The east gable contains a window rectangular at top inside and outside, and measuring on the inside three feet ten inches in height, one foot ten inches in width, and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and six inches in width. It is covered on the inside and outside with one stone.

The south wall contains a broken little window about four and three quarter inches in width on the outside. The doorway was in the west gable, but now destroyed down to the threshold, where its breadth there is ascertained to be twenty four and a half inches. I do not believe that this little oratory is of the period of Saint Seanan.

Three paces to the north of the west corner of the larger Church are the foundations of a house or small church, thirty feet three inches in length and sixteen feet six inches in breadth. The south wall was two feet nine inches in thickness as ascertained from a distinct part of its foundations remaining.

About five perches nearly due east of the larger Church, there is a square pile of stones called Altoir Sheanáin, the Altar of Senaun.

Monument No.	CL067-021004	Church Name:	St Senan's small Chapel
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Molougha	-
Co-ordinates:	154583N,105081E	and the second se
Orientation:		4
Category:	Early Christian	-
Landscape:	Farmland	the set
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road
Condition:		Strength Law 18
Foundation:		AND THE SECOND
Masonry:
General Description:	no evidence for this church could	d be located.
M
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/	none
Recommendations:

Graveyard Monument	CL067-021002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	None
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Now well filled wit	h burials	, but in good orc	ler
Related Structures:	St Sean's Altar 30m	ieters ea	st, two churches
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is a by a significant nur the east of the grav been an old outsid	nber of v veyard th	vault like mausol nere is a monum	eums ent re	, which occupy a ferred to as St.Se	ll areas	of the graveyard.	. To
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:

n the Townland of Moylough, about four miles east of Kilrush, are two old Churches dedicated to St. Seanán, the one a small Damliag and the other an Oratory of remarkably small dimensions. The larger Church measures in length twenty two feet three inches and in breadth thirteen feet and its walls are from two feet five inches to two feet ten inches in thickness. All the north wall is level with the ground, but about fourteen feet five inches of the part of the south wall connected with the west gable remain. A considerable portion of the west gable is standing, but the only feature it contained is destroyed, that is, a little window or Belfry which was placed near the top, and over it a small cross of antique form. This cross is now laid prostrate on the ground near the west gable on the outside and broken to pieces; but a pretty accurate idea may be formed of its shape and size from its pedestal, which is perfect, and from the bits of the cross remaining. The pedestal was the finishing stone of the gable. The east gable is in tolerable preservation. It is three feet in thickness and contains a window measuring on the inside seven feet five inches in height and three feet three inches in breadth (width) and on the outside five feet three inches in height and five inches in width at the top, but the south side at the bottom being destroyed, its breadth there could not be ascertained with sufficient accuracy.

The west gable is three feet four inches in thickness and exhibits at both corners the long and the short style of masonry which I have observed to belong to Churches of the middle ages (9th to 13th century) but not to those of the primitive ages of the Irish Church. The east gable does not shew much of this style, but it looks much more ancient than any part of the west gable, excepting a few feet of the lower part of it. Both gables were re-built from the height of five or six feet upwards, but the west gable would appear to have been re-built at a later period than the east one.

About nine paces from the northeast corner of this Church is a small oratory now called Seipeal Beag Sheanain, i.e., the Small Chapel of St. Senanus, measuring on the outside eleven feet seven inches in length, and nine feet eight inches in breadth. Its little walls are two feet seven inches in thickness. The east gable contains a window rectangular at top inside and outside, and measuring on the inside three feet ten inches in height, one foot ten inches in width, and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and six inches in width. It is covered on the inside and outside with one stone.

The south wall contains a broken little window about four and three quarter inches in width on the outside. The doorway was in the west gable, but now destroyed down to the threshold, where its breadth there is ascertained to be twenty four and a half inches. I do not believe that this little oratory is of the period of Saint Seanan.

Three paces to the north of the west corner of the larger Church are the foundations of a house or small church, thirty feet three inches in length and sixteen feet six inches in breadth. The south wall was two feet nine inches in thickness as ascertained from a distinct part of its foundations remaining.

About five perches nearly due east of the larger Church, there is a square pile of stones called Altoir Sheanáin, the Altar of Senaun.

Monument No.	CL067-024002	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church: St. Se
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152624N,097259E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second second
Landscape:	Coastal		the second se
Other_Description:		Contra Malazzar	and the second second
Access:	Island		and the second second
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:		plex. There condition is g	al of seven churches within an area enerally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by t	he National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia moratorium, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-024003	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church: St. Se
Location:
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152264N,097269N
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second second
Landscape:
Other_Description:			and the second s
Access:
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:		plex. There condition is g	al of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by t	he National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-024006	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church: The O
Location:
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152501N,097333E
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval	the second se
Landscape:			and the second se
Other_Description:			a care and the state
Access:			The second s
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:		nplex. There condition is g	tal of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by	the National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.
| Monument No.                          | CL067-024008                   | Church Name:  | Scattery Island Church: The C  |
|---------------------------------------|--------------------------------|---|--|
| Location:                             |                                |   |  |
| Townland:                             | Scattery Island                |   |  |
| Co-ordinates:                         | 152490N,097337E                |   |  |
| Orientation:                          |                                |   |  |
| Category:                             | Mediaeval                      | and the second se |  |
| Landscape:                            |                                |   |  |
| Other_Description:                    |                                |   | and the second second  |
| Access:                               |                                |   | and the second second  |
| Condition:                            |                                |   |  |
| Foundation:                           |                                |   |  |
| Masonry:                              |                                |   |  |
| General Description:                  |                                | plex. There condition is g  | al of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care |
| West WallGeneral Description:     |                                |   |  |
| South WallGeneral Description:    |                                |   |  |
| North WallGeneral Description:    |                                |   |  |
| East WallGeneral Description:     |                                |   |  |
| Church Appraisal/Recommendations: | None as they are maintained by | the National Monument S   | Service  |

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-024010	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church
Location:
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152430N,097452E
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:			and the second division of the second divisio
Other_Description:		and the second	a car and and and
Access:			The second s
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:		mplex. There condition is a	tal of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by	y the National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-024011	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church: Team
Location:
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152390N097472E
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second
Landscape:
Other_Description:		Contraction of the local	and the second second
Access:			The second second
Condition:
Foundation:
Masonry:
General Description:		nplex. There condition is ${\mathfrak g}$	al of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by	the National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	y well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclos	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	/lonui	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL067-024013	Church Name:	Scattery Island Church: Árd n
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Scattery Island
Co-ordinates:	152308N,097139E
Orientation:
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second second
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:		Constant and a	a case of the second second
Access:	Island		The second s
Condition:	Good
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	_	nplex. There condition is g	al of seven churches within an area generally good as they are in the care
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	None as they are maintained by	the National Monument S	Service

Graveyard Monument	CL067-024012
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	Round Tower, holy	/ well, ca	stle, graveyard, c	other	churches, enclosi	ure wal	ls
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	not known
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:
Climate Effects:	minimal while ma	intained	by the National N	Ionu	ment Service.

The Cathedral or Damliag lies to the east of the tower at the distance of seventy seven and a half feet. In its present form it is not divided into nave and choir, but by comparing it with other Cathedrals of the primitive Irish Church, one may come to the conclusion that it was originally so divided. It measures on the inside sixty eight feet four inches and in breadth twenty seven feet seven inches. Its original doorway remains in the west gable and is a beautiful specimen of the semi-cyclopean style. The ground is considerably raised on the outside so that its height there could not be easily ascertained, but on the inside its original height and characteristics appear. It is six feet six inches in height and in breadth two feet ten and a half inches at top, and three feet one and a half inches at bottom. Its lintel is five feet eight inches in length and twelve inches in thickness (height) and extends the entire thickness of the wall, that is, three feet five inches. It projects on the inside four inches, and in this projecting part there are two square mortices, one at each side of the doorway, to fasten the door, and a part of the iron gudgeon on which the door hung exists on the north side.

The south wall contains a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twelve feet one inch from the west gable, but it is so broken that its dimensions cannot be given. It measures three feet three inches in width at the spring of the arch. This doorway was inserted about five centuries since, when the primitive doorway in the west gable was, as usual, stopped up.

At the distance of twelve feet six inches from the east side of this doorway there is a high narrow window, and ten feet ten inches farther to the east there is another high, narrow, shamrock-headed window, and ten feet one inch east of this, there is a narrow, curvilineally pointed window - all modern and inserted into the original wall, as the character of the masonry immediately around will prove to a demonstration.

The east gable, which was all re-built except a few feet of the lower part, contains a high Gothic window measuring on the outside three feet five inches in width and about twelve feet in height. In the stone which closes the top of this window on the outside is the head of a Bishop with his mitre, boldly executed and in very good preservation, but not older than the period of rebuilding this gable. This head is held in high estimation by the islanders as being the supposed effigy or representation of their great Patron Senán, but I think that it is as like Dr. Mac Hale as it is (to)

Senan.

The north wall of this Church contains a modern pointed fresh looking doorway, daubed with fresh looking mortar and constructed of small rude stones. It is placed opposite the doorway in the south wall already described and perhaps about three centuries old. The same wall has a square doorway placed at the distance of ten feet five inches from the east gable. This doorway leads into an lardom or Sacristy which measures twenty six feet six inches from east to west and ten feet from north to south. The north wall of this lardom contains two modern windows not worth description, and its east wall a neat pointed window measuring on the outside seven feet one inch in height and one foot in breadth. This lardom is built up against the north wall of the Damliag, but its stones are not dove-tailed or inserted into it, which proves that it is a posterior (an after) erection.

I shall now point out the parts of this Church which are ancient, as apparent on the outside. The entire of the north wall, to the height of ten feet six inches, is built of very large stones not laid in regular courses nor hammered nor even quarried [8] which is the surest criterion of primitive style of masonry in Ireland. The west gable to the height of ten feet six inches is exactly in the same style, but from that height upwards is decidedly more modern, that part having been erected when the Gothic windows were inserted. The resemblance which this west gable bears to that of the Cathedral of Glendalough is striking, having at each corner a rectangular pillar projecting two feet and measuring in breadth three feet five inches.

The south wall is also of the primitive style to the height of about ten feet, excepting the breaches which were made in it when the pointed windows were inserted. These breaches are built up with stones which appear remarkably small in comparison with those in the primitive part of the work outside them. This Church affords a very satisfactory elucidation of the manner in which the primitive Irish Damliags were remodelled after the introduction of the pointed style by the Anglo-Normans, and is, therefore, worthy of the attention of the architectural antiquarian. To the north of the Damliag (four feet eleven inches from its north wall) there is a remarkable little oratory of great antiquity, but obviously remodelled. It measures in length twenty three feet six inches and in breadth twelve feet ten inches. It had a small choir, now just destroyed, measuring eight feet nine inches from east to west, and ten feet four inches from north to south. Thickness of its walls, two feet three inches. Thickness of walls of nave two feet eight inches. Height of side walls of Nave, seven feet nine inches. The doorway was placed in the south wall, but is nearly destroyed. A quadrangular window two feet three inches by eleven inches in the west gable placed a few feet from the ground and all that gable from that window upwards are modern.

These three buildings are enclosed by a rude wall built of large stones and looking very ancient. About six perches to the west of the Clogaus there is a large square well, called Toabar Sheanain, fons Senani, and near it a stone ornamented with a cross.

4. About twenty perches to the north of the Tower there is a small Church called Teampull Sheanain, i.e., the Church of St. Senan. In its present form it does not look old at first sight, but upon a close examination it will be found to be an old Church, remodelled and patched up at various periods - Febh Bríste Sheaain Scuirre. It consists of Nave and Choir, and its measurements are as follows:-

Length of Nave,23 ft. 10 inches.Breadth of Nave,16 ft. 9 ins. " Choir,20 ft. 10 inches.2" " Choir,20 ft. 9 ins. Thickness of walls of Nave,2 ft. 8 inches.

"""" Choir,ℤ ft. 3 inches.™

The west gable is featureless and seems to have been all re-built. The south wall contains a pointed doorway, built of small stones and evidently not of any very great antiquity. A few feet to the east of it there is a window, broad inside and narrow outside, but so curtained with ivy on the outside that I could not obtain its dimensions. All the choir arch is destroyed except a small part of the north side which looks very primitive. The south wall of the choir contains a small quadrangular window but very modern and not worth description. The only part which looks ancient is a small window in the east gable measuring five feet in height and three feet eight inches in width on the inside and on the outside two feet eleven inches in height and eight inches in width.

Immediately to the west of this is a small building built of thin slates of nearly equal size and looking very modern. It is twenty one feet eight inches in length and eleven feet two inches in breadth. Its doorway was in the south wall, measuring three feet three inches in breadth but its height could not be ascertained as it is broken; it contained two small windows, one on the east gable and the other in the south wall, but both are now just (nearly) destroyed. 5. About forty perches to the south west of the Round Tower, on the hill called in the Life of St. Senan, Ard na n-Aingeal, i.e., Hill of the Angels, there is another Church in ruins called after the hill, Teampull Cnuic na n-Aingeal. It measures forty feet six in length and sixteen feet eight inches in breadth. All its features are destroyed and the greater part of the fragments of the wall remaining are modern. The south wall is ten feet in height and about two feet seven inches in thickness. The north wall is nearly all destroyed, as are also the two gables except a small part of the west gable, which looks very ancient. The south wall contained a pointed doorway constructed of small rude stones and evidently modern. The south wall contained two windows which are now mere breaches.

There is another building joined to the south east side of this Church measuring thirty five feet ten inches from north to south and fifteen feet from west to east. A part of the west wall, fourteen feet long and five feet high joined to the Church remains, and a small part of the middle of the east wall, two feet nine inches in thickness.

For a legend about the selection of this spot for a church see Life of Senanus, given below. (This legend must be amongst the "Clare Extracts" as there is no allusion to it in the extract from Life of St. Senanus given in this letter.)

6. About fifty perches to the southeast of the Damliag there is a large Church now called Teampull na Marbh, i.e., ecclesia mortuorum, because it is the only one on the island in which people bury the dead, but surely this is not its original name. To describe this Church. It is sixty seven feet ten inches long, and eighteen feet six inches broad (measured on the inside). Its west gable is featureless. The south wall contains a doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet from the west gable, but now reduced to a formless breach. East of this in the same wall there are three windows all decidedly modern and not worth particular description. There is in the east gable a large pointed window measuring on the inside eight feet eight inches in width and very high, and on the outside three feet four inches in width and seven feet in height. The lower part of it is built up with modern mason work. The north wall has at the distance of seven feet eight inches from the west gable, a round-headed but very modern doorway and eighteen feet to the east of it a rude pointed arch nine feet six inches high and eight feet four inches wide; and three feet ten inches to the east of it, another arch of similar characteristics and dimensions. At the distance of five feet four inches to the east of this there is a quadrangular doorway five feet four inches high and two feet eleven inches wide at the lintel and three feet two inches at the bottom. Its lintel is a thin flag four feet six inches long, one foot eight inches broad and only three inches thick. Over this doorway is a small rectilineally pointed window which looks very like a primitive one, but which is hardly to be depended upon! There seem to have been lateral lardoms into which these arches and doorway led but they are all destroyed with the exception of one fragment of a wall projecting from the northeast corner. The walls of this Church are two feet six inches thick, and the side walls about seventeen feet high. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

179 to 185. INISCATHA OR SCATTERY ISLAND, Sheet 67.—Kilrush Parish. The island lies opposite Kilrush, and possesses six churches, and a fine archaic looking round tower, over 100 feet high, and 52 feet 4 inches in circumference. The corbelled door is on the ground level. Founder, St. Senan, son of Gerrchin, of Moylough (a man of good family in Corcovaskin), about A.D. 520. It suffered much from the ravages of the Danes and English. It was a bishopric till 1188. "Inis Cathaig," A.D. 861. [189] Descriptions—There is a large amount of printed material relating to this Island. We need only note—Dyneley (1680); R.S.A.I., 1866; Lady Chatterton's "Rambles"; Dutton, p. 304; Dwyer, p. 499; Keane, p. 377; Frost, p. 80; Miss Stokes (Plate 20); Malone, R.S.A.I., 1874; T. J. Westropp, R.S.A.I., 1897, p. 276 (who collects the earlier notices). Illustrations are given by Miss Stokes, J. Frost, and T. J. Westropp. Vested as a National Monument.

179. Same, THE CATHEDRAL.—68 feet 4 inches by 27 feet 6 inches. The lower parts of the walls are early, with large masonry; the upper parts are of flagstones. The west gable has antæ and a door with lintel and inclined jambs. The south windows have been replaced, probably in the fifteenth century, by trefoil-headed slits. The east end is of the same period, and has a fine pointed window, which had two trefoil-headed lights, with a quatrefoil above them, but the shaft has fallen. A mitred head is carved on the keystone. A sacristy adjoins the building at the north-east corner, and there are two pointed doors near the west end.

180. Same, ORATORY.—It consists of a nave and chancel, 23 feet 6 inches by 12 feet 10 inches, and 8 feet 9 inches by 10 feet 6 inches. The chancel had been levelled to the ground before my first visit in 1878, but was partly rebuilt by the Board of Public Works. They excavated the site, and disclosed the base of a rich Romanesque chancel arch, dating about 1100, with clustered pillars and chevrons. The west gable seems much older.

Base of Chancel Arch, Oratory, Scattery

181. TEMPLE SHENAN.—It consists of a nave and chancel 23 feet 10 inches by 16 feet 9 inches, and 10 feet 10 inches by 10 feet 9 inches. The east gable leans outward. There was a chancel arch, with clustered pillars, now fallen. The south door is pointed, and the ruin bears little mark of any great antiquity.

182. LATE ORATORY.—21 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 2 inches. It stands close to the west gable of the last, and is plainly built of flag-stones; the walls are only 5 to 6 feet high. At the west end is a scored stone, supposed to have been an ogam inscription, and a beautiful Celtic cross-slab, with Irish inscriptions:— "Or do moenach aite mogroin," and "Or do moinach."

183. TEMPLE AIRD NA NAINGEL.—40 feet 6 inches by 16 feet 8 inches. A very early church; the foundations and the south wall alone remain; the wall is of fine masonry, of unusual size; the south window is defaced, and a rude south door has been inserted. It is mentioned in "Vita S. Senani."

Temple Aird na nAingel, Scattery

184. KILNAMARBHE.—67 feet 10 inches by 18 feet 6 inches. A late mediæval church, probably of the fifteenth century. The east window has a moulded double light (the shaft lost). There was a lateral aisle to the north, with plain, pointed arches; the west end has great stepped buttresses. The present burial ground of Scattery adjoins it, and gives its name to the ruin.

185. ALLEGED SITE.— A graveyard undercut by the sea lies south-west from the last, and is said to have been the site of the seventh church. The slab on which St. Cannara sailed to Scattery was shown on the shore near the fort. There was also a cairn called "Gluin Senain," where the saint used to kneel. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL068-012001	Church Name:	Kilmore
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilmore
Co-ordinates:	154020N110640E	and the second
Orientation:			A State of the state of the
Category:		A Deal Parts	A REAL PROPERTY
Landscape:	Farmland		Land and the second
Other_Description:			Carling Carling
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:
Foundation:		のためである
Masonry:
General Description:	No evidence of this church survi	ves
West Wall General Description:
South Wall General Description:
North Wall General Description:
East Wall General Description:
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	none

Graveyard Monument	CL068-012002
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:	Chest Tombs: Flat:	Mausoleum: Upright:	Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	none
History:					1

No part of this old Church is now in existence, ... Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL068-024001	Church Name:	Killimer
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Burrane Lower
Co-ordinates:	152670N106780E
Orientation:	E/W
Category:	Mediaeval		A FER
Landscape:	Coastal		mart - F
Other_Description:
Access:	Beside Public Road		The second second second
Condition:	Fair
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:			n to all walls. All windows are ruined. A at the western end of the church
West Wall General Description:	There are no associated features	s except the corbels men	tioned.
South Wall General Description:	A semi pointed door with limest	one arches at the wester	n end. Two windows both ruined.
North Wall General Description:	There are no associated features	5
East Wall General Description:	Single window opening now ruir	ned
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is upstanding but ha and should be cut hard back.	s suffered architectural d	amage. The ivy is a cause of concern

Graveyard Monument	CL068-024002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:	South
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The old graveyard of the road is well			bone	on the surface. 1	he exte	nsion on the oth	er side
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	The old graveyard south, across the r			urch c	lominated by fla	t graves	. An extension to	the
GRAVEYARD	L
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:	✓	Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:	✓
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rainfall	will accel	lerate the further	dete	rioration of this o	church

This single cell church measures in length fifty feet six inches on the inside and sixteen feet ten inches in breadth. It is all as old as the 9th century except some inserted features, and also the west gable and six feet of the side walls attached to it, which were rebuilt about five centuries since.

The west gable is built of thin flag quarry stones and contains no feature but a little Belfry, now broken, placed on its top.

In the south wall, at the distance of nine feet from the west gable, is a doorway, rectangular at the top on the inside and curvilineally pointed on the outside, and measuring on the outside five feet ten inches to the vertex and three feet five inches in width.

At the distance of six feet five inches to the east of this there is another rude doorway, looking very fresh and constructed of small stones, but this is not two hundred years old. Within two feet two inches of the east gable is a quadrangular window inserted when the Church was remodelled, but now so broken that its measurements could not be given.

The east gable contains a beautiful window in the primitive Irish style, round-headed inside and outside, and in perfect preservation. It is constructed of brownish grit stone neatly chiselled, and measures on the inside six feet seven inches in height and three feet eight inches in width, and on the outside three feet in height and in width four and a half inches at top and six inches at bottom. The head on the outside is formed of one stone beautifully rounded. On the outside is what carpenters in wooden work call a rabbiting (Q? Masonic term?) three inches wide and one and a half inches in depth, exactly like the east window in the Church of Aghowl near Tullow in the Co. Of Wicklow. Dr. Kenny, P.P. Of Kilrush, who is supposed to be the best architectural antiquary in Ireland, says that this window cannot be older than 9th century in consequence of exhibiting this mark on the outside. He says it is not to be found in any of the primitive Irish Churches, and I believe he is right, although I do not know on what authority he places its introduction in the 9th century.

The same very learned Doctor is going to remove this window to the new Chapel of Kilrush, into which he will insert it exactly in its present form. If he do this he will draw down upon his guilty head the curse of me, who am a sinner, and probably of St. Emeria (Emma?) who is in heaven; but it may be possible that as the Doctor's hands are consecrated he may remove it without drawing down upon him the curse of this holy Virgin, and mine is of no great consequence.

The north wall is featureless and built of large field stones (not quarry stones) not laid in regular courses.

The thickness of the wall in the east gable as ascertained at the window is two feet six inches. Ordnance Survey Letters by J. O'Donovan and E. Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL068-032001	Church Name:	Kilkerin
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilkerin
Co-ordinates:	151571N,110976E	and the second second	Alternation and the second
Orientation:	E-W		Prantie State
Category:	Mediaeval	and the second second
Landscape:	Farmland		^
Other_Description:		and the second with the second	And the second s
Access:	Across Fields	A States
Condition:	Fair		Contraction of the second
Foundation:	Not Visible		ty and the
Masonry:	Dressed Rubble
General Description:	arch, a section of the north wall, reconstructed, but is believed to width of the western end of the section. What survives is believe the presence of a number of out transept wall. The transept arch	possibly complete, a west be in the correct position church. The south east co d to be the nave with a c -jutting stones that almo is 4.2m, the entire transe	rvives, namely an eastern transept stern wall which appears to be largely n and represents most of the true orner also survives, but only a small hancel to the east. This is confirmed by st certainly tied the chancel to the ept was c. 7.2m in height. The walls ch is approx 8m in length, width 5.3m.
West Wall General Description:	The west wall is c. 5m in length, be in the true location. No assoc	, .	gely rebuilt, recently and is believed to
South Wall General Description:	Only a very small portion of the s	small wall survives, formi	ing the corner of the transept arch.
North Wall General Description:	The north wall has no features e	xcept 3 corbels, one at ro	oof level and two lower down.
East Wall General Description:	The transept arch is at the easter high.	rn end of the surviving st	ructure. The opening is 3m and is 4.2m

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is large detailed record of						of interest. A full
Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description	none
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault: High Crosses:		Chest Tombs: Flat:		Mausoleum: Upright:		Uninscribed: Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Increased rain fall	will acce	lerate the furthe	r dete	erioration of this	church
History:

In the Townland of Kilkereen in this Parish are the ruins of a small Church of great antiquity from which the Townland has derived its name. It seems to have been originally divided into nave and choir, but the latter has entirely disappeared, as have all the windows and doorway. The north wall and a part of the west gable as high as the north wall remain; both are built of large field stones and evidently of great antiquity. The north wall is fifteen feet high and three feet two inches thick.

The choir arch remains but it is not of the original work, as is evident from the stones of which it is built, i.e., thin quarried flags. It is about sixteen feet high and ten feet wide.

This Church is eighteen feet six inches in breadth and the part of it remaining is thirty two feet in length, that is from the west gable to the choir arch. The choir was probably half this length or perhaps a little more, but even its foundations are not now traceable. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILKERIN, Sheet 68.—Killoffin Parish, 32 feet by 18 feet 6 inches. An early church; the north wall and ends of the nave remain. The chancel arch is 10 feet wide, built of flagstones. The west gable has partly fallen, and the chancel is levelled. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Clonderlaw.

Monument No.	CL068-041001	Church Name:	Killofin
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Killofin
Co-ordinates:	152428N,113824E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval	AL AND	the second second
Landscape:	Coastal		and a state of the second second
Other_Description:			Inm inte
Access:	Beside Public Road	Res Contract
Condition:	Poor	be the second
Foundation:	Bedrock
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	9.9m. The south wall is built on is largely ruined. The church is s	a batter. The walls are th ituated at the northern e	cures much of the church. It is 20m x icker than usual at 1m. The west gable dge of the graveyard, with sufficient /vault type burials on both sides of this
West Wall General Description:	There are no features. It is large	ly ruined and overgrown.
South Wall General Description:	the door there appears to have Whether this last opening descr	been another opening, no ibed is a window or some w is open, the centre wir	I to the east of the door. To the west of ow badly ruined and blocked up. e other feature, it can not be ndow is blocked up. There is a small
North Wall General Description:	No features to record.
East Wall General Description:	The east wall contains a single w time this window was glazed. Th	-	are grooved suggesting that at one wall in the southern corner.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in poor condition to be cut back and the door mad	•	ng and to the west of the door. The ivy be evaluated.

Graveyard Monument	CL068-041002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Fair
Extension Location:	East
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	There is little to maintain save the graves, which are in reasonable order. The old graveyard is ull.
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	2 barge stones, 152	428N,1	13824E
Graveyard General \Description	As noted, there is an approach laneway to the north of the church, which contains a number of flat graves and vaults on both sides of path. There is a good stone wall to the north of the path. The path continues to the south side of the church. Where it passes in front of the east gable, a new extension has been added to the east of the path. To the south of the church, it is dominated by flat graves. One or two recent burials were noted at the extreme southern edge of the graveyard. The graveyard has a neglected look and is overgrown in many places.
GRAVEYARD		✓		✓		✓		✓
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of the	structu	re

The old Church of Killofin is in good preservation and measures on the inside sixty seven feet in length and eighteen in breadth. Its west gable contains no feature but a small pointed belfry of cut stone at the top. The south wall has a pointed doorway placed at the distance of twenty one feet nine inches from the west gable, and measuring on the inside seven feet seven inches in height and five feet three inches in breadth (width) and on the outside six feet eight inches in height and three feet six inches in width. At the distance of seven feet eight inches from the east gable there is in the same wall a pointed window measuring on the inside six feet eleven inches in height and four feet one inch in width, and on the outside (where it is placed at the height of four feet from the ground) five feet two inches in height and eleven inches in width. It is constructed of cut limestone.

The east gable contains a Gothic window measuring on the inside nine feet three inches in height and four feet ten inches in width and on the outside, where it is placed at the height of six feet from the ground, it is six feet four inches high and two feet five inches in breadth. It is constructed of well cut limestone, and divided into two divisions by a stone mullion.

About eighteen feet of the eastern part of this Church look much more modern than the remaining part to the west. The north wall is featureless. The side walls are thirteen feet high and four feet thick. Its graveyard is very extensive. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

Monument No.	CL069-005001	Church Name:	Kilfiddane
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Moyfadda
Co-ordinates:	155096N,118848
Orientation:	E-W		a second and the
Category:	Mediaeval
Landscape:	Farmland	A Destantion of the	All Contractions of the Contractions of the
Other_Description:			A second second
Access:	Beside Laneway
Condition:	Good		ALL PROPERTY AND INCOMENTS
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	-	. It has an interesting fea	boundary wall for the graveyard ature in the west gable, an internal ck. There is extensive and heavy ivy
West Wall General Description:		hat on the northern side	ne general description. There is a bell- some stones are missing. Barge stones
South Wall General Description:	the western end of the church. It	t was believed to have be	e is a window to the east and another to een a central window, east of the door, nce of a memorial grave set into the
North Wall General Description:	There are no features to record.
East Wall General Description:	Contains a single window, with a	a niche to the south east.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is in good condition s structure evaluated. The condition

Graveyard Monument	CL069-005002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Good
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	The graveyard is re	easonabl	y well maintained	ł
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	Finial, 155096N,11	.8848
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard surr large vault/mauso
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:	✓	Uninscribed:
Wi ddddoo	High Crosses:		Flat:	✓	Upright:	✓	Pedestal:	✓
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	s in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of the	structu	re.
History:	L

The old Church of Kilfeddaun is in good preservation, but not ancient or at all interesting to the architectural antiquarian. It is sixty seven feet six inches in length and eighteen feet six inches in breadth, and its side walls are twelve feet high and three feet nine inches thick, and built of hammered quarry stones laid in regular courses.

The west gable contains no feature but a round topped belfry in good preservation. The south wall contains a window placed at the height of seven feet from the ground and five feet from the west gable. It is broken on the inside, but in good preservation on the outside where it measures two feet two inches in height and eight inches in breadth. At the distance of thirteen feet from this window there is, in the same wall, a pointed doorway measuring on the outside six feet two inches in height and three feet eight inches in breadth. At the distance of seven feet from the east gable was another window but now destroyed inside and outside except two cut stones of that side next the east gable. The east gable contains a pointed window measuring on the inside about ten feet in height and three feet nine inches in width, and on the outside six feet ten inches in height and one foot nine inches in breadth. It was divided by a stone mullion, now broken.

The north wall is featureless. The corner stones are cut lime stones.

Its graveyard is of considerable extent but contains no ancient inscriptions. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839.

CL071-020001	Church Name:	Templenanaeve
Rural
Ross (Kilballyowen)
150003N,073688E
E-W
Early Christian	and the
Farmland		and a supervision of the supervision of the
	Contraction of the second
Across Fields		a line and a second
Poor
Not Visible		Contraction of the second
Flagstone/Shale
established nettles. The church i 0659058157. Visits to this site sh 4.5m. Little of the church could b	s on farmland, belonging hould be organised with be recorded in detail due	g to Pat Magner, contact number Mr. Pat Magner. The church is 8.8m x to extensive overgrowth. There is the
No features could be recorded d	ue to extensive overgrov	wth.
Contains a door and window, bo	th of which are largely o	bscured.
The north wall contains no featu	res to record.
Contains a window, with what is visible.	believed to be an altar b	peneath, but this was again not clearly
The church is in a semi-ruined st and the structure evaluated.	ate and heavily overgrov	vn. The brambles /ivy to be cut back
	RuralRuralRoss (Kilballyowen)150003N,073688EE-WEarly ChristianFarmlandAcross FieldsPoorNot VisibleFlagstone/ShaleThis single cell church is situated established nettles. The church i 0659058157. Visits to this site shales of a high cross, which lies to base of a high cross, which lies to DorNo features could be recorded de Contains a door and window, bookThe north wall contains no features visible.The church is in a semi-ruined st	Rural   Ross (Kilballyowen)   150003N,073688E   E-W   Early Christian   Farmland   Across Fields   Poor   Not Visible   Flagstone/Shale   This single cell church is situated near the coast, is heavil established nettles. The church is on farmland, belonging 0659058157. Visits to this site should be organised with 4.5m. Little of the church could be recorded in detail due base of a high cross, which lies to the south of the church solut be recorded in detail due base of a high cross, which lies to the south of the church for the church could be recorded in detail due base of a high cross, which lies to the south of the church for the church is in a semi-ruined state and heavily overgrow   Contains a window, with what is believed to be an altar brisible.   The church is in a semi-ruined state and heavily overgrow

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	none
Related Structures:	Grave of the nine	saints an	d or possible bas	e of a	high cross.
Architectural Fragments:	none, a carved, (b	elieved h	uman) head has	been	taken in the past	•
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	Pat Magner, Ross	065-905	8157
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e det	erioration of the	structu	re.

There is a small ruined Church in the Townland of Ross called Teampall-an-Naonmhar-Naomh, i.e., Church of the Nine Saints. Of this edifice the west gable and side walls remain and four feet of the under part of the east gable. It measures thirty four feet four inches in length and fifteen and a half feet in breadth. At the distance of nine feet three inches from the west gable, on (in) the south side, is a pointed doorway with the sides destroyed and measuring six feet in height on the inside and five and a half feet on the outside. At the distance of ten and a half feet from this, in the same side, is a quadrangular window three feet eight inches high and three feet wide inside, two feet eight inches in height and four inches in breadth at top, and six inches at bottom on the outside. The walls are two and a half feet thick and about ten feet high and there is not a cut or chiselled stone in the whole. At the distance of twenty four feet south from the ruin is what the peasantry call the Grave of the Nine Saints, measuring thirty three feet in length from north to south, seven feet nine inches in breadth and two feet in height, the sides built up of loose stones after the ordinary manner of graves. There is an old burying ground not much frequented in the Townland of Kilbeaha and another of the same character in the Townland of Kilcluither.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. TEMPLE NA NAEVE (Ross), Sheet 64.—Kilballyone Parish. A small church, 34 feet 6 inches by 15 feet 6 inches, is of large old-looking masonry. All the features are much injured. The south door was pointed, but has been defaced since 1839. There are round stones on the altar. A corbel with a carved head lies loose in the ruin, and the east gable is down. In 1839, it was called "Tempul an naomhar naomh," and reputed to be the church of nine saints. The Churches of County Clare by T.J. Westropp 1900.

Monument No.	CL072-025001	Church Name:	Kilcreduan
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcredaun (Moyarta)
Co-ordinates:	149609N,084755E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Early Christian	Contract -
Landscape:	Farmland
Other_Description:		te Ser
Access:	Across Fields		Contractory .
Condition:	Fair	and the second second
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	flagstone and shale, dressed rul The church is largely overgrown walls. Within the church at the deliberate partition of two low east window, creating a walkwa	bble and very large stone with ivy, particularly at th eastern end, there seems walls parallel to the east-v y 0.65m wide, directly in t	.7m thick. The construction is mixed, reminiscent of cyclopean construction. ne east end also the north and south to have been the creation of a west gable, that turn 90 degrees to the front of the east window. A large is stone is located west of the east
West Wall General Description:	The west wall contains a door w that it was formerly arched.	hich is largely robbed out	:. A single edge survives that suggests
South Wall General Description:	Contains a single square headed noted at the top and bottom of		nd. A pivot hole for the shutter was
North Wall General Description:	Contains a double string, which	was the only feature in th	ne north wall.
East Wall General Description:	-		noted that this window is somewhat ed head. The sill stone has a ribbed

Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is upstanding, but there is heavy and established ivy growth. This is an early church with some interesting features/construction. The ivy to be cut hard back and the structure evaluated.
Graveyard Monument	CL072-0025002
Boundary Wall Type:	Stone
Boundary Wall Description:	Poor
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:	Totally overgrown. W0uld benefit from clearing scrub.
Related Structures:	There is a memorial stone to the east of the church on high ground.
Architectural Fragments:
Graveyard General \Description	The graveyard is believed to be old and associated with the old church and lies to the west. It is almost completely inaccessible, with well established blackthorn shrubs, brambles etc. The walls are obscured.
GRAVEYARD MARKINGS:	Vault:Chest Tombs:Mausoleum:Uninscribed:High Crosses:Flat:Upright:Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increases in rain fall will accelerate deterioration of the structure.
History:

There are two ruined Churches in the Townland of Kilcradaun the most northerly of which is called Teampall Shearlais, from Charles Mac Donnell, Esq., having been buried in it. The walls are in good preservation and the edifice measures twenty three feet four inches in length and sixteen feet in breadth. The doorway was in the west gable, but all its features are now destroyed. There is a broken belfry at top. There is a quadrangular window in the south side five feet from the east gable, measuring four feet in height and two feet three inches in breadth on the inside, three feet four inches high and five inches wide on the outside. The window in the east is semi-circular and built of cut brown grit-stone through and through, measuring five feet nine inches in height and two feet ten inches in breadth on the inside, two feet ten inches high and nine inches wide on the outside, the arch here formed out of one stone. The walls are about twelve feet high and two and a half thick, built of very large stones intermixed with small ones, and all looking very ancient. There is a deserted burying ground attached.

Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. KILCREDAUN, Sheet 72.—Moyarta Parish. An ancient oratory, 23 feet 7 inches by 15 feet 6 inches. It evidently dates from the eleventh or early twelfth century. The east window has a neatly-built splay with a semicircular arch; the outer face of the light was moulded, and above the head was scroll work similar to a base in the church of St. Saviour, Glendalough. The south window has a flat head, and the west door is defaced, but had a semicircular arch. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Moyarta.

Monument No.	CL072-026	Church Name:	Templeanard
Location:	Rural
Townland:	Kilcredaun (Moyarta)
Co-ordinates:	149392N,084860E
Orientation:	E-W
Category:	Mediaeval		A
Landscape:	Coastal
Other_Description:		1
Access:	Across Fields
Condition:	Poor
Foundation:	Not Visible
Masonry:	Flagstone/Shale
General Description:	the east gable completely missir	nave been clearly visible f ng as well as partions of th width. Thickness is 0.76r	rom the sea. It is largely ruined with he south wall and north wall. Its m. It was noted that the door tapers
West Wall General Description:	There are no features. The gable	e is believed to survive to	most of its height.
South Wall General Description:	completely certain, but highly p	robable that it was the lo	ndow is in the area of collapse, it is not cation of an easterly south wall issing, however, the upper door pivot
North Wall General Description:	No features to record.
East Wall General Description:	No east wall scurvies.
Church Appraisal/ Recommendations:	The church is largely ruined. A fu priority.	ull detailed record of the s	surviving remains be carried out as a

Graveyard Monument	none
Boundary Wall Type:
Boundary Wall Description:
Extension Location:
Graveyard Gen. Discussion/Appraisal:
Related Structures:	none
Architectural Fragments:	none
Graveyard General \Description
GRAVEYARD
MARKINGS:	Vault:		Chest Tombs:		Mausoleum:		Uninscribed:
	High Crosses:		Flat:		Upright:		Pedestal:
Owner:	not known
Climate Effects:	Predicted increase	es in rain	fall will accelerat	e dete	erioration of the	structu	re.
History:

About a furlong to the south of the latter stands the other Church, called Teampall-an-Aird, i.e., the Church of the Height, from its situation on the ridge of the little headland of Kilcradane. It measures twenty three feet six inches in length and eleven feet six inches in breadth, the walls remaining in good preservation. The doorway was in the south side, but is now quite featureless. There is a broken window in the same side near the east gable. There is a quadrangular window in the east gable, measuring four feet four inches in height and three feet ten inches in breadth on the inside, two feet four inches in height and eight inches in breadth on the outside. This appears to be a very modern Church, no burying ground. Ordnance Survey Letters by John O'Donovan and Eugene Curry, 1839. TEMPLE AN AIRD, Sheet 72.—Moyarta Parish, 23 feet 2 inches by 11 feet 6 inches. A coarsely-built late oratory, on the hill behind the last. The east and south windows are flat-headed; the south door pointed. The west end had a bell chamber. Below it to the south, on the shore, is the holy well of St. Caritan. The Churches of County Clare by T. J. Westropp 1900 - Barony of Moyarta.